

How to get the most from any training in Maintenance and Reliability

by Ricky Smith CMRP

1. Review the Training objectives to ensure they meet your needs and the needs of your organization
2. Review the Training objectives with your immediate leadership to ensure there is agreement that this course will impact the plant/organization when you return
3. Ask the instructor to help you create a simple plan (along with metrics) to ensure when you return success is more likely
4. When you return brief your leadership with the following:
 - 2-3 Things you learned that you recommend to change
 - A simple plan how to implement your recommendations using the “Crawl, Walk, Run methodology
 - Recommend metrics (leading and lagging metrics if possible) you will use to measure what you change or improve
5. Make sure your plan has “Quick Wins” up front
