ROSSON CROW
Babel

"I've always been interested in creating history paintings, except in my version, the history is how we would receive this information today. It's heightened, it's fragmented, it's chaotic, it's psychedelic, it's overwhelming, it's completely enveloping for the viewer, which is how I want people to experience my paintings."

Wildflower Path

"She looks forward by digging into a past she never knew and reimagining the present. It has lakes frozen in the ice age that are yet to be discovered. It has fjord-like reservoirs that no population will tap. These enigmas are not grim or frightening. The agony of their existence is beauty."

YOSUKE ITO
LIGHT IN SILENCE

Children's toys often reveal the underlying structure of the world. Despite their apparent simplicity, they serve as miniature representations of our society or social systems, offering metaphysical insights into our truths. With this in mind, several years ago, I integrated toys into my artwork.
