

School Preparedness Self-Assessment

Adennill's School Preparedness Self-Assessment provides schools with a comprehensive understanding of their current preparedness profile - highlighting that preparedness is a continuous journey, not a one-time decision.

The Self-Assessment process examines the entire environment, from daily routines to crisis management. This analysis provides a complete picture of a school's safety, identifying areas for enhancement, including emergency response procedures, streamlined emergency communication, command and control, operations, and faculty equipment suitability.

Adennill's benchmarking strategy offers a tailored evaluation that highlights strengths, acknowledges progress, and uncovers opportunities for growth - ensuring schools can build resilience with precision and purpose.

No formal program?

Let us help you get started. Our assessment process is one of many tools we offer to ensure you adopt a preparedness program that is designed specifically for your school's unique needs.

Program in place?

Adennill's self-assessment can diagnose strengths and weaknesses in your plan and recommend the most cost-effective measure to ensure your school has a culture of preparedness.

The Adennill School Preparedness Self-Assessment:

- Offers a diagnostic tool that provides an in-depth valuation of your organization's preparedness
- Measures current performance levels
- Assesses your preparedness against a model School Preparedness program
- Identifies the most cost-effective improvements
- Establishes a baseline
- Structures improvement metrics to ensure the best possible return on the resources invested in preparedness

Adennill provides a 60-minute self-assessment, followed by a detailed analysis, benchmarking, and presentation of findings to you and your team. These findings combined with our extensive experience in emergency response, crisis management and crisis communications can be used to help your school enhance its' preparedness profile and mitigate threats and respond effectively in an emergency.

Adennill is currently engaged in helping to keep hundreds of public and private schools (K-12 and higher education), and tens of thousands of students safer. Adennill is a national leader in emergency response, crisis management, crisis communications, and workplace violence.
