Happy Monday!

Welcome to the 45th issue of CyberSec Weekly.
In this issue:

Microsoft Revealed DDoS as Cause of Recent Cloud Outages

France Accuses Russians of Impersonating French Government

Reddit Hackers Threaten to Leak Data Stolen in February Breach

And much more...

Microsoft Revealed DDoS as Cause of Recent Cloud Outages

Microsoft revealed that early June outages of its 365 services and Azure Cloud portal were caused by a distributed denial of service (DDoS) attack. The group, Anonymous Sudan, claimed responsibility for the outages.

To read the full story...

Click Here

I love the smell of my f5 key

It's very refreshing.

France Accuses Russians of Impersonating French Government

French officials accuse Russian actors of launching a digital information manipulation campaign against France, involving fake websites, social media accounts, and Russian embassies, undermining democratic institutions and peaceful debate.

To read the full story...

Click Here

Reddit Hackers Threaten to Leak Data

Stolen in February Breach

The BlackCat ransomware gang claimed to have stolen 80GB of data from Reddit's systems in February. The attack involved a phishing attack, allowing attackers to access internal documents, source code, employee data, and advertisers' information.

To read the full story…

Click Here

Quick Links

Genetic Testing Firm Accused of Violating Privacy

Click Here

Spotify Fined 5 Million Euros for GDPR Violations

Click Here

EU Passes Landmark Artificial Intelligence Act

Click Here