KEEPING THE HOSPITALITY INDUSTRY INFORMED SINCE 1998

From the silence comes the sound of drums beating through the night air. The excitement is palpable as suddenly a flame appears in the darkness, which turns spins, twirls, twists, and turns into a breathtaking explosive finale. For many visitors, the fire dance is one of the most exciting parts of the luau, so imagine an entire evening of nothing but fireknife dancers.

This year, the Polynesian Cultural Center is celebrating its 60th anniversary with its 30th Annual World Fireknife Competition. Make sure your guests take advantage of this exciting event as the best fireknife dancers from around the world come together to battle it out in a fiery competition for the coveted title.

Performers have been twirling, throwing, catching, and dancing with a Samoan war club known as a nifo oti for centuries. Nifo oti translates to "tooth at the end" and has been considered the national weapon of Samoa from at least the early 1800s. The nifo oti was eventually combined with another Samoan weapon, the lave or hook, used to snare an enemy's various body parts. The siva afi, or fireknife dance, is an integral part of the Samoan culture and was started to train warriors to protect themselves and others. The purpose of this competition is not only to crown a fireknife champion but also to educate and maintain the integrity, quality, and high level of performance in this skilled art form while enhancing the cultural background and origin of this Samoan weapon. According to the event's website, in more modern times, after village, tribal and interisland warfare faded into history, the nifo oti has become an essential element in the Samoan ta'alolo or gift-giving procession that honors special visitors. Custom now demands in the most formal occasions that the ornately decorated manaia or "prince" and taupou or "princess" should lead ta'alolo processions, each carrying and twirling nifo oti. Over the years, young Samoans developed the twirling motions into their own art form and stylized the knife, adding such touches as using two and even three knives simultaneously with chrome blades and reshaping the hook.

The various divisions will take to the stage at the Pacific Theater for multiple competitions leading up to the main event, the Men's Finals. It's going to be tough to get there, however. In honor of the 30th anniversary, the entire judge's panel for the Men's Finals will be former

Lantern Floating Hawaii 2023

In pre-pandemic times, the Shinnyo Lantern Floating Hawai'i was famous for bringing together around 50,000 people to Ala Moana Beach Park, joined by thousands worldwide via live streaming and telecast to honor loved ones while generating collective hope toward the future

The first three years, the Festival was held at Ke'ehi Lagoon before moving a few miles down the coast to Ala Moana Beach Park in 2002, where it's been held ever since. Shinnyo-en, an international Buddhist community with Japanese roots, officiates the free event. But did you ever wonder where the event came from?

Memorial Day is for people to remember and honor those who have fallen in service to their country. Several sources account for its origins, among which is the tale of women in the South

Publisher's Letter Happy Mothers Day

May is about Mom, so I hope all of you that still have yours around take the time to spend some time with them. And for you Moms out there? I hope your kids spoil you rotten. It goes without saying that most places have special menus and buffets to honor moms on the 14th, and some of them are already sold out. So, if you haven't made reservations by the time you read this, put the magazine down now and pick up the phone. I know places that sold out before Valentine's Day. This year, I decided to look into afternoon tea as an option. One or two places I reached out to never called me back to confirm my information, so I may have missed a few, but even if I did, there are some great options here, and what's more of a mom or grandma thing than to take them to Memorial Day also takes place this month, and with it comes the return of the Lantern Festival. Honestly, I have never braved the crowds, and although I am usually out of town that weekend, I'd always log onto the live stream. The emotional aspect of this event is big. I remember watching the ceremony on my laptop in California and still getting chicken skin, watching everyone place their lanterns into the water and watching them float away. It will be interesting to see how many people come out this year. This event is probably more popular amongst the locals than the visitors but combined; their numbers are mighty!

We also have a few concierge events planned this month, so please let me know if you are not receiving invitations. To be clear, I usually send the invites to the managers and ask them to share them with the team, but we invited absolutely everyone on the list to see Sea Life Park's new luau last month, so if you didn't know about it, check with your manager, and if they didn't get it, have them reach out to me. I am still rebuilding my event list and my mailing list, so I count on you guys to keep me up to speed. I always love the emails that say, "I've been here for years, and you don't send me the magazine,' and I have to ask.. did you ever tell me? If you are still waiting for your own copy, please send me an email and let me know. If you're in the front of the house, I am happy to add you to the list. Enjoy your month everyone. Hope to see you soon. Aloha!

