

Inward Authority

Upon what you set your mind and convince yourself you need, is often what you'll seek,
and will come to be.

Distractions they are many,
thoughts can go astray,
desires will entice,
will you choose to pray.

Look, the wonderful desires, right there just in reach, convincing new sensations, restructuring underneath.

Your inward choices pulled,
in very different directions, stay rooted in the word, or chase evil deceptions.

Whether good or evil,
what you choose to believe,
will be the desire,
you choose to conceive.

The word comes and goes, your actions will bear fruit, thoughts you tell yourself, will become your truth.

You choose what to think, upon what to set your mind, you choose what to seek,
and therefore what you'll find.

The path of choosing good, sized for a minority,
your choices, good or evil, become your inward authority.
