HISTORY OF XWW

Xtreme World Wrestling has had quite the roller-coaster over the years. But its been an incredible journey for so many people throughout the years.

PART 1

THE BEGINNING

18 years ago, I was introduced to a 15 year old kid and his friends performing the taboo act of backyard wrestling. At first I questioned myself and asked "What is my grown ass going to do with a bunch of kids half my age?" But then I answered. "Somebody said it was wrestling." At the time backyard wrestling was popping up all over Youtube and it was the trending thing. Videos of kids in the backyard with make-shift wrestling rings made up of 2x4's and garden hose. Some videos with nothing but grass and lawn chairs. And then you have the talent, or lack there of. Untrained kids jumping off of houses onto tables that don't break. Anything to get a shock value for likes. Then I asked myself, again, "What am I going to do with these kids?" It was a Sunday evening. I pulled up to a house in a cul de sac. The street filled with as many cars that could fit in a dead end street. As I exited my car I heard a sound that sounded like thunder. I looked to the sky only to see clear skies. I heard it again and realized the sound was coming from the backyard. I made my way down the driveway as the sound of thunder was getting louder. As I turned the corner of the house my eyes gazed upon a sight that amazed me. It was a group of kids standing in the middle of, get this, a real wrestling ring. A real squared circle. Real turnbuckles. Real ropes. Real canvas. A real freaking wrestling ring. It was at that moment I realized that I was being introduced to something great. And I was all in. This was my birth into XWW.

7 BASIC RULES

to live the M.E. WAY

Recently we got the chance to hear from Manny-Mac, B-Money & Murph Mancini and they gave us the 7 basic rules to live the Money Enterprises (M.E.) Way.

"It's easy to live a fast life...All you need is Money."
- B-Money

Dress to impress

When it comes to dressing for SUCCESS, the easiest and most widely accepted attire is a blue or black suit. This would be applicable for men or women. Now that said, dressing up the suit with some color is a good idea as well. A colored shirt or blouse and complementary tie or jewelry can make the look complete. Invest in a tailored suit in each color and you will make it very easy to decide for yourself what to wear every day.

- Murph Mancini

Always Valet Park

let parking also adds a touch of luxury compared to self-parking. Events that provide valet parking provide extra touches such as bringing the car up front and having the doors opened for the guest.

-Murph Mancini

Always have cash on you

The tangibility of cash makes the transaction, and its accompanying “pain,” feel more real, while the abstractness of plastic makes the reality of the purchase more distant; you handle and count cash before turning it over, whereas with digital payments, money just mysteriously disappears with the tap of the screen or the click of the mouse. The greater “friction” of cash slows down your spending.

B-Money

Tan Regularly

Being out in the sun or tanning can actually ease up stiffness and cause warmth in the body’s muscles.

First Class or No Pass

If you’re flying economy class long-distance, your next day or two are going to be a washout. You have to factor in the cost of lost productivity and maybe even a lost deal, if you roll off the red-eye and into a presentation. Bear all those expenses in mind and that economy class seat doesn’t look so cheap anymore.

- Manny-Mac

Only Stay at 5+Hotels

We work so much that it’s convenient to be able to have 24-hour room service, which is a typical amenity at luxury hotels. Non-luxury hotels usually have room service only during daytime or mealtime hours.

-Manny-Mac

Only eat at 5+ Restaurants

Meals at a really great restaurant is akin to a night at the theater: several hours of entertainment as a chef shows off what he or she can do—with assistance from a supporting cast of servers, kitchen staff, and the guests themselves.

- Murph Mancini

INTERVIEW

WITH COLT 45

Any wrestler who stands across the squared circle from Colt 45 better be certain that they are ready for what is about to happen. Once the bell rings, brutality is sure to ensue. Be sure to check him out at his next Xtreme World Wrestling appearance.

Xtreme World Wrestling's Hardcore Champion Colt 45 is quickly becoming a legend of the hardcore and deathmatch genre. You don't have to sift through the dark corners of the internet to find footage of Colt 45 inflicting a disturbing amount of damage to an opponent in one of those very types of matches. Just as grotesquely you may find him enduring injuries that would send an ordinary man to the emergency room. Whichever the case may be you can be assured that if a match involves Colt 45 it will be memorable. A style that you simply will not see during a run of the mill prime time wrestling show on the ol' television. Often times giving up size to his opponents, Colt 45 more than makes it up in speed and wanton disregard for both his and his opponent's well being. There will be blood.

