We have used and sold a Christmas tree preservative for about 20 years in our family. We have been in the retail industry since 1973 here in our small town.

For the first ~~was~~ ^{was} fifteen years in business we did not use or sell a tree preservative. Then a Christmas tree salesman talked us into selling a particular brand. We thought it helped our tree in our house. So we continued to sell it.

Here about 3 years ago we stopped buying trees from a rather large Christmas tree supplier and stopped selling his tree preservative. So we started looking for a new brand of tree preservative. We found VITA!

Last Christmas we used VITA on our personal tree at home and the tree stayed the freshest ^{ever} and was fragrant the day we took it down.

But that is not the end of the story. When we took the tree out of the house we just threw it in the backyard mean some other windbreak trees.

When I got around to hauling the tree off to the landfill, I swear to you it was as fresh as the day we took it down! Unbelievable.

The tree had not had water in 2 months! Would I recommend VITA Christmas tree preservative? Yes, most ~~a~~ emphatically!

So you're probably wondering is this guy telling the truth or is he some fictitious person VITA came up with to sell their product in a testimonial. I am for real and just like most guys my age that have been in the industry 30 plus years, I can be skeptical also.

Try VITA. It is a great product that worked for us!
