

5 Quick Feng Shui Fixes

Transform Your Space's Energy Flow
in Just Minutes

For Homeowners & Business Spaces

Welcome

Energy flow, or "chi," is the invisible force that moves through every space we inhabit. When chi flows freely, we feel more balanced, productive, and at peace. When it stagnates or rushes too quickly, we experience stress, fatigue, and discord.

The good news? You don't need a complete renovation to shift the energy in your home or office. These five simple fixes can be implemented today, with minimal cost and effort.

Each adjustment is designed to work with the natural flow of energy in your space, creating harmony between you and your environment.

How to Use This Guide

- Read through all five fixes first
- Choose 1-2 to implement this week
- Notice how the energy shifts in your space
- Use the checklist at the end to track your progress

Clear the Entryway

THE PROBLEM

Clutter, shoes, or obstacles blocking the front door restrict chi from entering your space. This is like trying to breathe through a straw—the life force of your home or business becomes constricted.

THE FIX

Remove all items within three feet of your door, both inside and outside. Ensure the door opens fully without hitting anything. Add a welcome mat in an inviting color. If you have a business, make sure your entrance is well-lit and clearly marked.

WHY IT WORKS

The entryway is called the "mouth of chi"—where all opportunities, abundance, and positive energy enter your space. A clear, welcoming entrance invites good fortune and new possibilities into your life and work.

QUICK IMPLEMENTATION

Time needed: 15-20 minutes

Cost: $0-30 (for a new welcome mat if desired)

Fix Broken Items Immediately

THE PROBLEM

Broken objects, flickering lights, dripping faucets, or stuck drawers create stagnant or draining energy. Each broken item is a constant subconscious reminder of incompleteness and neglect.

THE FIX

Walk through your space with a notepad. List every broken item you see—from squeaky doors to burned-out bulbs. Commit to repairing or removing these items within one week. Start with the items you encounter most frequently.

WHY IT WORKS

Broken things symbolize stuck cycles and blocked progress. When you repair what's broken, you signal to yourself and the universe that you're ready to move forward. This creates momentum in other areas of your life and business.

QUICK IMPLEMENTATION

Time needed: 30 minutes to list, varies to repair

Cost: Varies by repairs needed

3

Add Life to Dead Corners

THE PROBLEM

Dark, forgotten corners accumulate stagnant energy. These spaces become energetic "dead zones" where chi pools and becomes heavy, affecting the vitality of the entire room.

THE FIX

Identify every corner in your main living or working spaces. Place a living plant, a floor lamp, or a crystal in each forgotten corner. Alternatively, hang a small mirror or piece of meaningful art. The goal is to activate these spaces.

WHY IT WORKS

Corners need activation to keep energy circulating smoothly throughout your space. By adding life, light, or beauty, you transform dead zones into sources of vitality and prevent energy from stagnating.

QUICK IMPLEMENTATION

Time needed: 20-30 minutes

Cost: $10-50 per corner (plants, lamps, or crystals)

Position Your Bed or Desk in Command Position

THE PROBLEM

Having your back to the door while working or sleeping creates subconscious anxiety and vulnerability. Your nervous system remains on alert, preventing deep rest and focused work.

THE FIX

Arrange your bed or desk so you can see the door while sitting or lying down, but you're not directly in line with it. The ideal position is diagonally across from the door. If you cannot move your furniture, place a small mirror to reflect the doorway.

WHY IT WORKS

The command position creates a sense of safety and control in your environment. This positioning allows your body to truly relax during sleep and your mind to focus during work, improving both rest quality and productivity.

QUICK IMPLEMENTATION

Time needed: 30-60 minutes to rearrange

Cost: $0-15 (for a small mirror if needed)

Remove or Cover Mirrors Facing Your Bed

THE PROBLEM

Mirrors directly across from the bed can disrupt sleep and create restless energy. In Feng Shui, mirrors are considered highly active elements that bounce energy around the room when your body needs stillness and restoration.

THE FIX

Relocate any mirrors that directly face your bed to another wall or room. If moving the mirror isn't possible, cover it with a decorative cloth at night. Another option is to angle the mirror so it doesn't reflect the bed directly.

WHY IT WORKS

Sleep is when your body repairs and your spirit replenishes. Mirrors across from the bed can create too much active yang energy in a space that should be calm and yin. This adjustment promotes deeper, more restorative sleep.

QUICK IMPLEMENTATION

Time needed: 10-30 minutes

Cost: $0-20 (for decorative cloth if needed)

Your Implementation Checklist

Print this page and check off each fix as you complete it

☐

Clear the Entryway

Remove clutter within 3 feet of door • Ensure door opens fully • Add welcome mat

☐

Fix Broken Items

List all broken items • Repair or remove within one week • Start with most visible items

☐

Add Life to Dead Corners

Identify forgotten corners • Add plants, lights, or crystals • Activate each corner

☐

Command Position for Bed/Desk

Ensure you can see the door • Position diagonally if possible • Add mirror if cannot move furniture

☐

Remove or Cover Bedroom Mirrors

Relocate mirrors facing bed • Cover with cloth at night • Or angle away from bed

Ready to Go Deeper?

These five fixes are just the beginning. A personalized Feng Shui consultation can unlock the full potential of your space.

Notes & Observations

Use this space to track changes you notice after implementing these fixes

Energy shifts I've noticed:

Changes in sleep, mood, or productivity:

Areas I'd like to explore further: