What better way to celebrate one of the most important figures in Hawaii's history than the way Hawaiian do best, with millions of flowers, music, and dance? Well, prepare for a weekend full of festivities fit for a king – King Kamehameha I, to be precise. This annual celebration brings together communities from across the region to honor and embrace the spirit of aloha while fostering a deeper understanding of Hawaiian traditions and customs, and visitors are more than welcome to watch it all unfold.

Kamehameha V first proclaimed June 11th as a day to honor and celebrate his grandfather and the father of the Hawaiian Kingdom, Kamehameha I, in 1871. Initially, the people of Hawai'i wanted to mark the legacy of Kamehameha V (Lot Kapūaiwa) on his birthday, December 11th. However, he was too humble to want to recognize himself. He decided he would far prefer to honor his grandfather for his countless accomplishments in bringing peace to the islands, offering justice to his people, and uniting the island chain. He chose a date at random far from his birthday, so June 11th, 1872, became the very first Kamehameha Day holiday ever celebrated.

This month marks the 151st celebration of the Annual King Kamehameha Day holiday, with festivities planned across the state. The theme this year is "E ala e nā kini o ka 'āina! Arise people of Hawai'i." The festivities kick off with the Lei Draping Ceremony on Friday, June 9th, at 2:30 p.m. If your guests are looking for the perfect photo-op from their trip to Hawai'i, this is it. Thousands of fresh flowers are strung into beautiful hand-made lei by volunteers that will then be draped on the outstretched arms of the King Kamehameha statue in front of the Ali'iōlani Hale on King Street, continuing a tradition that began in 1901. Hundreds of spectators will be on hand for the touching ceremony.

Then the 106th King Kamehameha

The Waikiki Aquarium's beloved outdoor oceanside concert series, Ke Kani O Ke Kai, returns this month for three summer performances under the stars by the islands' top musical artists and hula halau. Guests will also enjoy special dinner options provided by favorite local restaurant partners.

There will be three concerts in this year's series, beginning on June 29th as Led Kaapana & Mike Kaawa take the stage with special guests Ho'okena with Moon Kauakahi and Kumu Hula Nani Dudoit. Doors open for each performance at 5:30 p.m. On July 20, the Johnny Helm Band will perform along with the one and only Taimane, and lastly, Kawika Kahiapo; Makaha Sons will close out the series on August 10th.

Guests are encouraged to explore the Aquarium galleries, which will remain open throughout the evening, and bring blankets/chairs for the beach-front lawn. Shows begin at 7 p.m. Tickets are $55, $20 for keiki ages 5 - 12, and kids under 4 are free.

Ke Kani O Ke Kai is one of the best, and most unique ways to experience the Waikiki Aquarium after dark. Proceeds will support the Aquarium, including maintaining exhibits, completing renovations and expanding educational programs. ## Publisher's Letter

Happy Father's Day!
Get out and enjoy
Summer!!

It's summertime in Hawaii, which means spending more time outside than usual. Which, to be fair, is a lot. However, summer is when the concert series comes back, which we have announced in this issue, although we are still waiting for the musical line-ups from the Zoo. The concerts give visitors a chance to listen to Hawaii's amazing musicians in some of our favorite attractions, like the Zoo, the Aquarium, and Sea Life Park after hours, and let's face it, that's just cool.

Speaking of Hawaii musicians and cool — how about that lam Tongi? Hawaii's first (and hopefully not last) American Idol. That's super cool! Glad to see some of the fantastic talent we have in Hawaii get the recognition they so richly deserve. It sounds to me like we might be looking at the next Iz. Who knows for sure, but I'll be watching to see where he goes from here.

Hawaii is full of talent, and not only the musical kind. In the words of one of the culinary greats, Our culinary scene continues to kick it up a notch. I usually keep all of the culinary info in Dining Dish. Reviews are subjective, so I try to steer away from them, but in this case, there was so much happening this past month that I couldn't fit it all into Dining Dish, so I pulled out the info on two excellent new restaurants and gave it its own story, and I still didn't have enough room to mention everything I wanted too. (For more photos of both restaurants, look at my Instagram). The cool thing is this is only the tip of the iceberg. I know of several more exciting changes and additions to our culinary scene over the next few months - making Hawaii even tastier. I hope your guests are getting away from the restaurants they might be more comfortable with and taking a bite out of some of the fabulous restaurants we have available here.

