

JUDIAN JOHNSON

Born in Santa Barbara, the artist grew up racing horses along the beach and adventure riding through the surrounding mountain ranges. This early immersion in nature fostered a lifelong connection to animals, particularly horses and dogs, with endurance riding becoming a central passion. After retiring from a career as a respiratory therapist, she turned fully toward art, translating decades of lived experience with animals and landscapes onto canvas. Largely self-taught, her work is characterized by expressive use of color and a focus on landscapes and animals, capturing movement, spirit, and a deep sense of place.
