Tough day costs Cats bid to NCAAs

The Villanova men's cross country team is picking up the pieces after hearing that it will not be advancing to the NCAA Championships. At what served as both the District II and IC4A Championships, the Wildcats did not run as well as they would have liked and placed fourth in the IC4A Championships and fifth in District II.

Ahead of 'Nova in the IC4A's were Iona, the U.S. Military Academy and Georgetown, who placed first. The Hoyas finally beat the Cats after chasing them all season. However, it seems that it was actually the Cats who beat themselves.

"We should have performed better at the IC4A's," said Head Coach Marty Stern. "As a team we are just going to look forward to the indoor season."

Still, it is hard to fathom that 'Nova, a team consistently ranked No. 3 or 4 in the country, could not be afforded a bid to compete for the NCAA title.

"I think right now we could get out there and beat any of those teams, but we had our chance to perform well when it was on the line and we didn't," said Louie Quintana.

Many things went wrong for the Cats on Saturday, including the collapse of senior Mike Going.

the collapse of senior Mike Going. However, neither the men nor the coach blame Going for their misfortune.

"Mike Going blacked out, but we are not using it as an excuse," said Stern. "He gave it all he had even when he had nothing left. It is just a credit to him as an athlete."

The two bright spots for the Cats were juniors Quintana and Ken Nason. Quintana, who finished fifth in the IC4A's with a time of 29:19, earned a birth to vie for the individual NCAA title on Monday at Lehigh University. More of a surprise was Ken Nason's eighth place IC4A finish and second place finish for the team. Usually the third quarter scorer for 'Nova, Nason ran a great race and crossed the line only eight seconds behind Quintana.

"Although we can't dwell upon this, we are never going to forget it, especially as we enter the next season," said Quintana.

This week Quintana cut back training in order to rest for the NCAA's, but he is in great condition.

"It's tough running a 10K race after just coming off another," said Quintana. "But I feel pretty confident and I am feeling great physically."

UNH places second: The University of New Hampshire men's cross country team finished second at the Intercollegiate Amateur Athletic Association of America Cross Country Championships Saturday in Leesburg, Va. UNH competed in the 24-team University Division, the lowest level among three divisions for schools not vying for a spot in the NCAA championships.

RU men's x-country 10th

The Scarlet Knights finished 10th with 235 points in a field of 30 yesterday in the IC4A University Championship race. Billy Grogan, who finished 13th for the Scarlet Knights, was named to the All Eastern University Division team.
