About Me

I'm Luke, a nerdy, musicals-loving actor who is overjoyed that you're reading this. I was born and raised in Los Angeles, and started doing theatre in school at age 10, playing Henry Higgins in the full version of My Fair Lady. Even before that, I would make little home video sketches with my siblings and cousins, so I was probably destined to be an actor from quite a young age.

I went to USC's School of Dramatic Arts and graduated Magna Cum Laude with a Bachelor's Degree in Theatre with an Acting Emphasis. People ask what the emphasis means, and I think it just meant that I took more acting classes than I had to.

I currently live in South Pasadena, CA with my wife and dog. You'll probably hear them both if you watch a self-tape of mine.

Apart from the professional stuff, I also love playing video games and Dungeons & Dragons.

I had an amazing time on set for Monsters: The Lyle and Erik Menendez Story, as you can see from the Behind the Scenes pictures above, where I'm being questioned on the stand by Leslie Abramson, played by Ari Graynor, in prison talking to Lyle Menendez, played by Nicholas Chavez, and in the image below, where I'm sitting with Enrique Murciano in the courtroom gallery.
