HUMOR!!!

"Some family trees have beautiful leaves, but some just have a bunch of nuts. Remember it is the nuts that make the tree worth shaking."

Prayer Call

The pastor concluded his sermon and opened the altar for prayer. Jack came forward. "Pastor, I'd like you to pray for my hearing." Placing his fingers in Jack's ear, he laid his other hand on top of Jack's head as he and the deacons prayed openly and fervently for two minutes. Removing his finger from Jack's ear, and his hand from atop Jack's head, the pastor asked, "Jack, how's your hearing now?" "I don't know, Preacher. It's not 'til next Tuesday!"

Bank on It

A man was encouraging his elderly mother to enjoy the money she had accumulated through frugal living. "Mom," he said. "You have enough money to last you until you're at least 100." "Sure," she replied. "And then what will I do?"

President's Comments

May 19th, we conducted a Genealogy Workshop at the Kinder Library. We covered various topics, resources and family histories.

There was a great group in attendance from Allen Parish and some from out of the parish with family connections in Allen. They were all very interested in their family lineages. Some were able to find data that day on their family from the resources we have available in the library's genealogy room which added to the excitement.

We were elated to see some of the same faces at our July meeting along with some new ones. There were a few at the workshop that expressed a desire to become members and attend meetings, but due to their work schedule they are unable to attend Tuesday meetings. At our July meeting our membership decided to change our meeting schedule from quarterly meetings to convening every other month and rotating the meetings on Tuesdays and Saturdays. Therefore, beginning with the next meeting on September 4th we will have a Tuesday meeting and a Saturday meeting on November 3rd, etc. They will still be a 10 AM in the Kinder, Library. Fran has a new schedule calendar in this issue.

Special Thanks go to AGHS staff members, Fran Clemmons and Ouida Savant for their assistance at the workshop. These two ladies are committed to our society and all activities we undertake.

I want to thank Lettie and the library staff for their wonderful assistance with the workshop. They helped with the advertising, making copies and furnishing coffee to go with our pastries. They are a great group of ladies! I also want to thank them for their great work in redecorating the genealogy room. The décor includes pertinent photos and documents which are very inspiring for those researching in the room.

Wishing you a great summer,

Betty Sarver

During the meeting, members voted to change the quarterly society meetings held on the first Tuesday of the month, to meetings every other month, rotating meetings on Tuesdays and Saturdays. The next meeting will be held on Tuesday September 4th, 2012, at 10:00 A.M. in the Genealogy Room of the Kinder Library. A Saturday meeting will be held on November 3rd, 2012. The Society look forward to members that could not attend the meetings because of work schedules during the week to be able to attend the up coming Saturday meetings. The Society encourage and welcome everyone to attend the meetings and to take part in doing genealogical research. Coffee, cookies, and fellowship served at the meetings and guest are always welcome.

I hope everyone enjoy the articles submitted in CROSSROADS. Please share some of your family histories and information for future publications.

A BRIEF HISTORY OF LOUISIANA

This is a refresher of what we all studied in school. It will help in researching our early roots in Louisiana. It is a reminder of how the boundaries have changed throughout history. This can make a difference in where we search in certain time periods. Here in Allen Parish we are aware that prior to becoming a parish in 1912 we were part of Imperial Calcasieu (Calcasieu Parish). Prior to 1840 Calcasieu was part of St. Landry Parish or the Opelousas District. Therefore, our research for this area can be done in Lake Charles and Opelousas. The following information is from the Columbia Electronic Encyclopedia's "BRIEF HISTORY OF LOUISIANA".

Louisiana has a long and colorful history. The region was possibly visited by Cabeza de Vaca and his fellow survivors of a Spanish expedition of 1528, and it was certainly seen by some of De Soto's men (1541-42). In 1682, La Salle reached the mouth of the Mississippi and claimed for France all of the land drained by that river and its tributaries, naming it Louisiana after Louis XIV. Europeans did not permanently settle there until 1699, when Pierre le Moyne, sieur d'Iberville, founded a settlement near Biloxi. This settlement became the seat of government for Louisiana, an enormous territory embracing the entire Mississippi drainage basin.

