Little Rock Farm, sitting on 55 acres nestled at the bottom of 10 Mile Hill is owned and operated by Stephanie Zink. Stephanie is the third generation to work on this farm which was purchased by her grandparents, Otto and Florence Schack in 1938.

At Little Rock Farm, we offer certified organic seasonal produce, grass-fed beef, pasture-raised chicken, and turkey. Our beef and poultry are raised right here on the farm. No hormones or antibiotics are used. We also offer pork which is raised on a neighboring farm. Meat is available at the farm in a variety of cuts and can be purchased at our weekly farmstand or ordered through our website. Homemade baked goods, jams, jellies, eggs, raw honey, and other locally produced food items are also offered here.

While at Little Rock Farm you can walk about the barnyard, see the cattle and Elvis the donkey, and visit the greenhouses and fields. All produce is sustainable and organically raised.

You can also hear about the importance of composting. Pick up some information on how you can compost at home and learn how easy it is to do and how good it is for the environment.