Lastly, our newest baby monk seal should have been relocated from Waikiki by now, but there's a photo exhibit up in the lobby of the Kaimana Beach Hotel for the next three weeks that I highly recommend you check out - especially for those guests that missed seeing Pualani before she was weaned. See the story on page 4 about how a professional photographer fell in love with the seals and decided to document their journey, and then share his work with all. Those pups are so dang adorable!

See you guys around!

Wildest Show in Town

HONOLULU ZOO SOCIETY

One of the many great things about summers in Hawaii is the opportunity to grab a patch of grass and listen to some of the incredible musicians we have on the islands at some of our favorite attractions, allowing people to explore the grounds after hours while enjoying great music.

You've already seen that the Waikiki Aquarium announced its series, Sea Life Park should be coming out with theirs in August, and the longest series of them all starts this month on June 14 when the Honolulu Zoo Society Wildest Show Summer Concert Series kicks off.

Enjoy fabulous local entertainment live at the Honolulu Zoo's Great Lawn. Sit back with your family and friends to enjoy music, keiki activities, plenty of food for purchase, and much more.

The Zoo will feature six concerts on Wednesdays beginning June 14. The musicians had not been announced at press time, but keep your ears open as that information should be out any day. For your planning purposes, subsequent shows will occur on June 2, June 28, July 12, July 19, and July 26.

Gates open at 4:30 p.m., and opening entertainment starts at 5 p.m. with musical acts performing from 6-7 p.m. Tickets are $10 for Honolulu Zoo Society Members, $15 for non-members, $5 for kids ages 3-12 years old and free to keiki 2 and under. For more information, visit honolulu-zoo.org or call 926-3191.

Kaimana Beach Celebrities

The Hawaiian monk seal is one of the most endangered seal species in the world and is headed toward extinction. According to the Marine Conservation Institute, the Hawaiian monk seal population has declined by more than 60% over the past 50 years. After decades of declining numbers, NOAA says the number of monk seals has increased on average by 2 percent per year since 2013, a slow but steady rise over an entire decade, partly due to NOAA Fisheries recovery efforts. After reviewing data on the seals last year, they estimated the population increased to about 1,600.

Only about 300-400 of those monk seals are thought to reside in the main Hawaiian Islands. About 1,200 seals are estimated to inhabit the Northwest Hawaiian Islands. Although the species is still endangered, the continued pupping on the Hawaiian Islands is helping the species continue to thrive, and one of the Oahu's favorite monk seals is certainly doing her part. "Rocky" started her prolific pupping history at age six. Since then, she's pupped 14 times, skipping only three years since 2006.

Rocky and "Kaiwi" are well known to beachgoers in the area, as Kaimana Beach and the Outrigger Canoe Club are regular haul-out locations for both. One summer, both chose to molt in front of Michel's. They were there for weeks, so it comes as no surprise that these two are the ones that decided to pup there.

In 2017, Rocky gave birth to the first known seal born in Waikiki at Kaimana Beach. "Kaimana" caught the hearts of people around the world, becoming an ambassador for her entire species. While officials always knew that one day a seal would pup on Waikiki Beach and bring a whole slew of challenges with it. Clearly, the response team did well, blocking off a good portion of the beach as a seal nursery to protect mother and child, and the seals must have appreciated it because since then, three more monk seals have been born on Kaimana Beach. Kaiwi was next, giving birth to Lōli'i on April 26, 2021. Rocky returned to Kaimana Beach the following year after giving birth three of the previous four years on the outer islands to give birth to Koalani on July 9, 2022. Then, Kaiwi returned in April and gave birth to Pualani on April 14, 2023.

