To Whom It May Concern:

During the spring and summer of 2003, Praying Mantis Termite & Pest Control introduced me to a product called VitaPlanta. Their claims of extra ordinary rejuvenating properties were viewed by me with much skepticism.

However, through their professional administration of this product, they were able to demonstrate that these capabilities were not exaggerated. I have witnessed the revitalization of ailing vegetation as well as remarkable new growth on stable plants.

I would highly recommend the professional application to be a part of any conscientious horticultural maintenance program.

Sincerely,
