

It's a family thing. The Indie Kids Band is led by 15-year-old twin sisters Anna and Melody Reyes and are backed up by their dad Dan Reyes (and a couple of other great players too). For those familiar with the Chicago music scene, some may know Dan from his long and varied musical past. He is a veteran musician and song writer who most notably played with the successful country band, Jin and Tonic --where he played on the biggest stages with some of the best known artists like Lady Antebellum, The Band Perry, and Lee Brice.

With one CD under his belt, hundreds and hundreds of gigs, and a short stint with the alt-country band, Just South of Heaven, he decided to take some time off to catch his breath and be a dad. During that time his kids were growing up and becoming performing musicians in their own right, making this the perfect time to jump back into music--only this time it is with his twins. The fun is once again, just beginning. Dan plans to continue playing "for as long as they will have me." In 2018, they added David Malatesta on Bass, Mark Warren on drums and they are now complete. Together they have become the INDIE KIDS BAND. The group is cemented together through a love of music, friendship, and family.