Monk seals stay with their newborn pups for around five to seven weeks and are notoriously protective of their pup before weaning them and leaving them on their own. Turning one of Waikiki's most popular beaches into a seal nursery has come with growing pains. Still, since 2023 marks the third consecutive year that a seal gave birth at Kaimana Beach, volunteers have learned from past experiences and closed most of the beach this time for everyone's safety. What causes these two seals to return to Kaimana Beach repeatedly to give birth

King Kam Day

Celebration Floral Parade will begin at 9:00 a.m. on Saturday, June 10th, 2023. As in years past, the parade will start at King Street, fronting 'Iolani Palace. Participants will then head down Punchbowl Street before making a left onto Ala Moana Boulevard before reaching Kalākaua Avenue. Visitors should pick a spot on Kalakaua Avenue to get ready to watch this colorful parade, unlike anything they will ever see anywhere else. Royal pa'u riders represent a royal court led by a queen on horseback, followed by princesses representing the eight islands of Hawaii wearing beautiful 19th-century riding gowns and lei and the creatively decorated pooper-scooper teams trailing the steeds. It's never clear who gets more cheers as they come down the street – the royal riders or the pooper scoopers!

Remember that the Royal Hawaiian Band and many other musicians will also march in the parade. The music will literally start at 9 a.m. and continue throughout the day until 9 p.m. And then there are the flowers. There are so many lei that day. Think about all the flowers needed to make all the lei necessary for the parade – for each of the pa'u riders, the horse lei, the royal court, and the people marching in the parade. Then, of course, there are the floats. We are talking about millions of flowers. There's a reason this is called a Floral Parade!

For planning purposes, streets will begin to close downtown at 7:30 a.m., with closures coinciding as the Parade moves along the route, several blocks before its approach. The Parade should reach Kapi'olani Park around 11:30 a.m.

The fun doesn't end there, though. Following the parade, Kapi'olani Park comes alive with food, music, hula, cultural activities, games, education, demonstrations, workshops, and more at the King Kamehameha Celebration Ho'olaule'a at Kapi'olani Park from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. There will be plenty of food, music, arts and crafts, and traditional Hawaiian games. Visitors will have the opportunity to indulge in a delectable array of local cuisine, showcasing the islands' diverse flavors and culinary delights. From traditional Hawaiian dishes to modern fusion creations, there's something to tantalize every taste bud. Enjoy these bites while listening to the sounds of local musicians, instruments, and harmonies while watching various hula performances. The event will feature informative displays and exhibits to deepen understanding and promote dialogue about Hawaiian history, heritage, and contemporary issues. Expert speakers and cultural practitioners will be available to share their knowledge, storytelling and answer questions. Let's not forget about the games! The Ho'olaule'a will also be a hub of cultural activities, games, and educational opportunities, allowing participants to gain hands-on experience and appreciation for some of Hawaii's favorite cultural practices.

New this year is the King Kamehameha Celebration Pā'ina. After the Ho'olaule'a is pau, head over to the 3rd floor of the Waikiki Marriott Beach Resort from 6 – 9 p.m. Attendees will have the opportunity to experience Hawaiian culture through yet another captivating lineup of live music performances that will showcase the vibrant sounds of the islands. From traditional melodies to contemporary interpretations, the music continues into the night. In addition to the musical performances, the Pā'ina will feature a curated selection of authentic Hawaiian crafts. Guests will have the chance to explore and admire the exquisite craftsmanship that reflects the rich cultural heritage of Hawai'i and provide a unique insight into the local artistic traditions. The best part of this event? It's free and open to the public, just as the rest of the festivities are. Visitors to the island this weekend hit the jackpot on free cultural activities.

Remember, since June 11th falls on a weekend, Monday, June 12th is the official state holiday. Be advised that state offices, schools, and many libraries are closed, and TheBus operates on a holiday schedule.

is unknown. Still, while each delivery may give the HMAR team pause regarding keeping the seals safe, it has also given the public a rare chance to see a momma monk seal nurture her pup up close and personal, from a safe distance, of course. By sheer location, Kaimana Beach Hotel has become the "monk seal" hotel for not only bearing witness to these births but also offering visitors and locals a bird's eye view of this rarely seen process in progress.

Because of that, it comes as no surprise that the hotel has focused on the seal's notoriety, and gladly partnered with acclaimed photographer Erik Kabik. Just in time for Mother's Day this year, they put up an exhibit of Kaimana Beach's favorite moms just before Mother's Day last month. Monk seal moms, that is. The exhibition showcases some of Kabik's favorite photos showing Rocky and Kaiwi with their adorable pups. Prints can be found in the gift shop.