Shaun Ono

DoubleTree by Hilton Alana Waikiki Beach has named Shaun Ono as its General Manager. Ono has 18 years of hospitality experience and joins Hilton after serving as director of rooms at Sheraton

Waikiki since 2019. Before that, Ono held a variety of executive positions with Sheraton's Waikiki properties, including bi-plex director of Asia Guest Services for Sheraton Waikiki and Royal Hawaiian; outlets manager at Sheraton Waikiki; general manager of Twist at Hanohano, Sheraton Waikiki; outlet manager of Momoyama, Sheraton Princess Kaiulani and director of guest services at Moana Surfrider. • Hilton Hawaiian Village has appointed Atsushi Ganaha as the new chef de cuisine of Bali Oceanfront. Most recently, Ganaha served as the executive chef at Torien, a Michelin-starred yakitori and omakase-style restaurant in New York City. With an extensive knowledge of international cuisine styles, including Japanese, Sushi, Yakitori, French, Italian, Chinese, Caribbean, and Latin, Ganaha will lead an exciting revamp of the restaurant's menu offerings. • Dee Jay Mailer was appointed Interim President and CEO of Bishop Museum in February. By the end of March, the Board of Directors had offered her a three-year term effective immediately. Her extensive experience in all levels of leadership and the strong, steady hand she showed in the first eight weeks on the job was so well received they made her a full-time offer. Mailer served as CEO of Kamehameha Schools/ Dee Jay Mailer Bishop Estate for a decade before retiring to devote her time to community advancement and board governance, and served on the museum's Board in the past. • The Hawaiian Mission Houses announced multiple changes to is leadership team recently starting with Erin Shapiro, who has been named its new Executive Director. Shapiro brings an extensive museum background with her, including previous roles with the Honolulu Museum of Art. Elisabeth Case has been hired as its Director of Development and Marketing. Previously she worked with The Contemporary Museum and the Hawaii Opera Theatre. Lisa Solomine will be stepping into the newly created role of Curator of Community Engagement. Mike Smola has been on staff since 2008 and has been the Curator of Public Programs for the last 12 years. He has been promoted to Director of Education. Marissa Rohlfing is the incoming Society Relations Director, and Susan Pelfrey, who has been involved with HMH since 2000, has been named the new Curatorial Assistant.

Lantern Festival

who visited a cemetery to decorate the graves of Confederate soldiers after the Civil War. Disturbed by the sight of the neglected graves of Union soldiers, they offered flowers on their graves as well. The custom grew to decorate the graves of all departed loved ones and honor everyone who died in battle. When the founder of Shinnyo-en, Master Shinjo Ito, visited Hawai'i in 1970, he paid his respects at Punchbowl and the Arizona Memorial. Profoundly moved by this experience, he was inspired by the wish to hold a lantern floating where people could share their hopes for peace. After Master Ito's passing in 1989, Shinso Ito, recognized as his most accomplished disciple, succeeded him as the head of Shinnyo Buddhism. Her Holiness Shinso Ito fulfilled his wish by launching the first Shinnyo Lantern Floating Hawai'i in 1999. She is one of the few women to become a Buddhist master and attain the highest priestly rank of Daisojo.

After three years of alternative observances thanks to the pandemic, the 25th annual observance of Shinnyo Lantern Floating Hawai'i will finally return as an in-person event at Ala Moana Beach Park for the first time since 2019. "We are grateful to return to an in-person event to collectively reflect on the countless and continuing acts of compassion and heroism over the past few years, share in a moment of collective remembrance, and generate hope and a sense of renewal toward the future," said Rev. Craig Yamamoto, community relations liaison of Shinnyo-en Hawaii.

