Jacqueline R. Bradley, (www.Facebook.ChrystalCanyonCreations.com), uses sheet copper, sheet silver, along with Precious Metal Clay, fused glass, local turquoise, enamel and various other natural beads and repurposed items to create her jewelry, and ornaments. She has a deep love for nature, and recognizes the importance of protecting the plants, animals and insects that make up our world. In addition, she has come to love and respect the Southwest and the traditions found here.

Originally from the Catskill Mountains in upstate New York, Jackie moved to Tucson after graduating high school. Here she met her husband Merle and together they raised a daughter and a son. She earned a Masters of Organization Management from the University of Phoenix.

Chrystal Canyon Creations began in 2009 when she decided to take her lifelong interest in crafts and jewelry making and turn her hobby into a business. The Tucson Gem Show exposed her to the rich and diverse world of jewelry. It sparked a love affair with stones, gems and metals. It was at one of the shows that she took her first class; wire wrapping. Since then, she has had many classes in Precious Metal Clays, soldering, forging, polishing, riveting, stamping and enameling. Jackie continues to enjoy learning new processes and honing her skills. Her husband Merle recently began learning the trade as well and together they create take inspiration from nature.

Bradley sells her work primarily in juried art shows, as well as at the Chris Bubany Artists Gallery, and in the Endeavor Gallery, run by the San Pedro River Arts Council.
