SHOPPING BLISS

By Carol Daus

Most people come to the library to check out books, study for classes, or attend community programs, but there's also a large contingent of HBPL patrons who come to the library to shop at The Friends Gift Shop.

This well-loved shop opened in April 1975. At that time, it was in the back of the library and its original focus was popular fiction book rentals and art sales. Over the years, it added products and now is known for its carefully curated collection of fun and eclectic merchandise. It's truly the perfect place in town to buy a gift, plus the Gift Shop's proceeds are donated to the Friends of the Library, which are funneled back to the library.

The Friends Gift Shop is definitely a destination spot for the community. "It's a place where they know they can find high-quality, unique merchandise at a reasonable price," says Barbara Voelkel, a member of the FOTL Board of Directors and Gift Shop manager. "Most of our customers love the additional reward of helping support the library with their purchases."

The Gift Shop orders merchandise from vendors who are identified at wholesale gift shows. "Our list of vendors has been added to and refined over many years to find the right collection for the library and the community," says Barbara. In 2024, the Shop purchased merchandise from over 50 licensed vendors.

THE LITTLE LIBRARY THAT CAN!

Oak View Library Story

By Ray Rydell

HBPL's Oak View Library branch has been unconventional since its founding in 1995. It was initially financed through grants and local donations. Ocean View School District provided a long-term lease for the land, and a grant provided a building just under 2,000 square feet. The furniture came from local donors. In early 1998, another grant doubled the size of the library, bringing it to its present size of just under 4,000 square feet. Over the years, FOTL and the Friends of the Children's Library have continued to provide support for the needs of the branch.

It accomplishes this by offering what the neighborhood needs when they need it. From the beginning, the top priority has been the Literacy Program. It started as English as a Second Language program but soon included citizenship and now includes computer-assisted learning. The neighborhood is diverse with a large percentage of Spanish-speaking residents. Asian and African-speaking patrons have also participated.

The Homework Help Program was also one of the first programs offered at the library. It was created in response to library patrons requesting an area where students from the adjacent Oak View neighborhood could study in quiet surroundings. Currently, about 35 students each day participate in The Homework Help Program during school months.

This small, but mighty library also offers a Crafters Corner for aspiring artists, and a Yarn and Conversation Club for those who knit, crochet, embroider or just want to socialize in a friendly environment. Crocheted blankets are donated by the club to local charities.

When the library's Chess Club restarted after the pandemic, some families wanted to play board games and that developed into a monthly event.

There are bingo and loteria nights with winners receiving donated prizes.

Claudia Locke has been the branch manager of Oak View Library since 1995. She has a scrapbook featuring the history of the library and is not at all shy about sharing it. She also loves to share some of the beautiful samples from the Yarn and Conversation Club.

Aaron Herrera has been with Oak View for three years and is the prime mover of the popular Chess Club. When asked if he plays, he said, "I know how to move the pieces and where they go on the board." In his activities with the club, he has demonstrated that he knows quite a bit more about the game!

It's the golden age of Hollywood. For two Vietnamese dreamers, success means conjuring a magical break in a spellbinding novel about the frightening price of fame by the author of The Monstrous Misses Mai.

More like sisters than best friends, Issa Bui and Olivia Nong grew up dreaming of becoming movie stars. But for young Vietnamese women in 1930s Hollywood, the MGM back lot seems unreachable. Undeterred, Issa knows she's meant for great things. The blood of shamans runs through her veins. To find fame in this town, for herself and for Olivia, Issa needs to make connections. For starters, with her dead grandmother Bà Ngoại.

Frightening enough in life—Issa's own mother forbade any contact—Bà Ngoại is even more intimidating in death. A formidable presence of smoke, promises, and pacts, Bà Ngoại introduces Issa and Olivia to her friend on the other side: the late Ava Lin Rang, a singularly magnetic Asian star of the silent screen. Ava coaches, encourages, and utilizes her own unique influence to open doors for her determined protégés.

As Issa begins drawing on her own untapped powers, every dream is coming true. But in a city of illusions, at what cost?

THE LITTLE LIBRARY THAT CAN!

Since digital access is not universal in the Oak View neighborhood, the computers in the little library are busy, not just with electronic games, but with adults looking for employment opportunities and other information.

Volunteers are needed to help support the variety of programs offered at Oak View. The Chess Club and Homework Help Program are especially in need of volunteers. Specific skills are not required, and some volunteers are teenagers and college students.

Starting with almost nothing, Oak View Library now has a large book collection and unique programs benefiting the local community. It has become an institution that Huntington Beach can point to with pride. With a little bit of help from friends, it is truly the Little Library That Can!

THE HOLIDAYS AT HBPL

Wassail Wrap-up

The annual FOTL Wassail Party attracted a large crowd of revelers on Dec. 6 as they cheerfully celebrated the holiday season. FOTL members, friends, and family enjoyed an abundance of delectable refreshments and festive entertainment.

As in past years, the library's conference room was turned into a winter wonderland, complete with greenery, lights, poinsettias, and of course, a Christmas tree. A piano player's repertoire of seasonal songs boosted the holiday spirit inside the room. Raffle prizes were also a hit, along with the beloved signature beverage, wassail, which was enjoyed by many! Thanks to Dina Chavez and Vivian Catalano for making this year's Wassail Party such a success.

A Joyful Reunion

For years, the Friends of the Children's Library (FOTCL) has hosted a production of the Nutcracker ballet by the local youth company, Ballet Etudes, at Central Library.

