

Haleiwa Arts Festival

What can be better than spending a day on the North Shore, listening to live music and perusing dozens and dozens of vendor booths featuring the works of local artists. The 23rd Annual Summer Arts Festival will be held this year on July 16 and 17 at Haleiwa Beach Park.

Over 100 visual artists in different mediums will have their works on display giving attendees the opportunity to buy direct from the artist. This is a juried craft show, which means each artist had to pass strict criteria of having handmade/created elements to their work before being accepted. Juried events are great for attendees as well, because this means organizers have only selected the artists that they believe will be the best fit for the event.

The Haleiwa Arts Festival is a two-day fine arts and crafts festival. Only artists displaying their own work are eligible to participate. Vendors will include artists demonstrating their artistic styles and techniques throughout the day, showcasing original works and limited editions of fine art in all media, including ceramics, fiber, glass, jewelry, painting, photography, printmaking, sculpture, wood, and mixed media. Aside from being a fun-filled day on Oahu's North Shore, the festival looks to promote education and public awareness of arts and culture, with emphasis on participation, for the betterment of the community.

The festival will be keeping people entertained both days all day long. Enjoy a full day of live music and performances on the stage. In the Art of Relaxation tent attendees can find a place to check in with wellness specialists.

A tent will be set up for the keiki with plenty of art projects for them to get their hands on, and a community outreach area showcasing neighboring non-profits and community resources.

The Haleiwa Arts Festival is working hard to be a green event. All vendors will use eco-friendly materials and there will not be any single use plastic water served, so bring those hydro flasks. Offering something for everyone in the family to enjoy, this is a family-friendly free event, depending on what you buy from all those amazing artists that is. 10 a.m. – 5 p.m.

Head to their website for the complete schedule of events and call 637-2277 with any questions. haleiwaartfestival.org.

A Letter from the Lifeguards

Together you can make a difference

Lifeguards making a rescue at Sunset Beach

The watermen and women of the City's Ocean Safety Division send a heartfelt Mahalo to all our hospitality friends for their hard work keeping visitors safe. My name is John Titchen, and I am the Chief of Ocean Safety for the City & County of Honolulu. On behalf of the City's lifeguards, I'd like to offer an update on our service and some advice on how you can continue to help.

Statistics from experts in your industry, state, and county government tourism managers and academics at the University of Hawai'i tell us that visitors come here for the beach. After brief and hurried interactions with rental car company employees at the airport, you are sometimes the first local people visitors encounter, and we all know you are the ones they turn to for directions. Naturally, they will ask you where to go, what to see, and how to get there, and hopefully, you can tell them what to look out for at the same time.

Arts and Music Abound

Well, if you or your guests are into Arts or Music - July is the month for you. If you're a live music lover, concerts have been ramping up lately. In addition to the jam-packed calendars BAMP and Blue Note have put out for you, Hawaiian music options are piling up. The Waikiki Aquarium kicked off its summer concert series last month, and the Honolulu Zoo's summer concert series takes place every Wednesday night this month. The Hawaiian Music Perpetuation Society has moved their Na Kupuna Nights to the Hawaii Convention Center, and more restaurants are bringing back their signature events with top local musicians. But while some things grow, others go away. Roy and Kathy Sakuma's Ukulele Festival Hawaii will present its final event this month, and organizers have decided to televise it rather than holding it in Kapiolani Park. Don't miss the end of an era on KHNL on July 17th.

If you're looking for locally made gifts to take home with you, there are plenty of options. Farmer's Markets continue to expand around town, adding more and more local vendors each time. The Haleiwa Arts Festival is a great excuse to head to the North Shore for the day and watch local artists at work. For people that don't want to drive that far, Pop Up Makeke is putting together a four-day event at the Sheraton Waikiki. Add those two events to all of the local artists' work I've seen popping up in stores around the island, and there is no reason your guests can find the perfect souvenir to take home with them.

Speaking of your guests going home, we have a note from the Chief of Ocean Safety thanking you for what you do and sharing a few tips you can pass on to your guests to ensure they return from their adventure in one piece. You can expect to see a few updates from him from time to time as we work to build a symbiotic relationship between you all. We all have a crucial role to play in educating our visitors on everything from cultural awareness to safety tips. The words "it takes a village" really do apply here. Together we can make a difference.

