ENGLISH TRADITION

Producing the world's most comfortable, best quality and healthiest mattresses by hand is a English tradition we are proud of.

TRADITIONAL NATURAL SLEEP

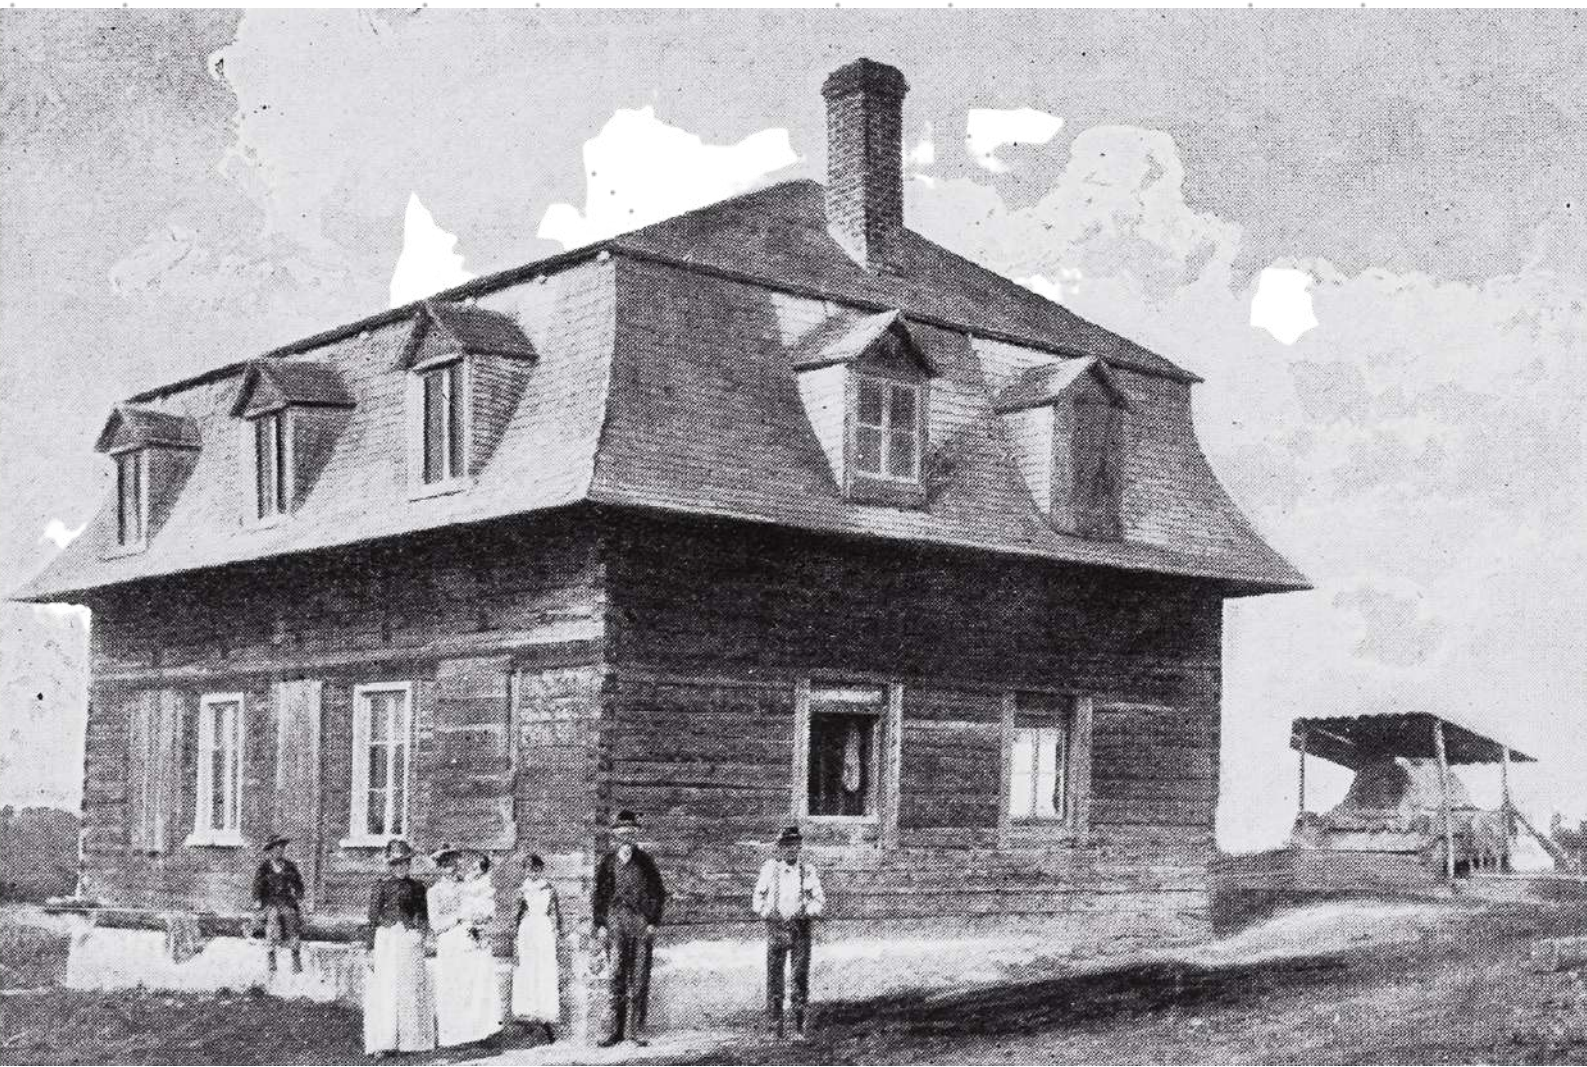

Covering more than 23% of the world's land mass, the British Empire was once the largest empire the world has ever seen. Britain, which has gathered many cultures throughout history, has been the place where the world-famous British mattress culture developed with its silks brought from the Silk Road, cashmere from India and the world's best sheep wool produced in the Yorkshire region. Bed culture in Britain has turned into an art, especially in the Yorkshire region, and the world's highest quality mattresses have begun to be made. These mattresses became known as the Royal Mattress, when the British Kings and Queens gifted them to the heads of states under the umbrella of the British Empire.

TRADITION FROM GENERATIONS

In 1895, William Richard, who was also a farmer in Yorkshire, started to make mattress and quilts from the wool he obtained from the sheep he raised

His biggest assistant was his wife Elizabeth, who carefully sewed all the mattresses and quilts. William, who started to work in the attic of the house, turned a part of the barn into a workshop as the demand increased over time and named its products the Royal Mattress, known by the public.

A woman is depicted in a highly detailed historical costume, likely from the 17th or 18th century. She wears a half-mask that covers the left side of her face, leaving her right eye and part of her cheek visible. Her hair is styled in voluminous, curly blonde locks, topped with a large, ornate headdress featuring a prominent red feather and a small floral ornament. The costume includes a large, ruffled collar made of red velvet and gold lace. The bodice is dark with gold embroidery and a row of pearls. The sleeves are wide and puffed, with gold trim and pearls. The skirt is dark with gold floral patterns. The background is a light-colored wall with decorative vertical panels.

HIGH-END NATURAL MATTRESS

Our mattresses are made of the highest quality materials that can be used without sacrificing their naturalness.

All of our mattresses are handmade using only natural fillings:
Include Wool, Cashmere, Horsehair, Silk, Cotton,...

BRITISH WOOL

First class New Zealand and Australia natural wools is used in our Mattress production. Wool is relaxing and allows you to sleep comfortably. You wake up in the morning rested and fit.

Because wool takes the static negative energy accumulated in the body. It does not make you sweat, it takes your tiredness and body pain.

