

Micro Journey

Mark out your own route from an ant's point of view using string.

Get down close to the ground and examine the route that the string takes from an insect's point of view.

Can you see any interesting landmarks they will have to pass or might see from the route?

What is the path like?

Is there anything the ant will have to climb?

Are there any tunnels they might have to travel through?

Can you describe the route to your partner using directions?

up through right past
over between left under