PNTC Scholarship Info (Oregon)

The first half of our two scholarships awards ($1250.00 each) were forwarded to the schools our winners are attending. Joshua Duval is attending Bates Technical College for Diesel and Heavy Equipment. Jessica Jordan is attending Seattle Central College for Cabinetry & Architectural Wood Working.

I have received some push back on some of the previous award winners (years past) and the organizations that these people attended. If this is a new school, I verify the status of the organization and the organization's standing within the state the person wants to attend. Some of these schools have short, but intense training schedules, 8 hours a day for sometimes under a month. The question then becomes: What is too short or what is a hobby course and most important, what is the benefit to the individual? While Washington state has four large and excellent vocational institutions, spending a considerable amount of time attending these schools, while living at OTHER than their parent's home it can become a very difficult situation to manage. We haven't lost any scholarship people yet!

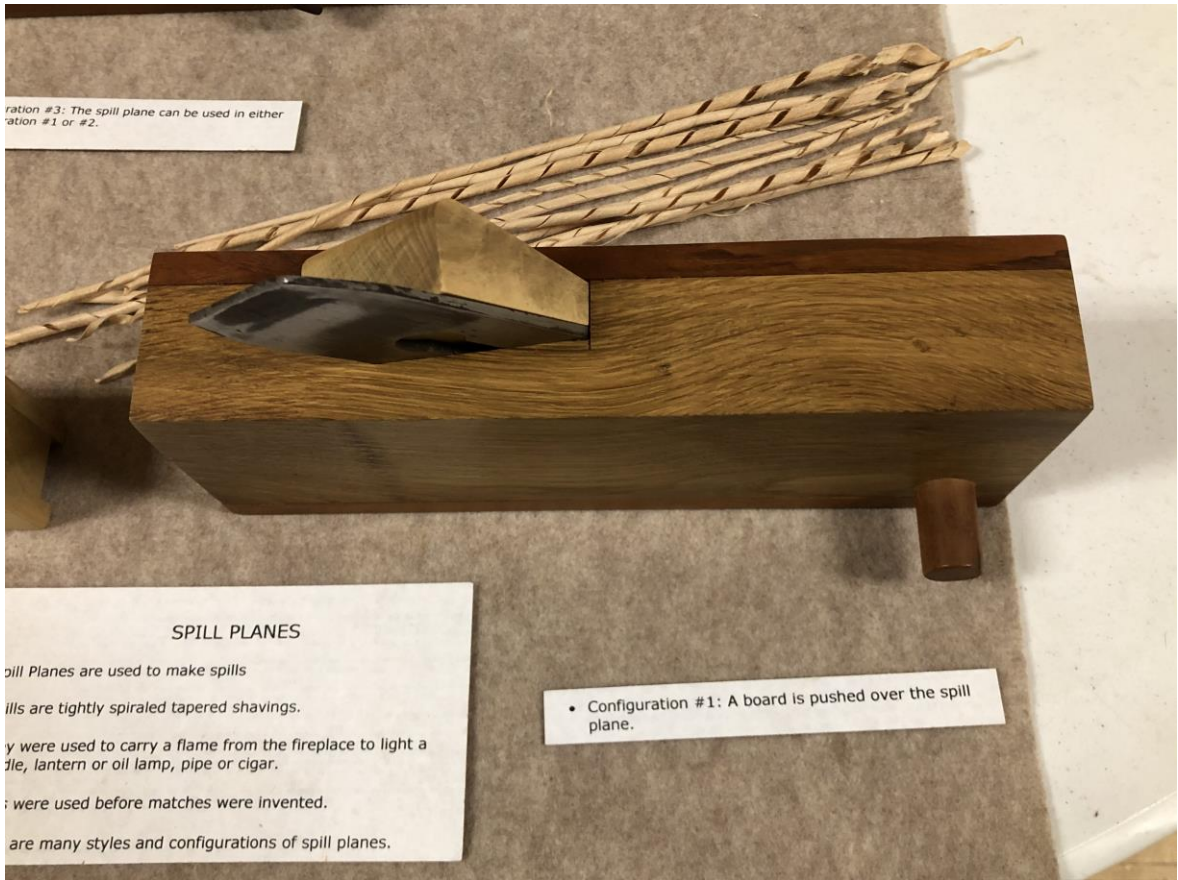

While this is a beneficial model used throughout the United States it is NOT the only way to impart knowledge and skills to an individual. (Boeing Example) I spent a good part of my life teaching and training individuals how to build, repair and service aircraft. Some courses were months long, some were no more than several hours. Does this invalidate a specific training courses (module) because of the time allotted to a specific building or repair task? It's not for a specific technician to tell me what is wrong with the item, only that it doesn't work. Another person will check the item itself, note specific problems and write-up a corrective action(s), maybe going back to the original manufacture.

