The Galapagos archipelago is made up of:

4 inhabited islands

13 large islands

300 Rocks

Only 3% of the land mass inhabited

There are only roughly 20,000 residents

The only way one can live, work, or own property on the islands is to be born there or to be married to a resident for at least 10 years.

The Galapagos residents feel incredible pride in keeping the sanctity and beauty of their islands intact.

Galapagueños show by example how a small and motivated community can keep their public spaces beautiful and free from trash.