Diego Malefator of Xtreme World Wrestling got a chance to sit down and interview the hard working and hard hitting hardcore champion Colt 45, so we can get to know the champ a little better.

DM: How long have you been in the wrestling business?

Colt 45: Been in the business about 10 years.

DM: What inspired you to get into this business?

Colt 45: I grew up watching wrestling, ECW was a big part in me wanting to get into wrestling. I loved [the] WWF and WCW too of course, but ECW was my favorite.

DM: What are your most memorable matches?

Colt 45: My most memorable matches was against Matt Tremont in New Jersey, and my match against G Raver in West Virginia. Those two were the biggest for me.

DM: XWW has a passion for the hardcore, any interest in any other titles?

Colt 45: My most memorable matches was against Matt Tremont in New Jersey, and my match against G Raver in West Virginia. Those two were the biggest for me.

DM: Do you have a dream opponent, currently active or all time?

Colt 45: My dream opponents are Danny Havoc. He was my favorite death match guy. And Sabu would be another. He's one of my favorites from ECW.

Colt 45 Hardcore Dreams and Aspirations.

DM: What motivates you to do endure the type of violence you do?

Colt 45: I've loved hardcore/death match wrestling for awhile...there's a lot of guys out there killing it in this style of wrestling, and that's really awesome. It motivates me to keep this style of wrestling going.

DM: What can the XWW fan base expect from their Hardcore Champ?

Colt 45: They can expect a hard working guy busting his ass and doing the best he can to give the fans a show!

XWW Hardcore to the Core

SEPHIROTH TAKE OVER?

Sephiroth has made his mark in XWW over the years. He has taken on majority of the roster and held multiple championships. But what is in store next for Sephiroth in XWW going into 2019.

The world of professional wrestling has had a storied history with darkness and seemingly satanic factions. The 1980's brought an era of satanic panic to the United States that drug on through the nineties and remains in our zeitgeist till this day. Stories of satanic occultism and satanic ritual abuse occupied the psyche of the nation in that era. Stemming from testimonies taken via a victim's psychological regression, these stories struck fear similar to alien abduction stories of the mid twentieth century whose testimonies were collected in a similar fashion. Wrestling was not immune to this invasion of satanic beliefs.

This invasion not only manifested itself in some scary individuals, Abyss comes to mind, but also powerful and intimidating wrestling factions. These factions took the wrestling world by storm, often dominating the scene at any promotion they find themselves in. This was exemplified in the most popular promotions of the time by The Undertaker's Ministry of Darkness, Kevin Sullivan's Army of Darkness and Raven's Flock. Blood, eerie music, and even the occasional in ring crucifixion were sure to follow these groups and their path of destruction.

Here at Xtreme World Wrestling we have had our share of darkness. Currently, we are in an era of darkness. Our heavyweight champion, Stro, well, Papa as he prefers to be known by nowadays, is quite the dark champion. Seemingly possessed by his doll that he often carries with him, Papa gave a baffling interview to Kwest at XWW Tidal Wave last month. Claiming that Stro was dead and that the rest of us were going to die as well, left those of us who follow Xtreme World Wrestling scratching our heads. Papa Stro is not alone in the dark portions of XWW. For years Xtreme World Wrestling original Sephiroth has been at the helm of darkness at our promotion, even enduring a buried alive match against former heavyweight champion Kwest. Clearly unburied, Sephiroth is back with the return of XWW. What's more, he seemingly has aligned himself with Papa, costing Crunkville the title by interfering in a tables match with Papa at tidal wave.

What happens at Xtreme World Wrestling now? Is this the beginning of XWW's next iconic satanic team? All we can do is look to the past for clues, and hope for the best. The union of Sephiroth and current heavyweight champ Papa Stro, promises to be the beginning of a powerful faction. Sephiroth after all has quite the successful history in XWW, with accolades that include hardcore, US and Heavyweight title reigns, this can prove to be a union that promises success for Papa and Sephiroth at the detriment of the other XWW stars.

