THE MASH TUN & KETTLE:

A LOVE STORY

Fifteen years ago when I first uttered the words, "Start a brewery," friends told me I should meet Bill. Bill has since moved away from New Bern. But before he left town I met Bill. Bill had been talking about doing the same thing and was about to give up. However, he had a storage unit full of brewing stuff he wanted to get rid of. I had to take everything or nothing. I ended up with lots of stuff that took a while to find homes for, and now fifteen years later we are down to two items that we use every brew day.

They are the two stainless steel drums that we turned into our mash tun & kettle. It took three welder friends & some "Howywood" to modify the vessels to be mobile, have all the inlet ports, and false bottoms for both.

These two vessels have been together now for almost 700 batches of beer (the kettle pictured left & the mash tun pictured right).

NEW SEASONAL ON TAP!

We have a new seasonal beer on tap!

Welcome back the Phase 99 Belgian Wit Beer.

Back popular demand, we have developed a beer that is lower in ABV than most of our other beers. The Belgian Wit was perfected during the COVID-19 Pandemic and was released during the Phase 2 of reopening in North Carolina (hence the name Phase 99). The Wit is light, crisp, and full of flavor. It has become a quick favorite.

TAPROOM UPDATE

The new Brewery99 Taproom, designed by Marvin Maune, is on schedule and things are going great. The foundation is complete and we should see a roof by the end of August 2022!
