Celebrating Aloha, Perpetuating Traditions 'A'a I Ka Hula - Aloha Festivals 2024

No matter what kind of getaway your guests have planned, they can't miss seeing all of the beautiful hula that happens around the island. Hula holds a very profound cultural and historical significance here in Hawaii. It's more than just a dance; it's a way to tell stories, preserve history, and express spiritual beliefs. For Hawaiians, hula is a way to connect with their ancestors, honor their heritage, and keep their traditions alive. It also serves as a cultural ambassador, sharing Hawaiian values and stories with people from around the world. Therefore, it is no surprise that this year's Aloha Festivals theme centers around hula. The 2024 theme is – 'A'a I Ka Hula which translates to "Let us dare to dance." The theme is taken from the saying, 'A'a i ka hula, waiho ka hilahila ma ka hale – "When one wants to dance the hula, bashfulness should be left at home." 'A'a also means to be brave, to dare, and to challenge. When you think back and remember that hula was once viewed as a pagan ritual by missionaries, driven underground due to prohibition, and nearly lost as a vital cultural artform, these meanings are a striking reminder. They remind us of the fragility of our artforms, and that vigilance and care are required to ensure their inheritance throughout the generations. The theme honors the resilience and bravery of hula practitioners throughout history, highlighting the importance of cultural preservation.

Celebrating its 78th year in 2024, the Aloha Festivals celebrate Hawaii's history, music and traditions throughout the islands. Originally conceived in 1946 as Aloha Week to perpetuate the islands' unique traditions, through Hawaiian culture with arts, music, dance, and feasts. From the festival's beginnings that included hula shows, a parade, and services, the week-long events were expanded, and, in 1991, it was renamed the Aloha Festivals.

The Festivals include hundreds of events across the six main islands of Hawaii. Thousands of volunteers come together each year in order to coordinate these events for nearly a million participants and spectators. Supported entirely through private donations, community sponsors, merchandise sales and funding from the Hawaii'i Tourism Authority, this unique state celebration is a great opportunity for visitors who happen to be in town to see the fabulous floats and exciting entertainment.

Visitors should not miss the traditional Royal Court ceremony at Helumoa Gardens on September 7.

The Royal Court Investiture & Opening Ceremony officially kicks off the festivities on September 7th from 4 – 6 p.m. with the Royal Court Investiture at Helumoa Gardens located at The Royal Hawaiian Resort. In a regal ceremony that honors Hawaii'i's ali'i, those individuals selected to the Royal Court will put on regalia worn only by those ruling chiefs of the highest rank. The Aloha Festivals Royal

HAWAII BOOK & MUSIC FESTIVAL A Celebration of Story and Song

The Hawaii Book and Music Festival heads to UH

Think books, music, authors, speakers, poets, hula and more books. The Hawaii'i Book & Music Festival is a vibrant annual celebration of literature and music in Honolulu. Launched in 2004 as an annual free nonprofit event by local publishers, booksellers, and nonprofit leaders, the first Hawaii'i Book & Music Festival was held in 2006 as a free community event and continued the first weekend in May at the Frank M. Fasi Civic Grounds in downtown Honolulu for years. The pandemic forced the Festival into a virtual format, which went hybrid last year. After a four-year virtual stint, the 19th annual Festival returns to an in-person format on September 14 and 15.

The event features a diverse lineup of authors, musicians, and performers, offering various events such as book signings, panel discussions, readings, and live music performances. The Festival is an excellent opportunity for

SHARE YOUR ALOHA

I know most of you do it every day anyway, but September is Aloha Festivals month, and if there's ever a time to ensure you show your aloha at all times, this is it. This prestigious festival showcases our island culture and traditions, which have been around for over 3/4 of a century. For 78 years, we have been putting what makes Hawaii unique on display all month, and our time to shine is here again. While the state will put on a show, with the Opening Ceremony, Ho'olaule'a, and the Parade, you and I can perpetuate the feeling with something as simple as a smile. We want our visitors to have a fantastic time on our islands and perhaps leave here with more appreciation for what is important to us and what makes Hawai'i so unique. All of that starts with us. A smile or a gesture as simple as opening a door for someone or holding the elevator open is how it all starts, and that is something we can do. Let's remember that change starts from within. It begins with you. So, it stands to reason that sharing aloha goes the same way. If we share aloha with others, we hope they share it with us.