Kainoa Daines has been promoted from Director of Culture and Product Development to Senior Director of Brand within its marketing department. In addition to advancing Hawaiian cultural efforts and managing programs across HVCB, Daines' role has expanded to include championing community and resident needs across HVCB programs, which fits in perfectly with his extensive knowledge of Hawaiian culture. "It is paramount that Hawaiian culture is foundational in all that we do, and that the voices of our communities are considered intentionally when representing our destination to the continental U.S. audience," said Daines. "We also recognize each marketing effort as an opportunity to educate visitors about our community values as well as appropriate travel behavior while in the islands, and we are committed to advocating these messages responsibly."

• The Hokulani Waikiki by Hilton Grand Vacations has announced several promotions. Congrats to Mitch Yokoyama who has been promoted to General Manager. He started his career in the hotel industry as a Mitch Yokoyama Guest Service Agent back in 2001 at the Hilton Hawaiian Village and was named the Assistant General Manager of the Hokulani in late 2016. They have also promoted Joshua Akana to Front Office Manager, a department head position overseeing the operations of Front Office, Bell, and F&B. He was previously a Guest Service Associate. • Big changes at the Halekulani Hotel as longtime Chef Concierge Frank Hernandez has left to move back to the mainland to be closer to family. He was a big part of this industry and we wish him all the best! Vanessa Greene has been promoted to Assistant Chef Concierge in the interim and they have welcomed Jan Minders back to the concierge team after his most recent stint at the Four Seasons Resort.

O'ahu's 227 miles of coastline offer jaw-dropping views and some amazing experiences. Education is truly the best tool we have as Guards to keep people safe. Did you know we actually size people up as they arrive, assessing what they're wearing and what equipment they've brought to the beach and decide what their likelihood of getting in trouble will be? For example, a family of four hits the road at 9 or 10 a.m. and heads for Hanauma Bay. Without reservations, they're forced to keep driving, and the next beach they come to is Sandy Beach, one of the deadliest spots on our islands.

One of the City's two-person rescue jet ski teams patrolling the waters off Waikiki Lifeguards see this family of four arrive every day with no fins, wearing shorts and swimsuits with elastic bands better suited for pools and trying to enter the water in the wrong place. We all know what can happen then, so we keep a closer eye on that family knowing they probably don't know anything about the beach they stumbled upon, and perhaps even approach them and give them advance warning.

The City & County of Honolulu Ocean Safety Division features 260 uniformed Lifeguards (by the way, we're looking for a few more and all the recruitment info is on our website), 41 towers and 24 mobile units. We are part of the City's 911 system, along with Police, Fire, and EMS. We are the ones dispatched for calls for help on the beaches and in the near-shore waters of the entire island. We are the experts for all near-shore rescues, and, our legal mandate per the City Charter are emergencies on the beaches or in the near shore waters of O'ahu, out to one statute mile.

Department, and the City's Emergency Medical Services Division. We respond to about 40 drownings a year, make, on average, around 3,000 rescues, and issue 50,000 preventative actions or warnings. Every beach has its hazards. Obviously, the North Shore is usually deadlier in winter when those big swells hit, and the South Shore gets busy in summer, but hazards exist year-round. The Leeward and Windward Coasts can feature south and north swells throughout the year, as well as wind swell and the rare hurricane swell. We try to be prepared for it all.

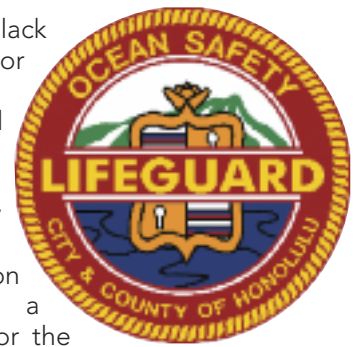

There are seven towers from the Royal Hawaiian Hotel to Kaimana Beach, typically two rescue jet ski teams and two mobile response teams. On average, our personnel in Waikiki have been doing CPR twice a week in 2022. While some cases are residents, or transients, or drug addicts on shore, there have also been an unusually high number of rescues in the surf at Canoes and Queen's lately. Perhaps it's because so many of our visitors the last two years are domestic and perhaps more willing to jump on a board or canoe in larger or daunting surf.

