

INFORMED CONSENT FOR COPARENTING COACHING SERVICES

This document contains important information about the professional services and business policies of Between Two Homes®, LLC. By signing this agreement, you give permission to Bradley S. Craig, LMSW-IPR, CFLE through Between Two Homes®, LLC to provide Coparenting Coaching services for you. Please read this information carefully, note any questions so they can be discussed, initial each page, and sign off on the last page.

THE COACHING PROCESS

Coparenting Coaching is a supportive relationship with a coach whose job it is to work closely with you to support your appropriate coparenting behaviors without suffering more hurt or inflicting more damage on others than is necessary. In some cases, the client, the coach, and the client's attorney can work as a team to focus on the issues that are most important in your situation. Sometimes the intensity of the emotions associated with a breakup can lead people into doing things that inflict needless pain on their children and others. Because your coach has your best interest at heart, you can expect your coach to let you know when you may be doing this and to be there in your corner as you work to replace unwanted behaviors with ones that will encourage a more favorable resolution. It can be useful in the litigated family law disputes and is part of the Collaborative Law divorce process in which lawyers and mental health professionals work as a team to provide a strategy for achieving reasonable settlement while minimizing the damage to the family.

PROFESSIONAL COMMITMENT

During the initial consultation period, you and your coach will jointly determine if your coach is the appropriate Coparenting Coach to work with you. If not, your coach will refer you to other professionals within Between Two Homes®, LLC or outside of the agency. The coaching role is a guiding and supportive relationship; however it is not therapy. If at any time while working together, your coach determines that you would benefit from collateral work with other professionals, your coach will discuss this with you, and if needed, will provide you with the names of appropriate professionals. Examples of such referrals would include psychotherapists and physicians. If at any time during the coaching process you have any questions about the services being provided, please ask for clarification. Your initial impressions, suggested procedures and goals, and your feelings about whether you are comfortable working with your coach, are all an important part of the process and are essential to a successful client-professional relationship.

SESSIONS AND AVAILABILITY

A Coparenting Coaching session is typically scheduled for 2 hours in duration. During a session, you and your coach may agree to extend the time, in which case you will be charged a prorated fee. If you will be late for a session, please call and leave a message at (800) 239-3971 or e-mail us. If we do not hear from you, your coach will wait for 15 minutes at the office, after which time your coach will not be available and you will need to reschedule. When you make an appointment, that time is reserved for you. If you are unable to make an appointment, cancellation by phone or e-mail is expected. You will be charged for appointments not canceled with at least 48 hours advance notice. You will be responsible for the entire cost of the session.

We try to return calls the same day and typically return calls during regular business hours Monday-Friday unless other arrangements have been made. Our office is closed during the weekends. The best way to contact us is by e-mail.

EMERGENCY SITUATIONS

Although we check our voice mail and e-mail often, your coach may not be available for immediate emergencies, nor are we available 24-hours a day. If you require this kind of professional support, please let your coach know and your coach will refer you to other mental health professionals who offer this service. If a situation should arise in which you believe that immediate help is needed and Between Two Homes®, LLC not available, we suggest that you call your primary care physician or any hospital emergency room. You can also call 911.

CLIENT CONFIDENTIALITY AND CLIENT SAFETY

The coaching process is designed to be confidential and supportive. While the role is designed to be confidential, you are encouraged to notice court professionals such as a custody evaluator, parenting coordinator/facilitator, or court connected therapists of your involvement with your Coparenting Coach. Your coach will protect your confidentiality as much as possible, however if subpoenaed your coach may be required to divulge information to the court.

If a client communicates directly to the Coparenting Coach a threat of physical harm to an identifiable person, or damage to an identifiable person's property, your coach is required by law to warn the intended victim and notify the police. If your coach believes that a client is in such mental or emotional condition where he/she poses a danger to him/herself or others, your coach may breach confidentiality or contact others to facilitate the client's safety. If your coach has a reasonable suspicion that a client may be unable to care for him/herself, or may be unable to provide for his/her basic personal needs for clothing and shelter, your coach may breach confidentiality to facilitate the client's safety.

If, in your coach's professional capacity, your coach has reasonable suspicion of child abuse or neglect, or abuse of a dependent, disabled or elder adult (age 65 or older), your coach is required by law to file a report with the designated protective agencies.

If the use of a collection agency becomes necessary, Between Two Homes®, LLC will furnish them with the required information to collect the fees due. While this summary of exceptions to client confidentiality should prove helpful in informing you about the potential breaches of confidentiality, you should be aware that the laws governing these issues are often complex and the staff at Between Two Homes®, LLC are not attorneys. We encourage our active discussion of these issues. However, if you would like more specific advice, formal legal consultation may be desirable.

RELEASE OF INFORMATION

By signing this document, you agree to allow your coach to fully communicate with your attorney of record if you have one. In addition, in order to more effectively provide coparenting coaching, it may be important for your coach to communicate with any previous or concurrently treating professionals. To this end, your coach may ask you to sign a confidentiality waiver form allowing such communication.

Payments may be in cash, credit card, or check made out to Between Two Homes®, LLC. There will be a $35.00 charge on all returned checks. Costs for copying of records by the Coparenting Coach and other administrative costs will be deducted billed to you. Copies of records produced by Between Two Homes, LLC. are billed at the same fee as charged by the District Clerk's office. Time in administrative tasks, including correspondence to parties, attorneys, or reports to the court, is billed at the Coparenting Coach's standard hourly fee.

CHILDREN IN THE MIDDLE COPARENTING CLASS

We have found that families that have attended coparenting education have a greater success rate, better follow-through, feel more empowered, and utilize their time more effectively. Completion of both parts of the Children in the Middle live class or the Between Two Homes™: Making Two Homes Work online class within the past six months is strongly encouraged prior to the initial session.