Erik Kabik is an internationally renowned photographer. One of the world's most preeminent concert photographers, his passion for storytelling and photography began shooting Grateful Dead shows in the 90s, and he has photographed virtually every musician out there since. The list of who he photographed is impressive, including celebrity chefs, athletes, and several presidents. For the past eight years, he has been one of Journey's concert photographers, often touring with them, and runs a successful photo company in Las Vegas. In between jobs, he has come to call Hawaii home, falling in love with the island and the photographic gifts it offers, adding sunsets, surf contests, eruptions, and wildlife to his portfolio.

Kaiwi nuzzles her pup Pualani on Day 7. These are just a few of the photographs on display now in the lobby of the Kaimana Beach Hotel. It won't be up for long, so stop by soon. Photo © Erik Kabik

As luck would have it, Kaiwi gave birth to her first pup on Kaimana Beach as Erik was staying above them. He quickly became obsessed. If you follow him on Facebook or Instagram @erikkabik (and if you don't, you should, his posts are a daily dose of awesomeness), he captions every single post with a note describing how he took the photos from a safe distance away, educating viewers about the seals, and reminds everyone never to disturb them and always respect the volunteers.

With Kaiwi gifting everyone another opportunity to watch nature unfold last month, Kabik took advantage of another chance to document the seals. "After 25 years working as a full-time professional commercial & entertainment photographer in Las Vegas, I started to split my time between Las Vegas, the North Shore, and Kaimana Beach on Oahu. Hawaii quickly became home as the community and the 'aina captured my heart and passion. When Kaiwi gave birth to Lōli'i in 2021, practically on my doorstep, I felt a calling to observe and document this event. I began photographing these endangered special creatures, always from a great distance, to avoid disturbing the process. Then the following year, Rocky gave birth to Koalani, and my journey into wildlife photography has continued up to this recent birth when Kaiwi returned in April of 2023 to give birth to Pualani. Documenting these Hawaiian monk seals has reawakened my deep appreciation for nature and sparked a desire to share how special this experience is and how we must work together to protect these special animals. As wildlife photography is still new to me, I humbly approach the subject as a documentarian and a student, always seeking to learn more."

By the time you read this article, Kaiwi will most likely have just weaned her pup a few days before. While the swimmers will undoubtedly be happy their beach is reopening, the monk seal fans will probably be going through withdrawals, as HMAR is usually pretty quick to relocate the pup soon after mom leaves. The exhibit in the hotel's lobby is temporary but should be up for the first three weeks of the month. The photo prints of the Hawaiian monk seals are up for sale in, with part of the proceeds going to Hawai'i Marine Animal Response. ## Dining Dish