During the free sunset event, a stunning display of 6,000 lighted lanterns bearing remembrances and names loved ones will be set adrift in the ocean at Ala Moana Beach Park. At the end of the evenina, lanterns will be collected for reuse in following years. The messages are also collected and handled in ceremonial way.

The annual ceremony draws people from various ethnic, cultural, and religious backgrounds in a gathering that aims to create а moment of collective remembrance. harmony, and international friendship. The community is invited to honor fallen service members and loved ones in person on May 29, Candle-lit lanterns bearing remembrances, prayers, and affirmations to perpetuate the goodness of those remembered will be set afloat at Ala Moana Beach at sunset.

Participants write messages to their lost loved ones on the sails of the specially constructed lanterns and float them out to sea. This year there will be 6,000 lanterns expected to illuminate the waters of Ala Moana Beach Park as tens of thousands gather to release their lanterns into the sunset. There is no cost to attend or participate.

Visitors and guests are encouraged to join the ceremony led by Her Holiness Shinso Ito of Shinnyo-en Buddhist Order at 6 p.m. This highly traditional ceremony begins with blowing the pū, or conch shell, followed by taiko drums and Hawaiian chants before the grand entrance of the Guiding Lanterns. Six large lanterns carry prayers for all spirits on behalf of everyone. Volunteers will float these lanterns, hoping to encourage peace and harmony. After a few more ceremonial blessings, Her Holiness rings the bell. The crystal-clear sound of the bell is meant to focus everyone's thoughts and prayers and signifies it is time to float the lanterns. At the end of the ceremony, the lanterns will be collected and refurbished for use next

Participants wishing to float a lantern in person should be able to pick up a single individual lantern at the Lantern Request

Tent on a first-come, first-served basis on the day of the event. All lanterns are free. Due to the high number of participants expected, they ask you to limit your request to one lantern per family or group to allow others to participate. Besides, many different names and messages fit on a single lantern, and the experience of sharing your lantern with others can be a very bonding moment. Full details on how lanterns will be distributed will be available closer to the event date.

Floating homemade lanterns are highly discouraged to protect the environment. You should know that each lantern is constructed especially for this event with the environment and participants' safety in mind. You should also be aware that adorning your lantern with lei is not allowed due to environmental and fire safety concerns.

Volunteers have been preparing for this event since April, and for those who would like to help construct some of the thousands of lanterns, please feel free to volunteer your time by emailing volunteer@naleialoha.org or calling 942-1848.

To have a volunteer float a lantern on your behalf, submit your remembrances and messages online. Submissions will be printed and floated on a Collective Remembrance Lantern in the ceremony from the canoes. Submissions can be made in person at the temple located at 2348 Beretania Street or online.

Live streaming of the entire ceremony and the complete schedule of events will be available on its website on May 29. You may also view the ceremony on Facebook, Instagram, YouTube, and on khon2.com and KHON TV-2 from 6:30 – 7:30 p.m. To submit a remembrance, see the entire schedule or watch the Festival online, go to lanternfloatinghawaii.com.

Do you have repeat guests that have "been there — done that" for all things Hawaii? Well, now there's something new to recommend to them, and unique for you too. For the first time in its 50-year history, Little Plumeria Farms will open to the public on Lei Day, offering tours as of May 1.

Jim Little started Little Plumeria Farms in 1973 as a hobby over fifty years

Clark Little, Jim Little, and Dane Little

ago. A former photography teacher at Punahou School, Jim was first introduced to the cross-pollination technique by the pioneer of hybridizing, Bill Moragne. Soon after, Jim successfully created his first hybrid plumeria flower. Over the next five decades, hundreds of exotic color combinations, fragrances, compact growers, and more followed. The 20-acre farm now features the world's largest collection of rare hybrid plumerias.

This farm has never been open to the public before. However, all of that changes on May 1 as they offer a once-in-a-lifetime experience for flower lovers, plumeria enthusiasts, and those who want an intimate tour with just family and friends through their 20-acre farm overlooking the North Shore.

