My artworks intuitively respond to the recall of experience and memory of place. Created in a non-objective style and formed as a visual dialogue between gestural marks and geometric shapes and forms, this ever-changing process employs a symbolic language between the expressive nature of emotion and the logic of reason. Our recall is impacted by the filters through which we perceive. Surface patinas, scrapings and textures reveal layers from another time and act as witness to what has gone before. This is a response to the shifting nature and impermanence of living each day. These abstract works also draw inspiration from musical improvisation, particularly jazz. Both have a form but finding the line where risk taking meets clumsiness is often hard to locate. These works seek to find a closeness to that line.
