We created this fundraiser to both celebrate and remember our dear friend and TCGi family member, John Fitzpatrick. John was our Regional Account Manager, who was diagnosed with an aggressive form of lung cancer at the beginning of last year. He spent a lot of his free time teeing off with friends and business associates, which is why we decided this event was the best way to honor him and fund scholarships for deserving young women pursuing Technology.

INDIVIDUAL GOLFER: $350.00 | FOURSOME: $1,300.00 | BREAKFAST AND LUNCH ONLY: $250.00

Our Mission:

Connecting Black Girls to Opportunities in Tech.

The TCGi Foundation is a 501(c) 3 non-profit.

ABOUT THE TCGi FOUNDATION

Why are we here?

"There is uneven participation of women of color in tech, with Asian (7%) women slightly over-represented for their proportion of the population, and Black (3%) and Latina (2%) women woefully under-represented."

See NCWIT's By the Numbers (ncwit.org/bythenumbers) and the NCWIT Scorecard.

Many of you have seen the movie, Hidden Figures. At the end of the movie, you see the secretarial pool move into the data processing department (IT) with the help of some tutoring to understand computer programming languages. During the late 50's and early 60's, the data processing world was full of women. It certainly paid better than being a secretary, especially if you had a college degree. Through attrition, cronyism and the old boy network, women were replaced and white males took over the profession.

Fast forward to today, we have an industry that lacks diversity:

The TCGi Foundation's mission is to connect Black girls & women to opportunities in tech by supporting their educational goals on the college level and soon the graduate level. The Foundation website also offers resources to help Black girls start their journey from middle school and expand their journey after securing a job in the field. We understand that the journey does not end with that first job. Now you have to shine. We will put women in touch with networks to help.

Additionally, the TCGi Foundation is partnering with other non-profits to provide additional resources, for example, Resident Scholars will provide a unique interactive job shadowing experience for high school students interested in careers leveraging STEM degrees. The Foundation is also partnering with a company that can provide up skilling classes to women who want to work in tech but need Java, Python or other coding skills. They will be trained in 8-week pods for specific job openings.

Help us create the next generation of tech leaders.

Our goal is to bestow 2 scholarships every year to deserving undergraduate and graduate students studying technology. We invite you to help us change lives and drive much-needed change in the world of computing.

TCGi FOUNDATION SCHOLARSHIPS

The Dawna J. Colbert Scholarship

In remembrance, The Dawna J. Colbert Scholarship's purpose is "To provide funds for female and/or minority college students desiring to study Computer Science, IT or Engineering"

The John Fitzpatrick Graduate Studies Scholarship

In remembrance, we've created both a graduate scholarship & annual golf classic in his name. This program was created to assist those who are looking to further their career, expand their knowledge of the technology world, and bring the infectious amount of enthusiasm that John brought.

ABOUT COMMONWEALTH NATIONAL GOLF COURSE

Commonwealth National Golf Course is a 2020 Platinum Clubs of America finalist. One of Arnold Palmer's finest designs and listed as #19 in Golf Digest's "Best in State" ranking. Arnold Palmer said of the course, "All I know and love about golf is in this course." The serious golfer knows that he meant it.

The real beauty of Commonwealth National is in the variety of holes played as the course winds its way around the open rolling terrain, across the streams and water, and through the woods and wetlands back up to the clubhouse. One member says on golfpass.com "This is a great Palmer design in Philly suburbs... Guaranteed to have a fun day here!"