Aside from the Aloha Festivals, it's not as busy a month as the past few have been. In addition to the signature Aloha Fests events, many individual properties will be hosting events of their own to support. For the first time in four years, the Hawaii Book and Music Festival returns to an in-person event, this time to the UH Manoa campus, and the Okinawan Festival starts off the month. Aside from those, the events this month have gone back down to something a bit more manageable than they have been the last few months, but never fear, they are still plenty for your guests to go out and do while they are in town.

As for me, I just returned from a three-week vacation, and it was amazing. For the first time in over a decade, I left my computer at home, which I have to admit, I really liked! I should do that more often! But now that I'm back, concierge events will start back up later this month. I'm looking forward to get back into the swing of things. Aloha!

Solorzano spent six years as executive chef at Sansei Seafood Restaurant. Felipe Mares has been named executive sous chef. He was most recently the executive chef at Eating House by Roy Yamaguchi.

NA LEI ALOHA OPENS AT THE HYATT

Experience Kilohana by the Council for Native Hawaiian Advancement aims to showcase our treasured Hawaiian traditions through music and hula and interactive activities that deepen visitors' understanding of the islands traditions. Their latest venture is a new immersive cultural experience about the art of lei with authentic stories shared through music and hula in a new dinner show in Waikiki. Nā Lei Aloha celebrates Hawai'i's unique way of expressing aloha through lei. In Hawai'i, a lei is a symbol of love and friendship. It is given and worn to honor or celebrate special moments in life and represent the deep aloha we have for one another.

The show represents some of the things CNHA wanted to do when it took on the task of helping Hawai'i share more authentic stories of the islands with visitors, weaving together our history through mele and hula. Curated by Miss Aloha Hula 2010 Māhealani Mika, the show features songs written by award-winning musician Kuana Torres Kahele. It takes place on the outdoor terrace of the Hyatt Regency Waikiki Sunday through Thursday. Doors open at 5:30 p.m. for those coming to enjoy dinner provided by The Buffet at Hyatt, complete with strolling musicians and table-side hula dancers. Those coming only for the show should arrive at 6:30 p.m. Tickets for the show start at $99, and dinner packages start at $179. VIP packages are available. For more information, visit naleialoha.com.

REMINDE YOUR GUESTS ABOUT HAWAII'S KIDS IN CARS LAWS

Hawaii's child passenger safety law may differ from your guest's home state. Please remind your guests that a booster seat is required for keiki 4 years to 10 years old unless the child is over 4 feet 9 inches tall. Children under 2 must be in a rear-facing child passenger safety seat. Keiki aged 2 to 4 must be in a rear-facing or forward-facing car seat. Keep your eyes open for Lance Rae, who will be stopping by this month to remind you.

THE DINNER DETECTIVE FINDS A NEW HOME AT THE EMBASSY

The Dinner Detective Murder Mystery Dinner Show has found a new home at the Embassy Suites Waikiki Beach Walk. Solve the crime while you enjoy a three course meal. Actors are hidden in the audience, and anyone in the room can end up being part of the show, including you! Throughout the night, a crime will occur, hidden clues will be revealed, and the shows detectives will help everyone try to crack the case. Tickets are $79.95+ tax. The show re-opens September 21st. More info at TheDinnerDetective.com.

NEW WARTIME EXHIBIT OPENS AT THE BATTLESHIP MISSOURI

The Battleship Missouri unveiled a new exhibit, "Life After Infamy: The Resilience of the Aloha Spirit in Wartime Hawai'i." The exhibit shares Dorinda Nicholson's story, what it was like growing up in wartime Hawai'i and witnessing the attack on Pearl Harbor from her Pearl City home at 6-years-old. The displays feature personal artifacts loaned by Nicholson, including the child's gas mask that she carried during the war, WWII-era Red Cross items, and the Nanea™ doll that was inspired by Nicholson's story. The exhibit will be on display through June 2025. USSMissouri.org.

Drip by Drip

Welless MedSpas are the Latest Rage

Do you drip? IV Drips designed to address different health and wellness needs, such as boosting energy, improving hydration, enhancing beauty, or aiding recovery from overindulging, have taken off in recent years. Receiving vitamins intravenously has become increasingly common for travelers to seek out while on vacation.

