CHECK IN WITH THE CROWS

The crows came to visit today, mentions Bartholemew Sassafras and his dog, Bob Barker. The crows come once a month to visit these two, and to eat some of the seeds put out for them to nibble. The crows and Bartholemew have a growing friendship, the first bud of friendship that Bartholemew has ever had. We like to check in on them in this relationship monthly to see what is going on in their lives. Stay tuned for next month's check in.

PUT ON TOOTHPASTE TRIAL

Emily Wigglesworth was called out by her little sister, Petunia O' Wigglesworth, for not brushing her teeth twice a day. Upon further inspection, her parents found her breath smelled of garlic one night before bed. Emily is to be put on trial later this week to see whether she will have to go to juvie or just pay a massive fee. We hope that she is not executed, but if so, prayers will be held at her gravesite. On September 17th, we will see what the future of this youngin looks like. If you have a prediction, please enter it on our website, unewsia.com, for the chance to have it submitted in this paper.

LIONS BURNING DOWN

The Phoenix, Arizona exhibit, Park of The Burning Lion, has been a huge hit to people around America.

Unfortunately, according to recent studies, lions can also be killed by fires just like humans! Due to this discovery, the Park of The Burning Lion, must be shut down, or the company will be sued for animal abuse. The millions of tourists who visited the park just to hear the lion's final and loudest roar will not be allowed to see it even though they traveled miles to be there. A Go Fund Me account has been created for the disappointed tourists, so if you have the money and time, even a dollar or so would be greatly appreciated.

The best tourist site is rated 5 stars, The Dead But Lovely Co.! Book your excursion today at deadbutlovelyco.com. You won't regret it!