Chef Ronnie Nasuti of Tiki's Grill & Bar has introduced three new locally sourced items to his menu. The Moringa Pappardelle Vegan Alfredo presents a vegan alternative to classic Alfredo pasta, combining truffle-scented pasta primavera, local cremini mushrooms, roasted vegetables, Kahumana organic tatsoi greens, and macadamia nuts. The Housemade Vegan Silken Tofu offers a vegan twist on traditional Hawaiian poke, using truffle-scented sea asparagus, Ewa sweet onions, grape tomatoes, ogo, shoyu, and yuzu. The Venison Bolognese features island moringa pappardelle, Moloka'i venison, pork, Marzano tomatoes, and pecorino romano. 923-8454. • StripSteak is now open for dinner seven nights a week. Previously closed on Monday nights, the restaurant is now open from 5 to 9 p.m. nightly and offers free corkage for up to two bottles per reservation on Monday nights through the summer to celebrate its nightly dinner service. 896-2545. • Just in time for the summer rush, Ruth's Chris Steak House is now open for lunch on Fridays at the Waterfront Plaza and Fridays & Saturdays at Waikiki Beach Walk from 11 a.m. - 3 p.m. ruthschris.com. • The Veranda at the Moana Surfrider breakfast buffet returns on Wednesday, June 21, from 6 - 10:30 a.m., complete with multiple stations, omelets to order, and freshly squeezed juices. $44. An a la carte menu will still be available. Reservations required. 921-4600. • Speaking of buffets, the Hyatt Regency Waikiki has announced they will also be reopening their buffet this month. The Buffet at Hyatt will feature seafood favorites such as steamed crab legs, sushi, sashimi, oysters, shrimp, and other standout dinner classics. There is also a new Korean BBQ station, where diners can savor a variety of prime cuts like pork belly, beef & chicken bulgogi, and kalbi perfectly grilled by the chefs real-time. Banchan favorites and soju choices will also complement this added station. The buffet is expected to open towards the middle of the month and will be open daily for dinner from 5 - 9:30 p.m. Make reservations on Open Table, and kama'aina will receive 15% off. 923-1234. • Plumeria Beach House has introduced a new Noodle Bar Buffet every Thursday for lunch and dinner. Showcasing noodle dishes from around the world, including a make-your-own ramen bar, the lunch buffet is available from 12 - 2 p.m. for $55. Dinner is available from 5:30 - 8:30 for $75 and includes several more dishes than lunch, including freshly made dim sum and chef's Spanish Seafood Fideuà. On Sunday night, they brought back their Curry Buffet. Enjoy multiple salads, pokes, hot selections from India, Thailand, and Indonesia, A carving station with Tandoori Lamb Chops, and a curry Bazaar that allows you to make your own curry creation. $75. • The Pupu House, Uncle Bo's family-friendly tiki restaurant and bar on the first floor of the old Moose McGillycuddy's space, soft-opened at the end of April and has been serving dinner nightly from 5 p.m. to 1 a.m. Now Kikis Tiki Bar, located upstairs on the second level, has opened and will be open on Tuesdays, Fridays, and Saturdays from 10 p.m. to 3 a.m. All three nights will feature top DJs and live bands to make Kiki's the new hot spot to gather with friends for after-hours fun. # Chef's Corner

Bali Oceanfront Chef de Cuisine Atsushi Ganaha

Ganaha was recently appointed chef de cuisine of Bali Oceanfront at the Hilton Hawaiian Village. He brings a wealth of experience with him, having worked in various culinary leadership positions for more than 25 years. Most recently, he served as the executive chef at Torien, a Michelin-starred yakitori and omakase-style restaurant in New York City. With a comprehensive knowledge of international cuisine styles, including Japanese, Sushi, Yakitori, French, Italian, Chinese, Caribbean, and Latin, he will lead an exciting revamp of the restaurant's menu

What is your favorite childhood food memory?

The influence of American culture was still very strong where I grew up in the 1970s. I remember eating Campbell's soup and often going out to American fast food restaurants like A&W with my father. My favorite homecooked meal was the Okinawan Soba that my mother made.

When did you decide you wanted to be a chef?

When I was 9 years old, I started thinking that I wanted to be a chef when I went to a sushi restaurant in my neighborhood. I thought it was very cool to see how efficiently the sushi chefs worked.

What was your first job in the industry?

My first position in the industry was working at a restaurant called "Silver Elephant," which was a French bistro.

What first brought you from Japan to the states?

An acquaintance I worked with in Saipan was working in Connecticut, and I was invited by him.

Your resume boasts a broad list of international cooking experience, including knowledge of Japanese, French, Italian, Chinese, Caribbean and Latin foods. Where did you pick up these tools?

{at various restaurants} I picked up skills in high-end Pan-Atlantic cuisine at Norman's, which belongs to star chef Norman Van Aken in Coral Gables, FL, and high-end Chinese cuisine at La Chine in the Waldorf Astoria Hotel in NYC.

Who would you consider your mentor and why?

Many chefs and colleagues have influenced my cooking. Mr. Yoshiteru Ikegawa who founded Torishiki, the first yakitori restaurant in Japan to get a Michelin star, has been the most influential in my thinking about hospitality. While I worked at his New York City restaurant, Torien, I learned many valuable skills and how to deal with guests.

How was it working for a Michelin-starred restaurant?

I got one Michelin star when I worked as a chef de cuisine at Torien, the above-mentioned yakitori restaurant in NYC founded by master Ikegawa. However, we did not aim to obtain a Michelin star. But I believe that we were able to obtain it as a result of all of our FOH and BOH staff serving guests with excellence and sincerity.