IVs have made the jump from solely being used in hospitals for those with serious medical issues to the wellness industry. That being said, non-medical IV drips aren't a new concept. A Baltimore physician, Dr. John Myers, is credited with developing the "Myers' Cocktail" in the 1950s. An intravenous vitamin and mineral drip that combines magnesium, calcium, B vitamins (including B12), and vitamin C, it is one of the earliest and most well-known forms of IV therapy used in integrative and alternative medicine. It is still one of the most requested treatments for those who might have overindulged and are looking for a fast recovery, even though the formula is often customized to meet the specific needs of the patient. Today, drips are available to help with everything from energy, immunity, and weight loss to anti-aging and brain health.

Once only accessible by celebrities, Intravenous vitamin therapy is now used by many like you looking to support a healthier lifestyle inside out. IV treatment has long been the gold standard for the rich and famous, as micronutrients are delivered directly into the bloodstream, bypassing the gastrointestinal tract for 100% absorption.

A Google search for drip therapy here on Oahu brings up dozens of options. Most are mobile but always ask where their vitamin bags come from. Drips help one flush out toxins and look and feel their best from the inside out, but only if the drip is using quality products. You are putting these liquids directly into your body, and you should always take a moment to ensure that the products are FDA-certified. With so many companies jumping on the IV therapy train lately, doing your research is essential.

Drip Hawaii is Waikiki's first IV lounge and lifestyle medspa, offering intravenous therapy in a more relaxed, spa-like environment. Located on the second floor of the 'Alohilani Hotel, It has quickly become a favorite among locals and visitors since it opened in 2022. Founder and director Tamara Shaffer, a medspa industry veteran for over 20 years, came up with the idea and partnered with board-certified physician Dr. Jeffrey Hirschberg to combine their passion and experience in beauty and wellness with practicing medicine to bring their vision to life.

Specializing in IV wellness by combining a luxurious spa experience with cutting-edge medical treatment, Drip Hawaii offers micronutrient therapy, vitamin shots, and esthetic services. Their treatments deliver vitamins, minerals, amino acids, and antioxidants directly to your body's cells. Hiring only ICU and ER registered nurses to administer the drips, its highly trained staff provides an individual experience to meet each client's unique wellness needs, and all of their vitamins are FDA-approved and go through rigorous testing

"Giant strides in the medical and wellness industry are helping people regain their energy, build muscle, improve athletic performance, and live longer, healthier lives. We customize each IV drip to deliver the correct cocktail of vitamins and enzymes that boost each patient's health," says Shaffer, "We have drips to help with athletic recovery, liver repair, fertility or libido enhancement, immune boost, and addiction, just to name a few. And for those short on time, we offer Vita-Shots for a quick, in-and-out dose of wellness."

With a customer base that is around 50% local and 50% visitor, Shaffer says the drips visitors request most often tend to be the NAD for anti-aging, Immunity, and Hangover & Recovery.

Drip Hawaii is open Tuesday to Saturday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., and on Sunday from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Their RNs can also come directly to you for a small fee as part of its Mobile service for those guests seeking privacy or group events such as bachelor parties. driphawaii.com.

BOOK & MUSIC FESTIVAL

book lovers and music enthusiasts to engage with creators, discover new works, and enjoy the cultural richness of Hawai'i. In 2020, HBMF partnered with UH Manoa, adding three new program venues on Sustainability, Wellness, and Innovation to its dedicated program on Hawaiian culture, further enriching the Festival's diverse offerings.

This year, the event will feature local and nationally published authors. Ellen Galinsky, who has spoken at this event before, returns to discuss her work in family-related studies, specifically parenthood, and child-care, including the best-selling Mind in the Making: The Seven Essential Life Skills Every Child Needs and the classic The Six Stages of Parenthood, as well as other mainland writers. Hawai'i's leading playwright, Victoria Kneubuhl, will be on hand, as will noted Hawaiian playwright Alani Apio. The Festival will also feature nationally published Hawaiian novelists such as Chris McKinney and Zoe Eisenberg. This year, there is a panel focused on young adult fiction. Local author Malia Maunakea will be on hand to discuss her recent debut novel, Lei and the Fire Goddess, and its follow-up, Lei and the Invisible Island. Maya Soetoro Ng will be on hand to moderate Cristina Moon, and she discusses her memoir, Three Years on the Great Mountain: A Memoir of Zen and Fearlessness, that talks about a young woman pushed to her limits at a Zen monastery in Hawai'i.