In any case, we truly appreciate the help you all provide in educating our visitors on the hazards, so we thought we might offer a few more tips for you to share because education is really the best tool we have in our toolbox.

Lifeguard Tips

- Ask the visitor what kind of experience they have in open ocean and shore break;
- Recommend visitors check out online surf or beach forecast sites and apps that draw information directly from the National Weather Service
- Explain tides and trade winds: our high tides this summer will be much higher than in past years. Tradewinds are predominantly from the East Northeast and explain that visitors can quickly be blown offshore on rafts, boards, or other floatation devices;
- Encourage visitors to ask questions of City lifeguards – we're the ones in uniform with the City seal on the red or black shorts or yellow or red shirt.

- If they are intent on visiting a place for the first time and only have the info from social media (for example, Spitting Caves, Mermaid Cave, Ke Iki, Shark's Cove, or even Lanikai), recommend they do a little more research online before they go so they can understand risks and hazards, cultural significance, or even something as simple as how to get in if they fall off rocks or cliffs or the shoreline;
- Recommend they check that their cell phones work as soon as they get someplace new;
- Suggest they simply take a few minutes to assess the conditions before they charge in:
- See where local folks are entering and exiting the water?
- Where is the nearest place for help?
- Do they see others with equipment (fins, board, mask, etc.) that they do not have?

Mahalo, for all you do in keeping these folks safe. We appreciate your keeping the economic engine going in our small, tight-knit community.

Lastly, in the way you do best — with patience and Aloha. Let them know if they get into trouble, do not panic. Swim away from breaking waves or reefs or rocks. And, always remember to call us. We'll do our best to go get them and make sure they make it back to the hotel for dinner. Aloha!

John Kamalei Titchen is the Chief of Ocean Safety for the City & County of Honolulu. He started his decades-long maritime response career as a City lifeguard in Waikiki, retired as a commander from the U.S. Coast Guard, and has been learning to surf since he was 4 when he first rode waves at the Kapahulu Wall on a fast food restaurant tray. He's still learning to surf.

THE SEARCH FOR SNOOPY – TAKE TWO

"Life is full of rude awakenings"
– Snoopy

AAUGH! For whatever reason, even though we all got excited back when the March issue first came out priming everyone for The Search for Snoopy to come to town, we all got a 'rude awakening' when that was the last we heard of it. But, "when life knocks you down, roll over and look at the stars," sooner or later, you roll back over, and the exact thing you've been waiting for has arrived. Well, it's happened. Snoopy is finally here!

The world premiere of The Search For Snoopy: A Peanuts Adventure opens July 1st for the summer at Ala Moana Center for an exclusive debut engagement before embarking on its North America tour.

Fans of Charles Schulz's beloved comic strip are taken on a groundbreaking, one-of-a-kind adventure inside the Peanuts world, as guests uncover clues to help Charlie Brown find his beloved dog, Snoopy through life-sized sets.

The Search for Snoopy: A Peanuts Adventure opens July 1 on the 3rd floor of Ala Moana Center and should remain open throughout the summer.

Swing past Charlie Brown's bedroom and scream your best AAUGH! into a shout meter to see where you rank on a distinctly Peanuts scale as you try to match "that round-headed kid."

Ever wish everything you said sounded like the teachers in Peanuts classroom? Kids are going to love the fact that when adults step up to the microphone in this classroom, everything will be translated into the trademark "Wah Wah Wah" voice.

The Doctor is always in at this adventure. Just pick up the phone when you stop by Lucy's Psychiatry Booth to hear some of Lucy's sage advice. That will be five cents, please!

This fantastical and fun journey through the Peanuts neighborhood would not be complete without a up close and personal look at where everybody's favorite dog lives. Walk through the inside of Snoopy's Doghouse, and find surprises and clues to assist the search.