The Farm Tour offers a partially guided walking group tour that includes strolling through its Rare Hybrid Plumeria Garden, learning about the various stages of plant growth at The Nursery, and surrounding yourself with blossoming trees and time to pick your flowers in designated areas. Tours are one hour and are $45 per person, $25 for keiki 13 and under.

For a truly unique experience, sign up for a private tour. This experience includes everything in the standard Farm Tour, plus visiting restricted areas by allterrain vehicles. These exclusive zones feature many additional rare plumeria trees and some of the newest hybrids yet to be seen by the public. Each guest will be greeted with a plumeria lei, receive a signed copy of Jim Little's book 'Growing Plumerias in Hawaii and Around the World,' and choose a plumeria cultivar (USDA approved) from the packaged varieties in the gift store. These tours take an hour and a half, and one of the Littles will serve as your guide. A private tour costs $250 per person and $150 for kids 13 years of age and under.

Which Little, you may ask? Three generations of the Little family run the farm — Jim, his son Clark, and his grandson Dane. Clark's name may ring a bell for some of you, as he is the same Clark Little many of you know for his award-winning photography. His photos have appeared around the world, and even graced the walls of the

President Obama's time in office. So, while his schedule is understandably busy, this family-run farm is intensely personal for all three generations. Some of your VIPS may end up with the internationally known artist as their tour guide.

Clark has been helping his father at the farm since his teens. "It's pretty special that we have three generations working the plumeria farm," said Clark. "It's something we've been doing as a family for 50 years. And for these past few years, my dad, my son, and I have been working extra hard to get things ready to open to the public. Some people have noticed I've been shooting less wave photos lately. Now you know why."

His son Dane is now an active part of the farm as well. "When my dad, Clark, was in his 20s, he was focused on the farm helping out my grandfather every day. Now that I am in my 20s, I am doing the same thing. I am following in their footsteps. I love being at the farm and sharing the flowers and stories with everyone. It's a special place for me," said Dane Little, the youngest generation running the farm.

So, the next time your guests tell you to find something new because they have done 'everything' before, let them know about this brand-new experience now available to them. Kama'aina discounts are available.

The farm offers plumeria tours from May 1 through October 31, coinciding with the blossoming season. Farm tours off-season, meaning without plumerias in bloom, may be scheduled by special appointment. Guests will need covered shoes to walk around the farm and should bring sunscreen and a hat. Reservations are required in advance.

Fireknife Championship

World Fireknife Champions themselves. Between the six judges, they have won 13 of the past 29 competitions, including Chief Sielu Avea of Hauula, who in 1993 became the first-ever World Fireknife Dance Champion. Since winning the title, he has performed in dozens of countries and appeared on multiple TV shows, including The Oprah Winfrey Show, The Tonight Show, and the Miss Universe Pageant. In 2002, Chief Sielu threw the flaming spear that ignited the ceremonial torch at the Stadium of Fire event before the 2002 Winter Olympics opening ceremony in Salt Lake City. In case he's not an intimidating enough judge by himself, five other world champions will join him at the judge's table. They include Maui's Ifi So'o, who won in 1994, 1995, and 1996; Samoa's Pati Levasa, a 4x winner in 1997, 1998, 2001, and 2002; Waianae's Andrew Umi Sexton, who took home the title in 2007; Maui's VJ Tiumalu, a 3x winner in 2008, 2011, and 2014; and 2004 champion, Laie's own Alex Galeai. If you don't know, the Galeai family is fireknife royalty. His father, Pulefano, an outstanding knife dancer in his youth, won his first Fireknife World title in 1964 and founded this event in 1993. Now that's a final judging panel. You think these contetants will be nervous?

Another fun note about the judges, Tuione Tovo will be judging the preliminary rounds. He was the 2nd place finisher for the inaugural competition and the first fireknife dancer to be recruited by Cirque du Soleil. Recently, he retired from Cirque and moved to O'ahu, and PCC jumped on the chance to recruit him for this phenomenal line-up of judges for the 30th anniversary.

