

Chris Holland

I have always loved painting. However, after suffering a stroke in 2014, I laid my brushes down, believing my artistic chapter was closed. Life, however, had other plans. A cancer diagnosis in 2024 led me to seek treatment in Southern Arizona. The breathtaking beauty of this landscape, its vibrant hues and expansive skies, simply wouldn't let me not paint! It was here that my passion was rekindled, proving that creativity truly knows no bounds.

Today, I create impressionistic oil landscapes inspired by the vibrant colors, dramatic skies, and unique beauty of the Arizona desert. Color is at the heart of everything I paint. I love the way it evokes emotion, tells a story, and captures the joy I see in the world around me.

My work is a reflection of resilience, hope, and gratitude. Every painting reminds me that creativity has the power to heal, inspire, and begin again. Through ArtByChris, I hope to share that spirit and encourage others to find beauty and joy, even in life's most unexpected chapters.