Many families and friends have made this an annual tradition, and this past year's performance was no exception as members of the Hammond and Sullivan families reunited after many years to see the play together.

"Seeing the Nutcracker is very special for myself and my good friend, Tiffany Sullivan," says mom Karen Hammond, a loyal supporter of the Huntington Beach Public Library.

SHOPPING BLISS

According to Barbara, the most popular products are purses and wallets, jewelry, scarves, a variety of home and garden décor items such as book ends, art glass, garden flags, and wind chimes, umbrellas, journals, children's toys (particularly educational, "non-digital" items), games for all ages, and greeting cards for all occasions. "We also have a small supply of stationery items, such as ear buds, flash drives, spiral notebooks, highlighters, paper, pens, and pencils for those who have forgotten them at home."

Most of the 28 Gift Shop volunteers work one two-hour shift a week in the Shop or substitute as needed. There is generally one volunteer per shift. A shift can include opening or closing the Shop, including preparing the cash register, ringing up sales, assisting customers, restocking merchandise, and light cleaning (if the shift is slow). Up to 12 volunteers sit on the Gift Shop board, which meets once a month.

VOLUNTEER SPOTLIGHT

Sheila Plotkin

BY MIKE SMITH

Sheila Plotkin grew up in Buffalo, New York, where she attended elementary and high school. After graduation, she spent a year studying at the University of Buffalo. Sheila then decided to change things up, so she joined her brother in California. He helped her obtain a position at Litton Industries, where she was employed as an executive assistant.

Around this time, Sheila met her husband-to-be, Matthias, and within a year she was expecting her first baby. After the baby was born, Sheila decided to stay home and over the course of the next few years, she and her husband became parents to three more children.

Sheila enjoyed being a mom and wife and life just sailed on.

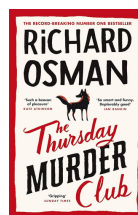

Sheila and Matthias were married for 32 years. After he passed, Sheila decided to go back to work at Mervyn's, where she worked in the credit office. Sheila spent 28 years at Mervyn's Department Store and while there, she also began volunteering simultaneously at Fountain Valley Hospital, where she volunteered for 31 years. Somewhere along the way, one of her children asked her why she was so involved with volunteering, and she told them it was like dancing, and she just had to keep dancing.

One day she was driving by the Huntington Beach Central Library and decided to stop in. She was soon an avid library volunteer. She was assigned to the Gift Shop and spent many happy years there. Then, Sheila decided to work in the Used Books section, where she has been very satisfied for the last 15 years. When asked what she liked most about volunteering at the library, Sheila said that she loved meeting and talking with all the children and their parents. They often greet her with hugs and smiles, and she knows she has made some positive impact in their lives.

Huntington Beach Library is lucky to have such a remarkable lady in its volunteer corps. Sheila has volunteered at Fountain Valley Hospital and Huntington Central Library combined for over 60 years. She has done all this while also hosting foreign exchange students for over 50 years. Bravo Sheila for a life well lived!

BOOK REVIEWS BY FOTL MEMBERS

THE THURSDAY MURDER CLUB

By Richard Osman

REVIEWED BY SUE BREWSAUGH

If you like your mysteries laced with humor, this is the book for you. It features wonderful characters who live in a retirement community in England. They entertain themselves by attempting to solve old murder cases. They call themselves the Thursday Murder Club, because the Jigsaw Room was available for 2 hours on Thursday. Because they don't want random people attempting to join them, they book the name under the name Japanese Opera: A Discussion. Nobody has ever dropped in for their discussions.

The author is Richard Osman, an English comedian. And, boy does it show. This book has great comedic moments. But they are blended beautifully with excellent character development, a good plot, and sufficient clues to make the mystery worth reading for hard-core detective fans. It is clever, witty, and just plain fun.

I do have one recommendation for you. Do not read this book on an airplane. Your seatmates will either look longingly at you as you're laughing out loud and ask what you're reading. Or glance at you in disgust as they're trying to sleep. I honestly couldn't stop myself from giggling loudly several times. The poor gentleman across the aisle was just out of luck.

There is also some very good news. There are three other books in the series. Our wonderful library has them all. But you have to put yourself on a hold list—and I know why they're so popular. They are gloriously funny and great entertainment. Enjoy!

PETITION UPDATE

Library Petitions Qualify for the Ballot

In December, the Orange County Registrar of Voters informed the City of Huntington Beach that both proposed library measures gathered the required number of 13,247 valid signatures to qualify them for the ballot of an upcoming spring election. Volunteers collected thousands of signatures over the required threshold, demonstrating wide support among Huntington Beach voters for HBPL and its librarians.

One petition seeks to overturn the controversial children's book review board which would be staffed by volunteers handpicked by the City Council. This board would have "final" and "non-appealable" authority over which books the library would procure and/or retain for those 17 and under, per Ordinance 4318 adopted by the City Council last year.

The state's recent passage of the "Freedom to Read Act" puts pressure on the city since the proposed review board's potential act of preventing certain books from entering or remaining in the library would be considered unlawful.

The other petition was created to prevent privatization of library operations by changing the city's charter to prohibit privatization without a majority vote of the City Council and Huntington Beach voters. Last summer, the national for-profit outsourcer Library Systems & Services submitted a bid to privatize HBPL but pulled the bid before the City Council would have voted on it. Some Council members had expressed interest in privatizing the library, which led to the development of the second citizen-led petition.

Thank you to all the dedicated community volunteers who collected and verified thousands of signatures. Your hard work definitely contributed to the success of this campaign!
