History of the Ronneburg Restaurant

The restaurant is named after the "Ronneburg" castle in Hesse, Germany. The castle has significance to the Amana community because it provided refuge for the town ancestors when they were fleeing religious persecution in the 18th century. Several pictures and paintings of the Ronneburg Castle can be seen in our dining rooms.

Built in 1860, the Ronneburg Restaurant was a communal kitchen serving Amana residents until 1932. The atmosphere in the dining rooms during the communal era differed considerably from now. Men ate at one table while the women and children ate at another. You were allowed fifteen minutes for your meal and you were expected to use it just for eating. Conversation was frowned upon and music was strictly forbidden.

In 1950, the Ronneburg opened its doors as a family restaurant and has been serving German style food ever since!