The Festival will also focus on poetry. The Hawaii State Poet Laureate, Brandy Nalani Mcdougall, is joined by a National Poetry Series No'u Revilla winner on a panel exploring Hawaii Poets.

Themed programs will include discussion panels on timely issues in Hawaiian Culture, Sustainability and resilience, Wellness, and Innovation. A two-day program on the Impact of AI on the Humanities will also be held.

This is a book and music festival, so let's talk about the music. Kupaoa, Jeff Petersen, and Kenny Endo are a few of the names expected to perform on the main stage. Of course, no festival in Hawaii would be complete without hula, and Kumu Hula Māpuana de Silva will be there with her award-winning hālau.

New this year will be a Performance Stage hosting acts from various performing arts clubs. Festival attendees can expect to see Ballroom Dance, Hip

Hop Dance, Improv Comedy, Spoken Word Poetry, and more. At the Always Dream Read Aloud Corner for the very young, community leaders read their favorite keiki books, and a few kids' book authors will read from their books, PBS star Mr. Steve The Music Man, aka SteveSongs, reprises his role as the star at the Keiki Stage with his fun-filled, interactive shows that depend on plenty of audience participation. Kid-friendly entertainment will continue on both days as Uncle Wayne & the Howling Dog Band and keiki hula add to the fun. For those for a snack between presentations, a food court surrounded by picnic tables will offer an international selection of food and drink for purchase.

The Festival will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on September 14 and 15 at UH Manoa Lower Field. For a complete schedule of participants and events, go to hawaiiibookandmusicfestival.com.

WHAT'S NEW Around Town

Business must be good because there a ton of new things opening up around town. So many in fact, that they don't all fit into Newsflash like they normally do. So, here's a wrap up of what's opened the past month or so.

NEW STORES

INGLOT has opened at the International Market Place on Level 1, near Queen's Court. Stocked with the latest cosmetic products in makeup, nails and skincare items and accessories. inglotusa.com.

KAHUALEA has opened its second location inside the Moana Surfrider. The local boutique is known for its stunning aloha-wear adorned with original artwork exclusive to its brand; each design tells a unique story filled with meaning, inspired by years of love of hula and the island the artist grew up on. kahualea.com.

ROYAL HAWAIIAN CENTER welcomed Kahala, the locally owned aloha shirt company known for its one-of-a-kind prints to its newest location in Building A, Level 1 kahala.com. Moncler the renowned luxury brand known for its high-performance outerwear has opened its latest location at Building C, Levels 1 & 2. moncler.com.

WAIKIKI BEACH WALK has added three new tenants. Blue Sky Thai Massage & Spa opened its latest location on the second level. It offers authentic Thai massage packages for a relaxing and rejuvenating wellness experience from 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. blueskythaimassageandspa.com. Lemuria Crystal Shop opened its fourth location, combining its unique blend of spirituality with love for rocks and minerals and offering natural, high-quality crystals in different shapes and forms, including crystal jewelry and home accessories. lemuriacrystalshop.com. Popular online boutique EIMEO has opened a brick-and-mortar boutique featuring Polynesian designs inspired by the island of Mo'orea, Tahiti, which was once called Eimeo. eimeoclothing.com.

WARD VILLAGE has also added three new tenants. Sweat and Soul, a locally-owned barre studio, has opened in Ward Centre. The studio's classes include cardio, barre, and high-intensity interval training. sweatandsoulstudio.com. House of Mana Up, known for its collaborations and pop-ups throughout the years supporting local entrepreneurs, has opened a permanent location featuring locally-made products at the South Shore Marketplace. houseofmanaup.com. Ocean Taste, known for its sashimi, poke, and torched bowls, has also opened there, marking the popular eateries reopening after its former location in Kaimuki closed last year. Open Wed - Sun from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. instagram.com/oceantastehawaii.

