

Scenario 3

You are in a meeting with colleagues talking about diversity and inclusion at your workplace. One of your colleagues is trying to make what you believe is a well-meaning comment about supporting disabled colleagues. However, they are using outdated and offensive language. You are aware that at least one of your colleagues in the meeting identifies as disabled.