The Search For Snoopy: A Peanuts Adventure

brings the ups and downs of growing up to life as it celebrates the enduring themes of the comic strip – friendship, belonging, perseverance, unique talents, and the power of imagination alongside a few life-sized versions of your favorite characters. Open Wednesday thru Sunday with tickets starting at $22.50.

Remember these wise words from the beloved beagle, "Keep looking up – that's the secret of life." searchforsnoopy.com.

Ukulele Festival Hawaii Produces its Final Festival

More than 50 years ago, Roy and Kathy Sakuma established the Ukulele Festival Hawaii to continue their work of preserving interest in the ukulele and spreading the joy of the 'ukulele with children and the community. In 1970, Roy Sakuma was a groundskeeper at Kapiolani Park with big dreams. He envisioned putting on a free concert in the park to show the world the virtuosity of the ukulele and how it could play and add to any song. In July 1971, he did just that, launching the world's first ukulele festival. Over the years, it has grown into the world's largest international ukulele festival of its kind. However, this month, the Festival will play its final song after more than 50 years of bringing together thousands of people each year to celebrate Hawai'i's little instrument of aloha.

UKULELE

The Festival has played a significant role in shaping both Hawai'i's community and tourism industry over the years. Ukulele lovers would never miss a festival, and tourists would follow the sound of the music, stumbling onto the event, and quite often become fans of the ukulele themselves. More than 10,000 people on average attended the Festival every year, 25 percent of whom were visitors from out of state. Although COVID derailed the in-person event people loved so much, the Sakuma's quickly pivoted to an online format to continue their mission of bringing laughter, love, and hope to children and adults in Hawaii and throughout the world through the music of the ukulele.

Roy Sakuma is undoubtedly one of the most influential ukulele teachers on the island. He opened his first studio in 1974 and has shared his love for the instrument with thousands of students since then. Jake Shimabukuro, who studied there for seven years, is one of the most famous students to come out of his studio. Roy and his wife now have four ukulele studios in Hawaii, entirely staffed by former students. In his mid-70s, although he has taken a step back, Roy has no plans to stop teaching anytime soon. He still has much more to share with his students and staff, and teaching energizes him, so he will continue teaching as long as possible.

Roy and Kathy Sakuma in 2020.

In 2004, they established a nonprofit charitable organization to continue their life's work of preserving interest and spreading the joy of the ukulele. Through this organization, they can produce, promote, and organize free ukulele festivals, workshops, and college scholarships and provide ukuleles to those in need. Roy and Kathy Sakuma say they will continue to focus on its charitable purpose.

Kathy Sakuma has said many times over the years that this tiny, ordinary instrument has an extraordinary way of touching people's lives. Hopefully, they know how much she and Roy have touched the lives of people around the world with their work over the past five decades.

The 52nd Ukulele Festival will be broadcast on KHNL at 7 p.m. on July 17th. Roy Sakuma will be joined by Ohta-San, Danny Kaleikini, Jake Shimabukuro, Herb Ohta, Jr., Paula Fuga, Natalie Ai Kamau and more.

Mahalo Roy and Kathy for the music!

The Alohilani Resort has introduced the Queen's Arbor, an immersive beachside cultural experience. Located across the street from the hotel, under the arbors at Kuhio Beach, guests can start their day with a sunrise breakfast experience. This farm-to-table breakfast will offer two seatings, at 6 a.m. and 8:30 a.m. featuring a curated menu centered around sustainable farming, local products, and culinary authenticity. Patrons will also have the opportunity to experience and learn from local artisans sharing their rich Hawaiian culture through storytelling, daily demonstrations, and unique handmade crafts. $59++. Reservations required 927-4936. • Pesca has introduced a new lunch prix-fix menu. For $38, enjoy a Greek Salad, Fish Chowder, the Fresh Catch, and the Dessert of the Day. Available Daily from 11 a.m. - 3 p.m. Don't forget happy hour takes place 3 - 6 p.m. daily. 777-3100. • The outdoor lanai of AOKI Teppanyaki at the Hilton Hawaiian Village has been transformed into a whisky bar called The Whisky Hole. menu offers select appetizers, delicious cocktails, and a long list of whiskies to try. Open every day from 4 p.m. Reservations are not required. 955-5955. • Tropics Bar & Grill has introduced a selection of new menu items, with new additions added to its breakfast, lunch, and dinner menu, including a savory pork belly burnt ends appetizer served with apple cider poutine consisting of beer-battered sidewinder fries, apple cider gravy, cheese curd, cheese blend, and spring onions. Tropics has also brought back its happy hour Sunday – Thursday from 3 – 5 p.m. and daily live music from 3 – 5 p.m. 949-4321. • Shrimp Katsu Dog, anyone?

