

Happy Monday!

Welcome to the 49th issue of CSW.

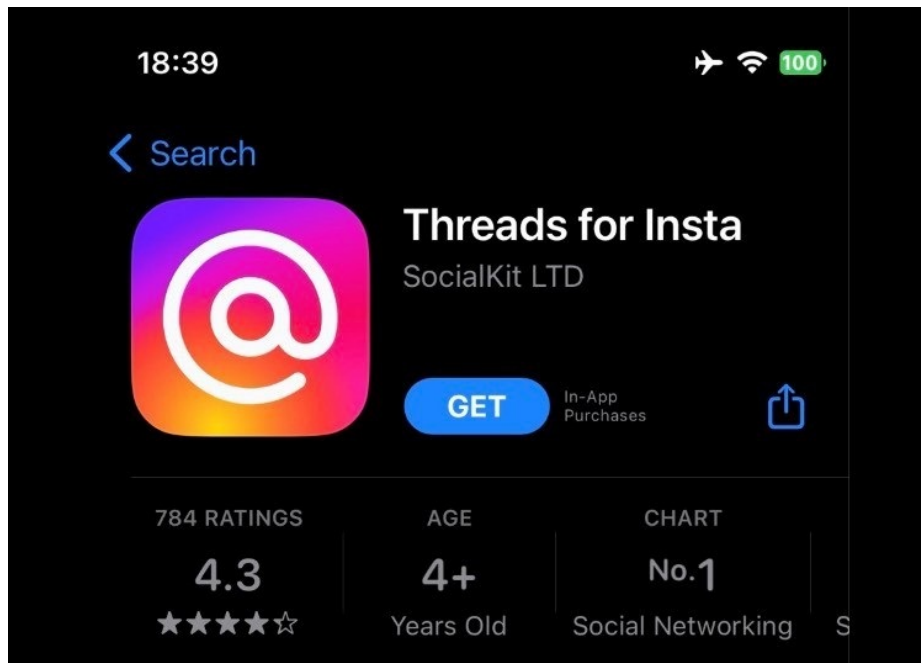

In this issue:

Fake THREADS App Climbs to Number 1

Former Security Engineer Arrested for $9 Million Crypto Hack

New CVSS Version Unveiled

And much more...

Fake THREADS App Climbs to Number 1

Before Instagram got a chance to release Threads in Europe SocialKit LTD seized the opportunity to create a fake app (as pictured above). It quickly reached number 1, with over 300,000 people downloading the imposter, before Apple realised their mistake and removed it from the App Store.

To read the full story...

Click Here

---

Why do Microsoft employees

look nervous?

They are always on Edge.

---

Former Security Engineer Arrested for $9 Million Crypto Hack

A 34 year old man from New York has been charged with wire fraud and money laundering. After stealing the money he was offered a white hat bounty meaning he had to return the large majority of the funds. This, however has later caught up to him.

To read the full story...

Click Here

New CVSS Version Unveiled

The latest version of the Common Vulnerability Scoring System offers finer granularity in base metrics, simplifies threat metrics, and enhances the effectiveness of assessing environment-specific security requirements. It also includes supplemental attributes like Automatable, Recovery, Value Density, Vulnerability Response Effort, and Provider Urgency.

To read the full story...

Click Here

Quick Links

Satellites lack standard security mechanisms

Click Here

Fake PoC for Vulnerability Exposes Researchers to Malware

Click Here

Who Was Behind Hacks on Uber and Rockstar?

Click Here

cybersec weekly

This email was sent to {{contact.EMAIL}}
You've received it because you've subscribed to our newsletter.

View in browser | Unsubscribe