The issue in contemporary XWW quickly becomes how intense is this new groups influence going to be? Undoubtedly, Crunkville will be seeking some sort of vengeance against the duo. Additionally, the vacated US title is going to be contested soon, we wonder how and if stars pursuing the returning title will be affected by this new faction? Will any other stars join the dark side or join Crunkville in the resistance? One thing is for certain, in this new era of Xtreme World Wrestling, Sephiroth is positioning himself to make a huge impact on all of us.

TIDAL WAVE 2019

THE DEBUT OF THE XWW ARENA

Tidal Wave 2019 Results

Deigo Malefator

Xtreme World Wrestling made it's return home to Monroe North Carolina with Tidal Wave! Boasting a new home at Xtreme World Wrestling Arena, the inaugural show left the crowd amazed and ready for more. Here's what went down at Tidal Wave.

Lucky Ali fell short in his XWW debut against Eli Proctor. Ali was able to survive being on the receiving end of a suicide dive from Proctor, barely beating the referee's 10 count back into the ring. Ali rallied for a bit after Proctor found himself in a shouting match with the crowd. Proctor however, knocked the referee into the ropes, knocking Ali off the top turnbuckle as he attempted to set up a Parkland Drop.

In what turned out to be a technical clinic Proctor pulled out all the stops and picked up the victory with his version of the discus punch, "off with his head".

Manny Mac made his way to the ring next ready for his match against the much larger Mitch Hurley. Hurley was on his way to the ring but was blindsided with a chair attack by Mancini and B-Money. Like a vulture, Manny was happy to dismiss his cohorts after Hurley was deposited in the ring by the invading duo. Manny's control over Hurley was short lived. After being manhandled by Hurley, Manny fell to the Knockout Drop. Giving Mitch Hurley another notch in the win column along with a big pop from the crowd.

XWW RETURNS BACK WITH TIDAL WAVE

The vacant Internet Championship was contested in a threeway dance which pitted Sephiroth, The Vindicator, Murph Mancini with B-Money. Officiated by none other than Luke Montsinger. This match had a lot of hard hitting action from Sephiroth and Mancini, mostly at the expense of the Vindicator. B-Money on the outside made also made his presence felt throughout with cheap shots from the outside and referee distractions. After the Vindicator had been laid to waste on the apron, Sephiroth and Mancini focused on each other. Just as Mancini gained the upper hand and was set to pin Sephiroth, the referee was in the middle of an ill timed B-Money distraction. Mancini went to free up the referee from his buddy B-Money leaving Sephiroth open to a pin from the Vindicator. Allowing the Vindicator to become the new Internet Champion.

Former XWW Heavyweight Champion and new commentator Kwest interviewed the current XWW Champion Stro. Well, Papa as he wanted to be referred to as. With his creepy doll in tow, Papa Stro gave an eerie speech focusing on the macabre. Claiming that the old Stro is dead, he left us with more questions than answers heading into his championship defense tables match against crowd favorite and XWW original Crunkville.

Papa Stro and Crunkville had a drag out brawl. Papa made a habit of attacking Crunkville's eyes in what would have certainly drawn a DQ in a normal match. Crunkville was able to overcome Papa's onslaught and had him prone on a table. Just as Crunkville was ready to pounce on Papa from the top rope he gets blindsided by Sephiroth! With Papa's doll in hand, Sephiroth came to the aid of the champ, driving crunkville through two tables.

Papa retains his title, and seemingly is aligned with Sephiroth. We will find out more of this alliance in the coming weeks.

The night wrapped up with a hellacious hardcore match for the where Colt 45 defended his Xtreme World Wrestling Hardcore Championship against Raven Havok and Terry Houston. This was a gruesome match, that involved Houston having a gusset plate pounded into his head for the better part of 5 minutes. All three men going through a reinforced glass pane, getting smashed by fluorescent light tubes, and slammed onto a canvas covered in thumb tacks. All three men donned crimson masks by the end of the match. Colt 45 emerged victorious, retaining his hardcore championship in what is sure to be the measuring stick for hardcore matches to come in the new Xtreme World Wrestling Arena.
