

Happy Monday!

Welcome to the 53rd issue of CSW.

In this issue:

UK Electoral Register Hacked

Tesla Infotainment Jailbreak

Hackers Take on Satellite

And much more...

UK Electoral Register Hacked

For the past year it has been hidden from the public that the electoral register was hacked. The data that was stolen included names and addresses of those who registered to vote between 2014 and 2022.

To read the full story...

Click Here

What's the best password?

"Brazil_Nut", because it's hard to crack.

Tesla Infotainment Jailbreak

Researchers at the Technical University of Berlin have developed a method to jailbreak Tesla's infotainment systems. As a byproduct of this, they have also been able to enable feature that you normally need to pay for such as acceleration boost or heated seats.

To read the full story...

Click Here

Hackers Take on Satellite

Hackers at DEF-CON have been competing to find out if they can hack a satellite. The satellite, launched by SpaceX, is the first time a in orbit satellite has been used.

To read the full story...

Click Here

Quick Links

MOVEit is Worse Than You Think

Click Here

AI Cyber Challenge Launched

Click Here

Android 14 Allows 2G to be Disabled

Click Here

cybersec weekly

This email was sent to {{contact.EMAIL}}
You've received it because you've subscribed to our newsletter.

View in browser | Unsubscribe

