

PAWSIC

PAWSIC Announces New Partnership with Open Wound Research

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

September 30, 2024

Quakertown, Pennsylvania – The Post Acute Wound & Skin Integrity Council (PAWSIC) is thrilled to announce an exciting new partnership with Open Wound Research (OWR), a leading organization committed to promoting transparency and evidence-based care in wound care through open and transformative research methods, tools, and data access. This collaboration represents a significant step forward in fulfilling PAWSIC’s mission to enhance clinical excellence and improve patient outcomes in wound and skin integrity care.

Through this partnership, PAWSIC and OWR will work together on innovative research initiatives, data access, and advocacy efforts, all aimed at advancing the highest standards of wound care. Both organizations share a deep commitment to transparency, evidence-based practices, and ensuring quality care for patients. Together, PAWSIC and OWR are poised to explore collaborative possibilities that will benefit their members, Board of Directors, and the broader wound care community.

“OWR’s commitment to transparency and evidence-based outcomes perfectly aligns with PAWSIC’s mission,” said Dr. Jeanine Maguire, PhD, MPT, CWS, President of PAWSIC. “This partnership offers a unique opportunity for our Board of Directors and members to engage in cutting-edge projects that will drive advancements in wound care, benefiting clinicians, patients, and the entire field.”

“PAWSIC’s advocacy for quality skin and wound care prevention and management is necessary now more than ever”, said Zwelithini Tunyiswa, Chief Executive Officer of Open Wound Research. “We are proud to support that mission, and the extraordinary team that has been assembled by PAWSIC”.

OWR’s focus on advancing and supporting evidence-based care complements PAWSIC’s dedication to professional development and education for clinicians, especially in the post-acute care setting. By working together, both organizations aim to break new ground in wound care research and offer solutions that will directly impact both patients and healthcare providers.

About PAWSIC

PAWSIC is committed to supporting healthcare providers who specialize in wound and skin integrity. Through advocacy, professional development, and education, we strive to elevate the standards of wound care and empower clinicians to provide the highest quality care possible. Learn more at www.pawsic.org.

PAWSIC

About Open Wound Research

Open Wound Research (OWR) is dedicated to promoting transparency and advancing the science of wound care through evidence-based practices. OWR conducts and disseminates leading research that supports clinical decisions and improves patient outcomes in wound management. Learn more at www.openwoundresearch.com.

For more information, please contact: www.pawsic.org

Contact us>