In 1702, Iberville's brother, the sieur de Bienville, was appointed governor and moved the territorial government to Fort Louis on the Mobile River. This colony was later moved (1710) to the present site of Mobile (Alabama), and Mobile became the capital of Louisiana. French missionaries and fur traders explored some of the vast territory, and Natchitoches (the oldest settlement within the present boundaries of the state of Louisiana) grew from a French military and trading post established (c.1714) to protect the Red River area from the Spanish.

In order to increase the value of the colony, France granted (1712) a monopoly of commercial privileges, which in 1717 passed to a company organized by John Law. The promise of riches under Law's Mississippi Scheme brought many settlers to Louisiana, and a large number of them remained even after his scheme had collapsed. New Orleans was founded in 1718, and in 1723 the capital was transferred there. Large numbers of Africans were brought in as slaves, and the Code Noir, adopted in 1724, provided for the rigid control of their lives and the protection of the whites.

Spanish Louisiana

The last conflict (1754-63) of the French and Indian Wars was ending disastrously for the French, and in order to keep the entire Louisiana territory from falling into the hands of the British, the French secretly ceded (by the Treaty of Fontainebleau in 1762) the area W of the Mississippi and the "Isle of Orleans" to Spain. By the Treaty of Paris, Great Britain gained control of all Louisiana E of the Mississippi except the "Isle of Orleans"; these changes were announced in 1764.

The French colonists resisted the new Spanish rule, but were subdued and finally Spanish mercantilist monopoly of trade was instituted. During the Spanish years agriculture flourished with the cultivation of rice and sugarcane, and New Orleans grew as a major port and trading center. The Spanish government welcomed thousands of Acadians, known there as Cajuns, and they settled what came to be known as the Cajun country. During the American Revolution, New Orleans was a center for Spanish aid to the colonies. After Spain declared war on Great Britain in 1779, Louisiana's governor, Bernardo de Gálvez, became an active ally of the revolutionists, capturing Baton Rouge and Natchez (1779), Mobile (1780), and Pensacola (1781).

After the war Louisiana's control of the great inland trade route, the Mississippi, led to heated controversy with the Americans. In the secret Treaty of San Ildefonso (1800), Napoleon I forced the retrocession of the territory to France. Revelation of this treaty caused profound concern in the United States. President Jefferson attempted to purchase the "Isle of Orleans" from France. To the surprise of the American representatives in France, Napoleon decided to sell all of Louisiana to the United States.