Hank's Haute Dog has introduced a Panko coated shrimp 'sausage' deep-fried super crispy. Bull Dog Tonkatsu sauce, shredded cabbage, mustard-wasabi mayo, pickled red ginger, and a sprinkle of nori for $7.95 as their weekly Tuesday special. 532-4265. • Did you know Deck offered a kama'aina discount? I don't see those in Waikiki restaurants very often these days, so it was a pleasant surprise. They've refreshed many of their menu items and added a prix-fix menu for dinner meant to share. For $50, guests can choose from a selection of cold apps, hot apps, entrees, and desserts. They will be bringing back their Summer Sessions at the end of the month with a July 31st concert featuring Kapena. 556-2435. • Istanbul Restaurant has recently added brunch to its weekend menu. Although there are only six items on the menu, word has it you'll want to try them all. Offering delightful authentic Turkish dishes, grab a friend and head on down. The menu includes a bit of history under a few items. For example, if you ever wanted to eat like the Ottoman Sultans did in the 15th century, order the Delectable Cilbir. Three poached eggs topped with Turkish sweet peppers and extra virgin olive oil served with mint yogurt sauce and sourdough bread ($21). If you really want to eat like a sultan, the 32 oz. Brandt brand Prime USDA steak Ottoman Steak they offer for dinner is on the menu as Ottoman Steak & Eggs with for $160. But for those of you non-sultans out there, I recommend the Kadayif Pancakes ($20) made out of semolina flour and served with fresh fruit and date syrup. Brunch is served weekends from 11 a.m. - 2:30 p.m. 772-4440

Chef's Corner

Sho's Kitchen Chef Shoji Namatame

With over 28 years of experience in a variety of cuisines, Chef Shoji's experience goes far beyond the affordable bentos that put his restaurant into the spotlight. Looking to fulfill his culinary creativity, he began adding specials to the menu. Customers loved them, so he expanded that creativity into a special Chef's Table every Friday and Saturday night with a new menu every month. These dinners sell out quick!

What is your first childhood food memory?

Shakey's Pizza

Does your wife cook as well?

Some, but it's not her primary responsibility.

What was your first job in the industry?

I worked at Kentucky Fried Chicken

Why bento's?

Bento's are great!

What was the biggest lesson you learned while training?

To always be safe in the kitchen.

What made you decide to offer a Chef's Table?

Bento's are great but I love to explore my creativity and create an experience. The Chef's Table allows me to do just that, and provide something special and prepare a reasonable priced culinary experience!

Who would you consider your mentor and why?

My mom. She made so many different styles of cuisine. I guess I followed in her footsteps

How do you come up with the menu each month?

Honestly it depends on what my vendors say is available. My menus start off with what in season and then get creative to come up with a theme based on the ingredients.

How would you describe your style of cooking?

Continental? East meet West? A little bit of everything?

What's on the menu for July?

Summer is starting summer so this month I am going to prepare a Mexican BBQ. You can expect to see some Arracherra (Mexican-style beef) on the menu.

Where do you find your inspiration?

I find inspiration everywhere. In a book, at a restaurant, watching TV. Really every situation

You worked as a hotel chef around the world, any favorite locations?

I really can't pick just one. Every location was wonderful and I enjoyed my time at each one.

How many diners can you accommodate for your weekend dinners?

They're very intimate. We can only accommodate about 14 diners. This is another reason our Chef's Table usually sell out.

What made you decide to leave the hotel chef world to open your own restaurant?

