

Right to Life Essay

You know, with all of the sin and sadness in the world today, like abortion, murder, and suicide, Life is definatley an adventure. Some of the sin and the sadness in the world today is abortion, the other pieces of the puzzle of sin are murder, suicide, and other things like lethal injections. As you read along, you will find my opinion of these pieces of sin and sadness, and some alternatives or ways to help.

In today's world, Abortion is one of the biggest problems in our modern culture. On T.V, you see stories of murders and things like school shootings. But you almost never see stories on abortion. If you asked them why, the news station would probably say in murder stories or school shooting stories, there are people killed. But if you stop and think, isn't abortion the same? Yes, it is. Abortion is just the legalized murder of a child before it even gets to see or experience the world around it. Some people say that the fetus isn't alive, but isn't it alive? Aren't there one cell organisms in the world? Yes, the fetus is alive. Since it is alive, why aren't people focusing on saving children and instead they are focusing on saving wolves. I just don't get it. If the mother wouldn't be able to live with the baby, why would you kill it when you could set it up for adoption. It's pretty easy. Just get rid of an "r" and switch the b and the answer is staring you in the face. Adoption. Yea, it has a few perks. The child gets to live and the woman doesn't have to live with murder on her consiance. So why wouldn't you choose adoption? Some people say that they are too far gone, so they can just do whatever. That is not true at all. No matter what type of adventure you've had, whether you just have had a few bumps in the paved road, crashed, or heck, even gone sky-diving, you are never too far gone to change your direction. Unless of course, your parachute fails when you are skydiving, or if you just jumped out of the plane. That might hurt a little But still, you can always repent and start heading in the right direction.

Another big problem with the world right now is murder, school shootings, or suicide. They are all tragic and lead to a loss of life(mostly). Same story as abortion. You are living, and should be loved and cherished. Choose love and God will always welcome you back from your journey. So why don't you? lethal injections are another problem, it is just suicide that is permitted. Why would you ever kill yourself, wouldn't it harm your loved ones, or if you feel like you have no purpose, just turn to God, and no matter how rough you adventure has been he will always accept you. Why not just choose life over death?