Statehood

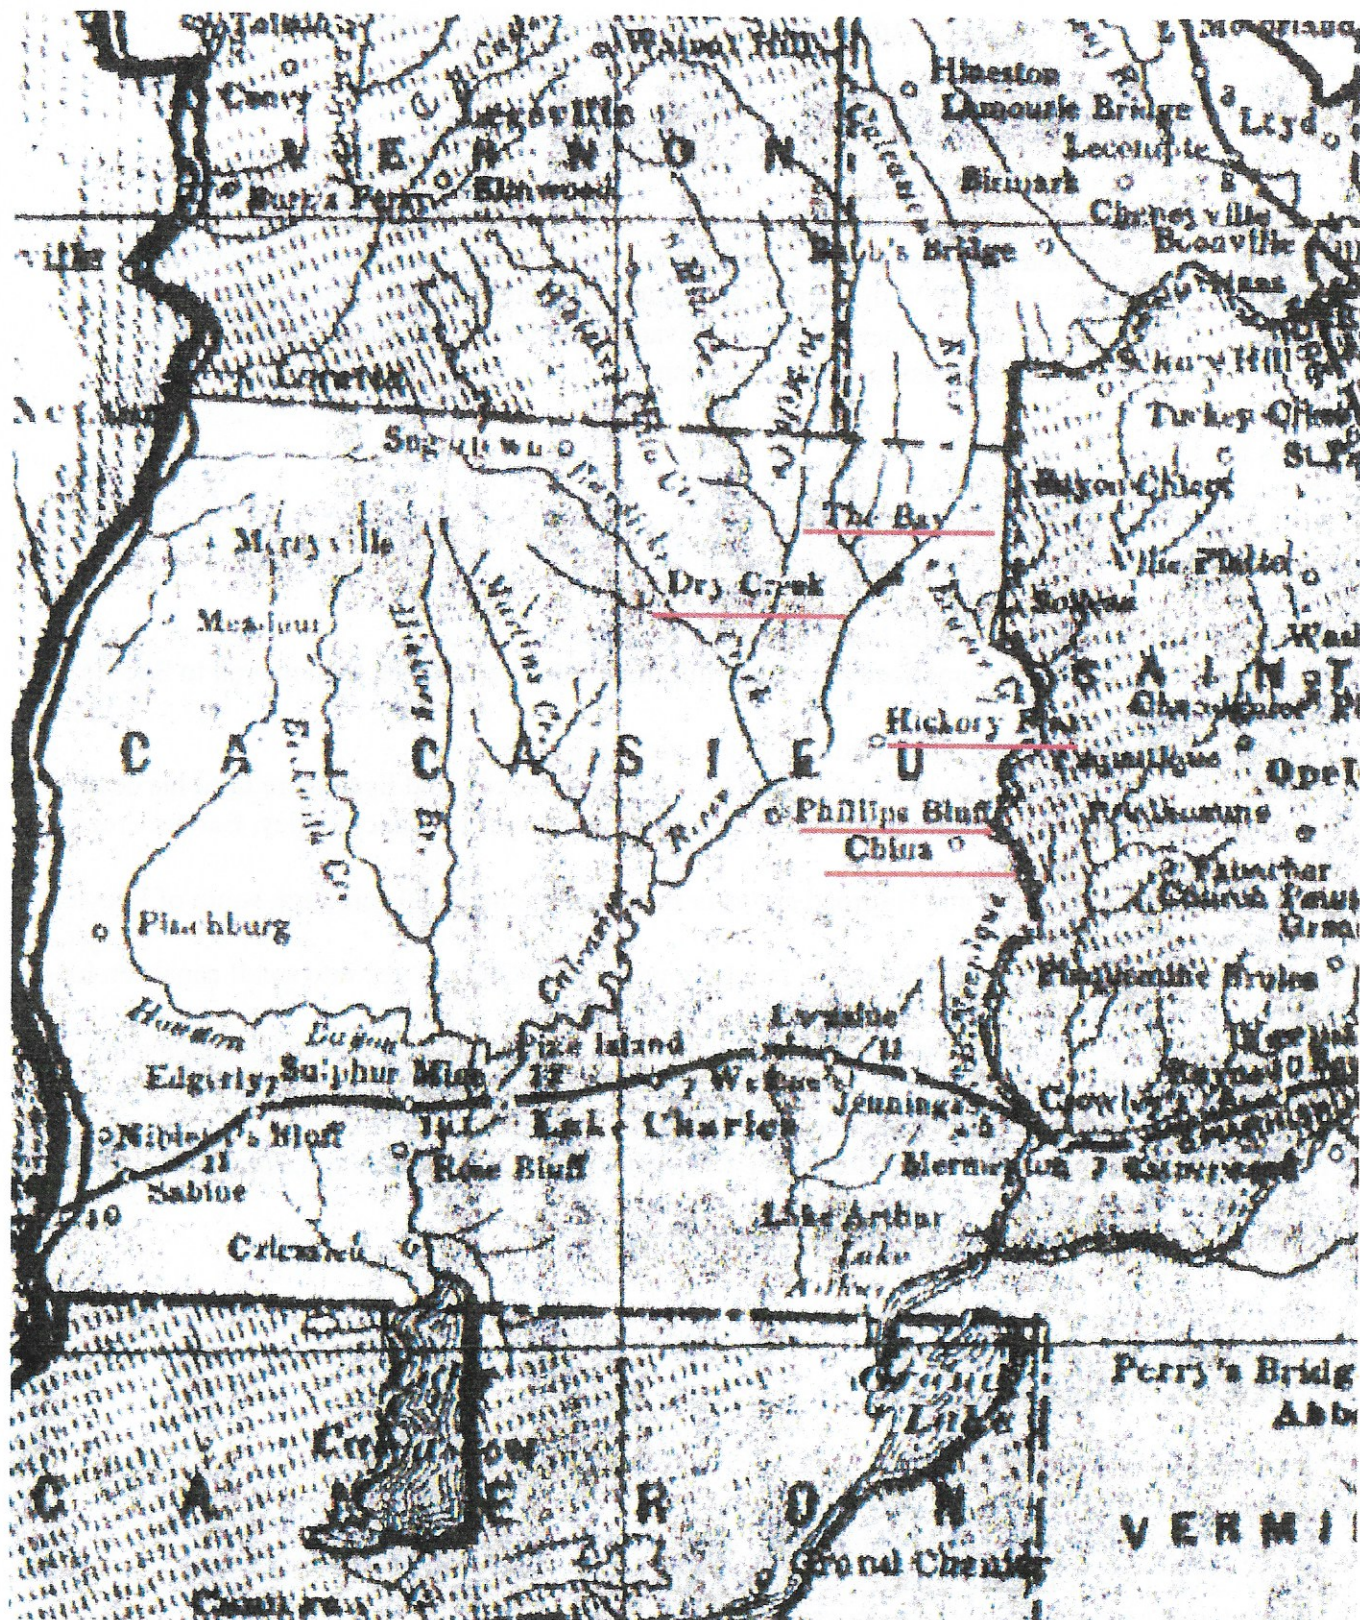

The United States took possession in 1803, and in 1804 the territory was divided into two parts. The southern part, which was called the Territory of Orleans, was admitted to the Union in 1812 as the state of Louisiana. Settlement (1819) of the West Florida Controversy gave Louisiana the area between the Mississippi and Pearl rivers, which formerly had been part of Florida. After statehood French and Spanish influence remained, not only in the Creole and Cajun societies but also in the civil law (based on French and Spanish codes) and in the division of the state into parishes rather than counties. In the early years of the 19th century the diverse people of Louisiana—the French, the Spanish, the Germans, and Isleños brought by Gálvez from the Canary Islands—united behind Andrew Jackson to defeat (1815) the British at the Battle of New Orleans during the War of 1812.

With settlers pouring in from other Southern states, great sugar and cotton plantations developed rapidly in the fertile lowlands, and the less productive uplands were also settled. The state capital was moved several times, finally to Baton Rouge in 1849. The advent of steam propulsion on the Mississippi (the first steamboat to navigate the river arrived in New Orleans in 1812) was a boon to the state's economy; by 1840, New Orleans was the nation's second largest port. Plantation owners, with their large landholdings and many slaves (more than half the population) dominated politics and largely controlled the state.

