All opinions and estimates included in this site constitute Nobscot's judgment as of the date of publication and are subject to change without notice. The information herein is not intended to provide, and should not be relied upon for, accounting, legal or tax advice or investment advice and should not be considered a recommendation to buy or sell any securities or investments. While the information on this site has been prepared from sources that we believe to be reliable, we do not guarantee its accuracy and, as such, the information may be incomplete or condensed. Any reliance you may place on this information or the validity of our opinion is at your own risk.

Under no circumstances is the information in this site to be used or considered as an offer to sell, or a solicitation of any offer to buy any financial instrument. The material presented herein is in summary form, is incomplete and should not be relied upon as being complete. An investment account managed by Nobscot Investment Management LLC, a Massachusetts limited liability company, ("Nobscot") involves a high degree of risk. The performance of such account can be volatile, and there can be no assurance that Nobscot will achieve its investment objectives. While an investment with Nobscot may result in profits, it may also result in losses. Clients may lose all or a substantial amount of their investment. If you enter into an investment advisory agreement with Nobscot, Nobscot will have total discretionary authority over your account and the use of a single adviser could result in a lack of diversification and thus higher risk. Fees and expenses may offset investment appreciation or any gains on securities' transactions. More information about the fees and expenses applicable to a client's investment with Nobscot are available in Nobscot's Form ADV Part 2A and Form CRS, which are available on this site and upon request, and provided to each client (along with Form ADV Part 2B) prior to investment. Information on this website should not be considered a substitute for the information filed on Form ADV Part 2A and 2B. Past performance is not indicative of future results.