What brought you from New York to Hawaii?

My wife and I had been talking about wanting to live in Hawaii in the future. That day just happened to come last year.

How has it been living here?

Honolulu has a very nice climate and a wonderful ocean. I feel very comfortable here.

How would you describe your leadership style?

I try to control my emotions and be as calm as possible, so that I can make the right decision.

What do you have planned for Bali Oceanfront?

While improving my skills, I'd like to work humbly with the staff around me and provide unforgettable memories to the guests who visit Bali Oceanfront.

Will you be changing the menu?

Yes, I will. But because I moved to Hawaii less than a year ago, I need to learn more about local products.

What's your favorite thing to do when not working?

Spending time with my wife and friends. I enjoy going to the beach, golfing and eating tasty food.

What do you cook at home that you don't cook at work?

Basically, I don't cook at home on my days off.

What's your favorite place to go to when not working?

I like to go to Zigu, is a Japanese izakaya in Waikiki on Seaside.

Ingredients:

- 1 lb shallot
- 2 oz garlic
- 2 cup blended oil
- 2 Tbsp ginger powder
- 1 Tbsp. chili flake
- 2 Tbsp curry powder

- 1 Tbsp coriander seed powder
- 2 Tbsp turmeric
- 2 Tbsp cumin seed powder
- 3 Tbsp Salt
- 3 Tbsp sugar

Directions:

- 1) Place all of ingredients in a blender.
- 2) Run the blender until the ingredients become a paste.
- 3) I recommended this curry paste as a rub on fish dishes, or any kind of meat. It also goes well on vegetables too.

New Restaurant Alert

El Cielo by Chef Masa and UMI by Vikram Garg

There was so much going on in the culinary scene this past month that there wasn't enough room in Dining Dish to properly discuss these two new additions. Two well-known chefs in Honolulu have branched out to open their own restaurants - and they are both fabulous.

Let's get started by talking about tapas-style dining. I fell in love with Spanish Tapas years ago, but there aren't many tapas restaurants here. Chef Masa Gushiken raised the bar with his outstanding new eatery, El Cielo Tapas & Wine by Chef Masa.

Chef first introduced us to a few of his traditional Catalan and Basque items when he was at Bread + Butter, but the Argentinian-born chef has outdone himself with a phenomenal menu. I was lucky enough to try about ten dishes, but I can't wait to return and try the rest of the menu. Stand-out items included: a Bacon Wrapped Date ($6) stuffed with blue cheese. The Chicken Liver Paté ($12) with truffle oil and a house-made baguette. The Gallega Style Grilled Octopus ($20) with potatoes and house-made chimichurri that was his mother's recipe. The Wagyu Steak ($58) melted in your mouth with beets, green beans, onions, and that chimichurri sauce! Located at 346 Lewers Street, below Genius Lounge, it's open for dinner daily from 5 – 10 p.m. There's no parking, but that won't stop me from returning to this explosion of flavors. 772-4533.

Speaking of an explosion of flavors, I was fortunate enough to check out UMI by Vikram Garg, and even though it was open less than ten days, Vikram's direction and attention to detail were evident. The globally-inspired breakfast menu included Shakshuka ($23), the Middle Eastern breakfast of eggs in tomato sauce with Feta and Sourdough Bread, a Croque Madame ($25), an Indian Masala Omelette ($23) with Onion, Tomato, Cilantro, Turmeric, Jalapeno, the Umi Fried Rice ($29), and for those looking to splurge, the Osetra Caviar with Eggs, Parmesan Cream, Finger Lime, Buttered Toast for $99 is amazing. We got it without the caviar (as it had already sold out), and I would eat that dish all day.

The seafood-centric dinner menu was even better than breakfast. From Kampachi w/Jicama, Fennel, and Shishito Vinaigrette ($25) to Grilled Scallops w/ Foie Gras Gyoza ($49), I don't have room to say how much I loved everything there.

Breakfast is served daily from 7 – 11 a.m. Dinner is served from 5:30 – 10 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday. See menus at umibyvikramgarg.com or call 744-4244.