The Civil War and Its Aftermath

On Jan. 26, 1861, Louisiana seceded from the Union and six weeks later joined the Confederacy. The fall of New Orleans to David G. Farragut in 1862 prefaced the detested military occupation under Gen. B. F. Butler. Occupied Louisiana was a proving ground for Lincoln's moderate restoration program, but after Lincoln's assassination radical Republicans seized control and Louisiana suffered greatly during Reconstruction. The Ku Klux Klan was particularly active from 1866 to 1871. In the election of 1872 the radical Republican candidate for governor lost but was installed with the help of federal troops. Reconstruction in Louisiana finally ended with the disputed presidential election of 1876, when Louisiana's electoral votes were "traded" to the Republicans (whose candidate was Rutherford B. Hayes) in exchange for the withdrawal of federal troops from the state. Francis R. T. Nicholls, a Democrat, became governor of Louisiana, and white control of the state was reestablished.

Economic recovery was slow. The disrupted plantation system was largely replaced by farm tenancy and sharecropping. The decline of steamboat traffic was offset somewhat by new railroad building and the opening of the Mississippi River for oceangoing vessels from New Orleans to the sea.

This map of Imperial Calcasieu in 1880 shows that at that time the towns of Oakdale (The Bay), Reeves (Dry Creek), Oberlin (Hickory Flatt), Kinder (Phillips Bluff) and Elton (China) did not exist. This data should help when researching this area during that time period.
