

Happy Monday!

Welcome to the 50th issue of CSW.

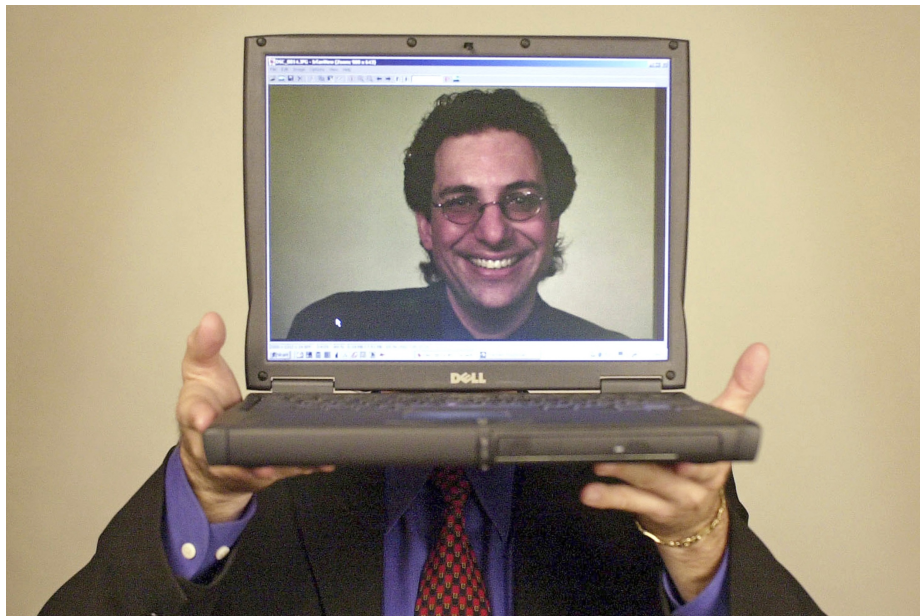

This week:

Famous Hacker Kevin Mitnick Passes Away

Google Creates Red Team for AI Attacks

Amazon Pays $25 Million Fine for Violating Children's Privacy

And much more...

Famous Hacker Kevin Mitnick Passes Away

Kevin Mitnick, who has strongly influenced hacking and cybersecurity, has recently passed at the age of 59. His death came after a long battle with pancreatic cancer.

To read about Kevin's story...

Click Here

How do network engineer's end their relationship?

They send an RST packet.

Google Creates Red Team for AI Attacks

The company announced its AI Red Team just weeks after introducing Secure AI Framework (SAIF), which is designed to provide a security framework for the development, use and protection of AI systems.

To read the full story...

Click Here

Amazon Pays $25 Million Fine for Violating Children's Privacy

The Federal Trade Commission announced that Amazon will pay a $25 million fine to settle alleged children's privacy laws violations related to the company's Alexa voice assistant service.

To read the full story...

Click Here

Quick Links

OpenAI Credentials Stolen by the Thousands

Click Here

MOVEit Set to Earn Hackers $100m

Click Here

Google Fixes 'Bad.Build' Vulnerability

Click Here

cybersec weekly

This email was sent to {{contact.EMAIL}}
You've received it because you've subscribed to our newsletter.

View in browser | Unsubscribe

