President's Message

Oh My Gosh! By looking at the calendar the summer is almost half gone and here I am trying to get my spring chores done. Yesterday I hauled off a load of branches and stuff brought down by the winter and spring storms. I mostly do that job in the afternoons if it isn't raining. Mornings are a no go as the grass is wet from rain and dew until noontime.

The grass is getting tall in places as I only mowed about half of my yard so far. Early on I waited for the basque flowers to bloom and go to seed. Then I knew the Mariposa lilies would be coming thick they are now in great abundance. Then I have to let them alone so they can go to seed for next year's crop.

My shoes get wet from being out in the yard early, like filling up the bird feeders, from all the dew. And I can be a little careless when watering down my greenhouse which then reminds me I need to put on a coat of waterproofing soap on my shoes. And I suppose that would be a good time to replace my broken shoelace.

The squirrels figured out they could reach my bird feeder by jumping from the tree trunk. I have a plan for that that I can get to soon. My temporary solution keeps out the squirrels but it's only about 5 feet from the ground where it can be reached by the deer.

My wife wanted to clear out the garage this summer, back in June I think. Though that time has passed, I don't think that means I'll get out of that job. And I need to move some stuff out of that old shed out back as the roof is leaking like a sieve. Which reminds me the kitchen sink is dripping worse so I'll need to figure out how to get it apart to replace the O-rings.

There are three posts to dig in so I can mount on them some bluebird houses which I haven't built yet. I heard a squabble which usually means I need to mix up a batch of sugar water for the hummingbirds.

I used to imagine retirement included sitting out on the front porch in my rocking chair watching the world go by. How boring!

Good Luck and Good Growing