The World Fireknife Championships are part of the We Are Samoa Festival. Hawaii's largest Samoan event was established to perpetuate the values and traditions of the Samoan culture through learning and performance, thereby increasing knowledge, harmony, and respect for self and others. Local high school students come together to demonstrate Samoan traditions, skills, and games and offer exciting cultural performances based on this year's theme of "Historical Events." The We Are Samoan Festival will be held on Saturday, May 6, from 9 a.m. – 12 p.m.

One of the more exciting aspects of this event is the Junior & Intermediate Fireknife Competition on Wednesday, May 3, at 6:30 p.m. Children as young as six years old will take to the stage to strut their stuff. Many of these kids are following in their family's footsteps, but others are just fascinated by the sport. Three-time champion David Galeai (of the aforementioned Galeai family), who started dancing himself at the age of 6, launched a fireknife academy in Laie back in 2006, offering kids from all ages and nationalities a chance who want to learn how to spin and fireknife, and many of the competitors on stage will be his students. These kids have been training regularly, and as the competition gets closer, it moves to a daily basis. Imagine being six years old and training day in and day out for a competition like this.

Get your Chee Hoo's ready to cheer them on!

The Men & Women's World Fireknife Competition on Wednesday, May 10, starts at 6:30 p.m., and admission is $15, leading to the final competitors facing off during the intermission of Ha: Breath of Life on Thursday, May 11, at 7:30 p.m. Tickets for the finale are $89.95. The cost includes admission to the show, and the winner will be crowned in a lavish award ceremony after the show.

For more information about the event or to purchase tickets, please call the Polynesian Cultural Center at 293-3333 or visit worldfireknife.com.

Currently open for breakfast daily from 7 - 11 a.m., the menu consists of Chef's signature homechurned butter, preserves, Le Chariot Du Pain (baked goods), and spice blends, all served tableside as well as signature items such as Mai Tai Pancakes, Croque Madame. The restaurant plans on opening for dinner from 5 - 10 p.m. beginning on Mother's Day, celebrating the very best of what the ocean provides. This highly anticipated solo venture is a celebrated return for Garg, who served as Executive Chef for Halekulani from 2008-2016. Please note alcohol is limited to a chef-paired-BYOB-recommendation for now until they get their liquor license. For more info call 744-4244 or go to umibyvikramgarg.com. • Kaimuki Shokudo Soba + Izakaya opened in the former Heiho House location on 11th Avenue. Currently open for lunch only, the menu includes hot and cold soba, sushi, tempura, and donburi from 11 a.m. - 2 p.m. daily. Plans include opening for dinner service later this month or early June (as soon as they get their liquor license) and offering modern-style izakaya dishes from Japan. 367-0966. Little Joe's Steakhouse has opened its 2nd location at Pearl Highlands Center next to Liliha Bakery. Open for dinner daily from 4:30 to 10 p.m. Happy hour is from 4:30 to 7 p.m. 455-3388. • Lastly, another big-name chef is opening up restaurant in Honolulu. L.A.'s Ria Dolly Barbosa, a featured chef in last year's Hawaii Food & Wine Festival, is opening Peso Honolulu, Hawaii's first Modern Filipino-American restaurant in the former Piggy Smalls location in Ward Centre early this month for dinner and weekend brunch.

Chef's Corner

Pau Hana's Private Chef Mariah Raftree

In the late 90s, Mariah moved from Chicago to the Pacific Northwest and ended up a a conference that was catered by a whole food chef and fell in love with food. From there she left her corporate job, wanting to me more connected to her community and decided to work for a local non-profit. She launched the first Eat Local First Campaign that connected eaters with local growers. That program has since been replicated all over the country. It was the beginning of a new career focusing on cooking using local and sustainable ingredients.

When did you decide you wanted to be a chef?

I went to a conference that was catered by a local whole foods chef and the food was incredible and beautiful. It was all fresh and local and healthy and I felt great at the end of the day instead of how I usually felt at the end of a week-long conference. That was the day I fell in love with food.

What was your first job in the industry?

I started catering weddings and special events with an in season and local food focus.

Where did you start cooking professionally?

Most of my professional cooking has been on a yacht and doing catering gigs. I am a whole foods chef who enjoys crafting pupus from the best ingredients we have to offer here on Oahu.