COVID was everywhere, literally. Hotels were closed around the world, and there weren't any opportunities anymore. So, I thought about it and decided to open a small bento shop

Where do you see taking the restaurant from here?

I like this concept. It works. I'd like to expand this style to another location as well.

But to open a restaurant during a pandemic?

Even during COVID people were looking for good food. I like to make good food that taste good and is reasonably priced so it seemed like as good a time as any.

What do you like to do most on your day off?

Go shopping for the restaurant and cook a good meal for dinner!!! I do love the kitchen.

Is it just you and your wife there?

Primarily it's both of us, and an on-call cook when things get busy.

Any other information you want to share?

Please try our bento. We don't just offer Japanese-style bento. We always offer a monthly special bento too.

Spaghetti Neapolitan

After two years of virtual performances, the Honolulu Zoo Society's Wildest Show is roaring back to life with in-person concerts this summer. The five-week series features some of the Hawaii's top musicians kicked off the last week of June with a performance by Maunaloa and continues every Wednesday in July.

The Honolulu Zoo Society started these concerts back in the early 80s and they have been going strong ever since. It's an ideal event for families, especially for those with young children. The event is held on a large lawn facing the stage, giving kids lots of grassy area to play in.

Doors open at 4:30 p.m. allowing people to grab their share of lawn space, and once they're situated there are pre-concert family activities set up to keep you occupied, such as weekly animal-themed coloring contests for the keiki, animal trivia, and Conservation Stations sharing valuable information, giving people a chance to learn more about some great causes. Keep in mind the zoo will be closed during the concert, so you'll need to come back at another time if you want to see all of the exhibits.

Swing on down to the zoo this month and catch your favorite musician getting wild. Check out the line-up below.

Pop Up Makeke LIVE

The Pop-Up Mākeke is an online marketplace launched during COVID. It centralizes hundreds of Hawai'i's small businesses and showcases their talent and unique products for the world to enjoy.

The Council for Native Hawaiian Advancement is taking Pop Up Mākeke from the virtual showroom to a brick-and-mortar location as part of its 21st Native Hawaiian Convention that will be held at the Sheraton Waikiki July 19 - 22.

Visitors can take a piece of Hawaii home with them as they shop hundreds of Hawaii-based vendors and artists on the 2nd floor of the Sheraton Waikiki.

Over 150 companies will be on-site showcasing locally manufactured art, jewelry, apparel, beauty, gifts, food, and specialty items from 10 a.m. - to 7 p.m.

Don't miss this unique opportunity to shop some of the best Hawaii-made products around, as they set up in the center of Waikiki. popupmakeke.com.

The Healer Stones of Kapaemahu

Bishop Museum has opened a new exhibit. The Healer Stones of Kapaemahu explores the past and contemporary meanings of four large stones that were placed on Waikiki Beach long ago to honor four mähū, extraordinary individuals of dual male and female spirit, who brought healing arts from Tahiti to Hawaii. Although the stones have survived for centuries, the story behind them has been suppressed, and the respected role of mähū erased.

Within the Castle Memorial Building, visitors will encounter a life-size rendering of the stones and spirits in the main gallery, then watch their story unfold in a captivating, animated film. Guests will continue from the theater to an enormous room lined with projection screens and be immersed in the long history of the site and its story.

This exhibition is an opportunity to learn about Hawaiians' holistic healing beliefs and practices, who view the body, mind, and spirit as one; the body cannot be made well without healing the spirit. Examples of herbal medicines and rarely seen 19th-century lomilomi massage implements will be displayed.

This is a multifaceted exhibition that combines film, art, archival documents, images, storytelling, and other interactive elements, sharing that for Hawaiian history and culture to be understood and appreciated, it must be seen from a Hawaiian perspective. Millions of people pass by the stones of Kapaemahu without knowing their full story and meaning. This exhibit hopes to be a permanent reminder of Hawai'i's long history of healing and inclusion. Thru October 16th. bishopmuseum.com.

Looking for a few extra hours? Do you have friends not back at work yet or looking for jobs? Whatever the case may be here are a few companies actively looking.
