Topic:

JOINT-ATTENTION

In partnering with parents and professionals, we communicate effective strategies for children with varying abilities to become more successful in their environments. We create strategies specific to challenges which may arise on a daily basis.

Joint-Attention involves a process of sharing another's experience of looking at an object or observing an event, and is felt to be crucial to later language development and the ability to engage in play and social interactions.

During our training we will share strategies and practices on how to engage in joint-attention behaviors across a variety of settings and individuals.

The cost is FREE to A Balanced Child parents and $30.00 to outside parents and professionals. Please contact by phone or email at team@abalancedchild.org with questions or to reserve.
