

BOWERY JAZZ MESSENGERS

Openings available for young jazz musicians this fall!

The Bowery Jazz Messengers is a New York City-based 501(c)(3) non-profit organization harnessing the power of jazz to uplift and serve communities in need.

Founded by LaGuardia Performing Arts alumnus Bato Aydelotte and directed by Grammy nominated artist/producer, Chris Theberge, the program offers opportunities for junior and high school jazz musicians to serve their community by performing for individuals experiencing homelessness and poverty at NYC's Bowery Mission and for other nonprofit organizations serving those in need.

The initiative provides young musicians with a positive environment to enhance their musicianship while receiving guidance from professional musician mentors in NYC.

Openings are available for musicians in 7th-12th grades for the 2026/2027 program cycle. There is no cost for participation. For more information, please visit Boweryjazzmessengers.org.
