

Negotiation Strategist Research, Inc.

Negotiation Strategist Research, Inc. (NSR) provides solutions to the world's most complex persuasion, influence and negotiation problems. We are the choice of those working with complex or multiparty deals and disputes.

Our Clients

We work with: businesses that are looking to balance a culture from healthy internal competition with common market goals; law firms when tools such as litigation or arbitration are not working for their clients; governments with interdepartmental division; politicians unifying polarized constituents; standards organizations looking for consensus; and; universities cooperation; and nonprofits that find themselves in competition with others with the same goal.

Our Methods

We use proprietary statistical and behavioral modeling tools to solve the most complex transactions, multiparty interactions, and public policy. We facilitate the most acrimonious transactions and settlements and act as an experienced and knowledgeable intermediary.

Our Team

Martin Medeiros leads teams of professionals to analyze the best possible outcomes. Martin published five books. His writings appear in the Wall Street Journal, and Martin interviewed live on the BBC multiple times. Our team includes doctorate-level psychologists, economists, editors, and statisticians to help map the most favorable outcomes.

Our Services

We lead complex negotiations as an advocate or neutral. We teach our methods in workshops, online classes, offer a weekly podcast and offer a suite of online tools.
