Kay,

I enjoyed speaking with you the other day and look forward to receiving a new supply of the vita planta 2000.

I grow a particular type of bromeliad, called a dyckia, mostly all from seed. At any given time I probably have a thousand or more seeds germinating and seedlings in various stages of growth. My son purchased a small container of the vita planta 2000 at a sale in Phoenix and sent it to me. He said the man that sold it to him said it was great for germinating seeds so he thought he would send it to me.

I started using it on some of my seeds in place of the misting I gave them using just water. I noticed that these seeds seem to germinate quicker than those sprayed with just water. I continued spraying the germinated seedlings once a week with excellent results. Feeling confident that this product would not hurt my seedlings, I began spraying it on all the various sizes of my seedlings along with my mature dyckia plants. Maybe it is my imagination, but all my dyckias seem to benefit from this product and I have made using it part of my growing routine. I am convinced that my plants have had faster growth since I have been using this product and believe they are at least a third larger than they would be without it.

I guess if I wanted to be scientific I could stop using it on certain plants to see if there is a difference but I believe in this product so have no plans to stop using it on even one of my plants. I recently won some ribbons in a large plant show in CA and am convinced this helped. I have used lots of products in the past but this is truly one I feel actually works. I am very pleased with this product and will continue using it. Thanks again for your assistance.
