FAST ON THE FIELD, FASTER ON THE TRACK

Whether he is wearing spikes on a Mondo track or cleats on a turf playing field, Virginia Tech sprinter/wide receiver André Davis seems to be hard to keep up with and even harder to catch.

Davis is more well known for his accomplishments on the football field than on the track but with a nickname like "The Blur" people are beginning to recognize his talent in both sports. With the help of two solid athletic programs and Tech's state-of-the-art facilities, Davis is evolving into one of the nation's top sprinters and wide receivers.

The sophomore from Niskayuna, N.Y., came to Tech as a football player and has had quite an impact on the field, but Davis has also been able to excel in his other love - track and field.

With football consuming all of his fall and a large part of his spring, Davis has been somewhat restricted in his time to train, however, that seems to have had little effect on the sprinter's performances. Last season Davis won both the 100-meter and the 200-meter dashes at the Outdoor IC4A Championships. His time of 20.78 in the 200 was not only a personal best and school record, but it also qualified him for the NCAA Championships. May 23 was not the only outstanding date of Davis' 1999 season, however. He also managed to chalk up five Atlantic 10 Conference Championship victories and set four school records over the course of the indoor and outdoor seasons.

One of the remarkable obstacles Davis overcame was the fact that he was only able to practice on the track for one week prior to his outdoor conference championship races. The dual-sport star was busy with spring football practice throughout the month of April. Despite the limited training time, he was still able to return to the track and win the 100 and 200 in conference-record times of 10.24 and 21.02 and anchor the winning 4x100-meter relay on his way to earning A-10 Outstanding Male Performer of the Meet.

"I tried as hard as I could in practice given the circumstances I was in," Davis said. "Coach (Russ) Whitenack was able to work with me, but I just have to thank the Lord for giving me the ability to stay fast and run good times."

Davis also had a late start to this indoor season, but was able to return to the track and win his first two races, the 60 and 200, at the Virginia Tech Invitational on February 5. The reason for the late start was once again football, but this time it was not just practice that kept him out of the spikes, it was the opportunity of a lifetime - playing for the national championship in the Sugar Bowl.

Davis and the Hokies put together Tech's finest football season ever, going an undefeated 11-0 in the regular season and playing in college football's national championship game. Although the Hokies lost to Florida State in the end, Davis and the team were extremely proud of their accomplishments and still managed to end up with a No. 2 ranking at the end of the season.

"I am so proud of our whole team and just the way we approached the whole season," Davis said. "We approached it one game at a time and we went into the national championship game and just gave it our all."

Davis should also be proud of his individual accomplishments on the season. His outstanding speed enabled him to score nine touchdowns on 35 receptions, earn all-BIG EAST honors as a wide receiver and finish the season just .4 yards short of Elmo Wright's 31 year-old Division I yards per reception record.

Even though these are great numbers, Davis feels more proud of the numbers he puts up in track because it is a much more individual endeavor and he is the only one who controls the outcome.

"It means a lot more to me to do well in track personally than it does to do well in football because football is more a team sport," Davis said. "On the track if I make one mistake that could be the race."

"I try to really focus on what I have to do for track and try to take that as seriously as possible."

In his young career, the speedster has been able to produce many fine accomplishments, however, he has much bigger goals in mind for his future. Davis hopes to qualify for the NCAA Championships, win the indoor IC4A titles in the 60 and 200 and repeat his performance at the IC4As in his last outdoor season.

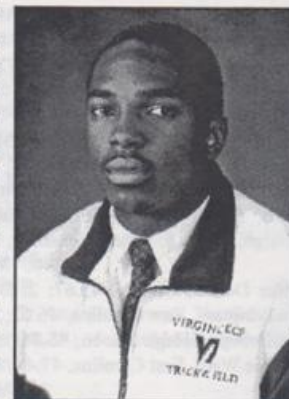

"My main goal is to try and qualify for nationals this year, and my goal at IC4As is to win both events," Davis said. "I feel training has been going well and I feel like I have a good opportunity to get out there and give everybody a run for their money."

When looking to the even more distant future, Davis has dreams of competing at the Olympic trials and playing football in the NFL.

Davis said he would like to qualify for the Olympic trials this year, but with the restrictions football and school place on him, it seems unlikely. Although these games may come and go without Davis, the junior did say he would like to put some effort toward the 2004 games. He will have to schedule time around a possible NFL career, however, to do that.

Davis' speed has carried him past cornerbacks in football, to numerous conference titles in track, and who knows, it may take "The Blur" all the way to next level, whatever that may be.

"I was always pretty good but I always wanted to get that national recognition," Davis said. "I've never been able to compete at the national level and that's always been my goal."