We had a previous scholarship winner that took a wood working course (three months long) and she has built some beautiful items. She's employed making a living! What else could we have given her?

The current balance is $356.63 in the Scholarship Fund I keep for use.

If you have any ideas on how to improve and change the scholarship program please bring it to the floor for discussion.

Michael J. Hyink
Scholarship Chairperson

October 12, 2019 Meeting Notes

Introduction of officers and volunteers – Bill Racine

New Members and Guests

Newsletter Committee – Jim Halloran

The Committee developed the following options:

1. Put the newsletter on the website. Leave it unrestricted. Anyone could view.
2. Put the newsletter on the website. Password access, only members can view.
3. Put the newsletter on a separate website, with password access.
4. Do a direct email of the newsletter as an attachment

The committee recommended options 1, and 4 for consideration by the membership at large.

A motion was proposed, seconded, and passed to put the newsletter on the unrestricted website, and to do a direct email of the newsletter as an attachment. The motion was amended to place the maps, and list of officers contact information in a separate part of the website, for security.

PNTC Scholarship and other Info (Washington)

The current balance held for immediate use from the main Scholarship Fund is $251.90.

Fantastic News form October's Notes! The club has received private donation of $4,000.00 from Grace Scott, wife of Ian Scott former member of the PNTC. George Anderson referred Grace to us, a big "THANKS" for his referral. I'll be sending her a "Thank You Card and Flowers".

I am working on some new ideas and ways to streamline the scholarship process. This is the 10th year we have been assisting worthy individuals. I will have some ideas/concepts for your consideration early next year. I am working with John Howard in ways to inform more people.

The two individuals, Joshua Duval – Bates Technical College and Jessica Jordan – Seattle Central College) for 2019 were notified of their selection and scholastic requirements. The first payments have been forwarded to the schools the individuals are attending. NO scholarship funds are given directly to those selected. Funds are forwarded to the different school for the benefit of the individuals.

Any questions?

Michael J. Hyink
Scholarship Chairperson

Editors Note: I asked bill to write about the process and the amount of time and effort required preparing and organizing for our tool auctions. While Bill doesn't get specific about the hours involved; you can easily read between the lines, and see there is a considerable effort by Bill and the other volunteers who help him JH

Disposing of Your Tool Collection

By Bill Racine

Now here is a subject that we will all have to think about sooner or later. I have been asked to describe the procedure our Pacific Northwest Tool Collectors club goes through in disposing of collections offered to us. I hope this narrative will answer many of your questions and perhaps give you inspiration.

I am sure you wonder what exactly will happen to your tools should you choose to use the club to dispose of them; this narrative is here to help you with those questions.

At our regular meetings, we often have auctions of tools donated or entrusted to our club for disposal. This gives members and non-members an avenue for disposing of their collection and having it go to others who want and will appreciate all their collecting efforts.

I am often called when someone is interested in letting go of their tools. If that person or estate is in the Portland or surrounding area, I will go to them to see what they have and let them know the best way of handling their collection. If the tools are in the Seattle area, there are members there to do the same. If it is determined that an auction is the way to go, I will pick up the tools—which I can always use help loading and unloading those boxes—and bring them to my place, PNTC's usual Oregon meeting location. This usually takes a whole and sometimes be it a very long day. I then lay out all the tools on tables, arrange them into about 50 to 75 lots per auction, and tag them with lot numbers. This takes any many hours over two, three, even four days, depending on the number of tools. Lots consists of one tool or a group of tools—depending on their value.

After all the organization is completed, I write a manifest describing each lot. After carrying all the lots upstairs, I then store them until laying them out again for preview by members early on the day of the auction. This takes hours and hours again.

Our club's auction team from then on runs the show. Our computer team records the prices realized, makes a manifest showing those prices, and the final total is then printed out. That evening after the meeting I take the totals and deduct the club's commission (15% for members and 20% for non-members). I immediately write a check to the seller and send it along with a copy of the manifest showing the realized prices. This and other loose ends take up another two hours. When a member's larger collection auctions for over $10,000, from that mark on the club's commission drops to 10 percent.

PNTC does not dispose the larger tools such as drill presses, table saws, radial arm saws, etc.

Please note: In picking up a seller's collection, I am always in need of help in loading and unloading the boxes. If you have questions, I may be contacted at (503) 628-1488. Our club is happy to help.
