

1960s Collins Radio Employee QSL

This is the artwork for the QSL card that the Collins Radio Company provided for use by their employees who were licensed amateur radio operators during the mid to late 1960s. The call sign is printed in the brown rectangle across the top of the card. The font used on the original card shown is Times New Roman and the color is black.

To download the artwork "right click" on the article and then copy to your computer. This will "take down" the entire article. Then use a graphics program to isolate the front of the card from the back of the card. Next add the station information and print the cards as needed.