CASHMERE

Known as 'fabric of kings' in history,
cashmere;

It has been a symbol of nobility, elegance and wealth for centuries. It is still one of the rarest and natural materials in the world today.

It has excellent softness, temperature regulation, breathability, odor resistance and humidity control.

SILK

The highest quality silk fillings from Asia countries keeps you cool and regulates the temperature with its air permeability feature. Also, this padding in your mattress allows the mattress to adapt to your body movements faster.

COTTON

Cotton is a type of fiber that absorbs moisture in its natural state and provides softness.

Cotton fibers are one of the natural fibers that almost never cause an allergic reaction and do not irritate human skin. Cotton provides better air circulation and thus helps absorb body moisture.

HORSEHAIR

Few materials can replace horsehair in bedding. Horsehair acts as a air exhauster. When you wet the horsehair with water and then shake it off, you would see that it dries instantly. It instantly releases heat and moisture. So, at the right temperature, you fall asleep faster and enjoy a deep, uninterrupted and refreshing sleep.

BENEFITS OF A WOOL MATTRESS

Wool mattresses are recognized for featuring an incredible variety of benefits. Below are just a few of the reasons why wool mattresses reign supreme and can offer an overall better night's sleep.

ECO-FRIENDLINESS

Some mattresses are known for leaving a large carbon footprint on the Earth. Luckily, wool mattresses have quite the opposite effect. Wool is a 100-percent natural material that is biodegradable, meaning that it features a less harmful manufacturing process and it can break down quickly when you dispose of it. If you want eco-friendly bedding material, then wool mattresses are the way to go.

HYPOALLERGENIC

People with sensitive allergies will like wool mattresses because they're manufactured in a way to eliminate potential allergens that can trigger or aggravate their conditions. In addition to this, natural wool is also highly resistant to mold and mildew growth because of its ability to retain and release moisture. For those allergic to dust mites, you'll be happy to know that these pests do not do well in a fabric as breathable as wool.

NATURAL COMFORT

Most people spend a third of our day in bed, so we deserve a mattress that is supportive and comfortable. A wool mattress is soft, warm, and cozy, giving you the ideal sleep environment to promote a long and healthy resting period. No matter what time of day or what time of year, you're bound to find comfort in a wool mattress.

CRUELTY-FREE PRODUCTION

Although wool is obtained from animals, it is done so in a safe and humane manner. Shearing is a completely pain-free and healthy process that actually benefits animals. The gathered wool from these animals is then used to create some of the finest wool bedding available.

VARIETY

Wool isn't just a general type of fabric that comes in one shape and color. There is a wide variety of wool options from which to choose. Some manufacturers will blend various wool options, such as chasmire or lambswool, in order to create a comfortable and personalized sleep option.

MOTION ISOLATION

If you share a mattress with someone, then you know how frustrating it can be when one of you gets out of bed or when you toss and turn at night. All that motion can transfer across the mattress, disturbing the other sleeper. Wool mattresses and toppers are great at absorbing this movement, so you don't need to worry about disturbing your sleeping partner when getting out of bed or changing sleeping positions.

HIGH DURABILITY

Wool is a very durable material that is capable of handling years of abuse. A mattress is a large investment, so you want something that you know will deliver a great sleep experience for a very long time. With a wool bedding option, you can rest assured knowing that your bed won't lose its shape or structural integrity for years to come.

NATURAL FLAME RETARDANT

For maximum safety, it's a good idea to invest in a mattress that is naturally flame retardant. In the United States, fire-retardant mattresses are often produced with synthetic chemicals that can potentially pose a threat to humans. A majority of organic wool mattresses, though, are naturally flame resistant (thanks to wool fibers' excellent moisture-retention abilities), so you don't have to worry about such an impact.

HIGH COMFORT

Wool mattresses are constructed in a manner that they are capable of producing unparalleled pressure point relief, making them ideal bedding options for people dealing with such conditions as arthritis or fibromyalgia.
