President's Message

I undertook to dunk all my orchids recently. I had saved water and "stuff" from cleaning out my aquarium and mixed it in with my dunk water. It makes sense in that this water is then enhanced with organic fertilizers that may contain many micro-nutrients that might not be present in store-bought preparations.

It is also becoming very apparent that it is necessary to water more often as this hot weather and no rain resulting in lower humidity rules this summer. The use of foggers and humidifiers can be very helpful. I can also be a little messy and spill a lot when I'm watering. It all comes out as humidity in the end. We can only hope that our little world in western U.S. doesn't run out of water.

I am finding it more than a little alarming to see all the new housing being built around here. And then there are stories about various communities in the western states that are having to start rationing water and tearing out lawns to limit the use of their limited resources. With the drought giving us less and less rain and snow, these conditions may worsen and maybe we ain't seen nothin' yet!
