Message from Historical Society President

Hello Members,

Happy 2024! I hope you and your family enjoyed a great holiday season and are looking forward to a great 2024.

Our volunteers at the Plymire-Schwarz House have packed up all the Christmas decorations and staged it for Valentines Day. Another great job by Julie Chimenti and Sally Busalacchi. Thank you!

Our Vice and Crime in SSF During Prohibition exhibit has been so well received and still sparks much interest, so we have decided to let it run for another year. If you haven't seen it yet be sure to stop by 80 Chestnut and check it out.

A reminder that both the Plymire-Schwarz House & Boutique and our Museum are open Saturday afternoons from 1:00 to 4:00 p.m. We look forward to seeing you. Our next General Meeting will be March 18, at 7 p.m at the Roberta Cerri Teglia (formerly the Magnolia Center). As always, we appreciate the support our members and friends provide. We enjoy a social opportunity have coffee, punch and dessert. If you would like to contribute your sweet treats to our Hospitality Team they will be much appreciated!

See you in March!

Excerpt from April 22, 1916 Enterprise - Exactly as written in the original article.

Its Catholic element has always been a potent force in the upbuilding of South San Francisco. Catholics were here at the foundation of the town, and were the first to institute and maintain regular church service.

It was in the spring of 1893 when Rev. Father James Cooper came from San Mateo, where he was a curate in that Catholic parish, and celebrated mass in a small frame building at the southeast corner of Miller and Cypress avenues, the building being used on week days as the justice's court room.

Rev. Father Cooper said mass in the court room of the justice of the peace, first at the corner above named, and later at the corner of Grand and Linden avenues, until the Catholic church at the corner of California and Linden avenues was erected and dedicated in 1898.

In time and by reason of the increased and constantly increasing number of Catholics, the necessity for an organized parish, with a resident pastor, was recognized; and in 1913 All Souls' parish was stabled, to include the incorporated city of South San Francisco and adjacent lands. Rev. Father James P. Moran of St. Paul's parish, San Francisco, was given charge of the new Parish.

When Father Moran came to his new parish, November 23, 1913, he found a very hard task confronting him. He found lukewarmness and indifference along with a total absence of anything like team work among his new parishioners; and he found for a church building, a bare, barnlike structure, its walls unfinished and its interior unfinished.

In a new field, among a new people, facing the trying task of bring order out of chaos, Father Moran was undismayed ... Without hesitation he immediately undertook the enlargement and improvement of the church building under a promise to his people that the work should be completed and the improved church building ready ... on Christmas Day. In his work Father Moran was unsparing of himself, and towards it cost donated over one thousand dollars ...

The good father's promise was made good, and Christmas Day was celebrated in the enlarged and finished church building, which was crowded to its utmost capacity ... The end of the first year of Father Moran's pastorate found a parish well organized ... the people's new found enthusiasm led them to determine to build ... one of the finest groups of church buildings in the archdiocese.

The old site down within a block or so from the railroad depot has been abandoned and a new site selected in center of town upon an eminence and commanding a view of all the surrounding country. It is considered by everybody to be easily the finest of site in South San Francisco ... Upon this site the old church has been moved and will serve as a parish hall in the future ...

The new church will seat five hundred and twenty five.