How was it working on yachts?

I worked on a 96-foot luxury yacht in Alaska. We ran week-long charters for 12 people and I wuld have a day and half to restock the boat for the next week long charter. I was told you can't find local food in Alaska. I found the best local food there! I would go harvest food for the week from several local gardens, backyard eggs and fishers and local producers like ice cream. I had a chalkboard to list what was local for each day. It was amazing and the guests loved it.

What brought you to Hawaii?

I fell in love with an old friend who was a sailor and had sailed into Hawaii in 2014 after 10 years of solo sailing in the South Pacific.

What prompted you to start your own charter biz?

After running week long luxury charters with my husband Jason in Alaska, we knew we wanted to run a private charter boat here in Hawaii. We had been looking for a catamaran for over 3 years and found the right one in French Polynesia.. We brought it back to Honolulu and immediately started making upgrades on the boat and filing all the necessary permits to start up our business.

How would you describe your style of cooking? Simple - use the best locally grown ingredients and cook in season.

Where do you find your culinary inspiration?

I get inspiration by traveling to places and seeing how people like to eat in that place. Hawaii is such an inspiration because the food here is inspired from so many places.

Favorite ingredient you like to work with and why? I love vegetables! It's hard to pick my favorite one. I love it when someone says they don't like a vegetable say like eggplant. And they try my eggplant caponata and say this is delicious, what is it? I think people build food aversions from poorly cooked food and that happens with vegetables more than any other food.

How do you like being a private chef?

I love it! I can cook with great ingredients and it's super creative as I'm always menu planning.

How do you decide what to make for your guests? Our boat's name is Pau Hana. We picked that name as I love pau hana and making pupus to share. It's my favorite style of cooking. Finger foods work great on a boat. Everything I make can be easily grabbed and eaten. We do also provide plates and flatware for those wanting a more formal experience.

How many guests have their charter food catered? I would say about 75% of our guests add on food and drink.

What's your specialty?

Scratch made sourdough olive oil crackers, eggplant caponata, za'atar flatbread are some pupus I really like to make.

What's your favorite restaurant in town?

Castro's Cuban Food in Waikiki. I love Luis' style. Healthy, simple, and vegetable forward.

What's your favorite thing to do when not working? Being on the water or being in the water.

Ingredients:

2½ lbs tomatoes, chopped (I use Kawamata Farms) 1/4 cup fresh lime juice (I use Kahumana Farms) tsp ginger, grated (I use Orchidland Farms)

Tomato Jam

1<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub> cup sugar ½ tsp cinnamon 1/4 tsp ground cloves

1½ tsp salt

1½ tsp dried cayenne, minced or pepper flake (I grow my own)

Directions: Combine all ingredients in a heavy bottom pan. Bring to a boil and reduce to a simmer. Stir regularly and reduce to a jammy mess. 1½ - 2 hours. When the jam starts to stick to the back of a spoon, remove from heat and let cool. Once cool, pour into pint jars. Makes 2 pints. Use local ingredients whenever possible. It's a perfect addition to any charcuterie board and pairs well with feta, goat or brie. Sweet Land Farm is a great local option.

Pau Hana Sailing is located at the Ala Wai Boat Harbor

Time for Tea

It's one of the quintessential British traditions, sitting down for an afternoon of tea, tiny finger sandwiches, scones and scrumptious desserts. When afternoon tea became fashionable in the early 19th century, it was meant to tide one over between the long gap between lunch and dinner. Since then, it has become more a treat, a more respectable way for some to get together and catch-up, over the happy hour some say perhaps happy hour. (although, champagne has worked its way into some of the menus). afternoon tea is also something I will always associate with my mom. She was born in England and my grandmother was Bristish through and through until the day she died. Tea was a very important part of each day. Therefore, in honor of Mother's Day, I thought it might be nice to talk about the different places that offer tea here in Honolulu.

You may notice two notable omissions from the list, but it's not because I overlooked them. It's because neither one them offer tea service any more. Both Mariposa or MW Restaurant have both discontinued afternoon tea for now.