NEW ACTIVITIES

THE PRIME RIB CLUB is a brand-new pop-up restaurant specializing in the finest slow-roasted Prime Rib Dinner experience twice a month in the back room of The Lei Stand downtown. Chef David Lukela, formerly Executive Chef with Highate and chef de Cuisine of the Beachouse at the Moana and his partners present a 3-course Prime Rib Dinner. The next pop-ups will happen September 1 and 15 with 5:30 and 7:30 p.m. seatings. Find out all the details at theprimeribclub.com.

THE LEI STAND is all about pop-ups since it was forced to shut down daily operations. This time they are teaming up with Izakaya 855-ALOHA twice a month to bring the best of cocktail, urban culture, arts and community to the heart of Waikiki at the Romer House. Your favorite guest mixologists from The Lei Stand will join 855-ALOHA's bar team to showcase three specialty cocktails of their choosing paired with Late Night Happy Hour menu. Recurring the first and last Sunday of each month 2024, check it out September 1 & 22 from 7 to 11 p.m. instagram.com/theleistand.

POLYNESIAN CULTURAL CENTER is relaunching its water show HUKI: A Canoe Celebration. Happening daily at 12:40 p.m., watch double-hulled canoes glide across the water, bringing singers, dancers, and islanders right to the edge of the lagoon. The canoe performance was suspended in 2020 when the Center closed its because COVID-19 but it's finally being restored, with a completely new show. The show is free to watch with the purchase of general admission, but be sure to arrive early. Gate open at 12:15 p.m. polynesia.com.

Court ensures the festival is rooted in history and tradition. Following the Investiture, the Opening Ceremony takes place at the Royal Hawaiian Center's Royal Grove featuring hula and mele in the heart of Waikiki, and La'amaikahiki, a hula storytelling pageant, by Hula O Maiki, marking a spectacular start to the month of Aloha Festivals that visitors won't want to miss. The opening ceremonies are free to all.

Browse thru dozens of vendors at the Ho'olaule'a.

On Saturday, September 21st, visitors will not want to miss the 70th annual Waikiki Ho'olaule'a. Kalakaua Avenue comes alive as thousands of people flock to the streets of Waikiki from 6 - 9:30 p.m. to catch all the food, fashion, culture and multiple entertainment stages set up between Seaside Avenue to Kapahulu. Browse through craft booths featuring locally made items while noshing on treats from over a dozen food booths while enjoying live entertainment and hula throughout the evening. For those staying on the strip, these exciting events will be right outside their windows so why not enjoy? People will be literally dancing in the street all night long. The event is free to attend, aside from any purchases one decides to make.

The following Saturday, September

28th, will bring the 76th Annual Aloha Festivals Floral Parade through Waikiki. From 9 a.m. to noon, sit back and enjoy the colorful elaborate floats covered with flowers, as pa'u riders, hula halau, and marching bands add music and pageantry to the parade as participants march from Ala Moana Beach Park and through the center of Waikiki to Kapiolani Park showcasing all of the pomp and circumstance an occasion like this deserves. If your guests are looking for the perfect photo op, make sure they head to the park once its all over to see riders and floats as the parade ends. The parade will also be livestreamed on KHON2.

There will be plenty of individual events going on in addition to the Festival's signature events. Many hotels and shopping centers will be getting into the spirit by hosting their own events throughout the month of September. For example, the Hilton Waikiki Beach Hotel will be hosting a special hoike and makeke the first three weekends of the month. Stop by the hotel Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. to browse made in Hawaii products while enjoying music and hula, cultural activities and ono treats. On Friday, September 20 is the Outrigger Day of Aloha Festivals at Waikiki Beach Walk. Enjoy live Hawaiian entertainment from 4:30 - 6 p.m. as well as a special visit from the Royal Court at 5 p.m. And don't miss 'Aha Hana No'eau after the parade on September 28 at the Royal Hawaiian Center. See cultural practitioners, demonstrations, exhibits, Hawaiian music and hula performances at the royal Grove from 12 - 5 p.m.

The leadership at the Aloha Festivals reminds us that hula lives today because of our brave kūpuna. "Hula is known the world over because of the ones who dared. Hula has captured the hearts of people from distant places and drawn them to these fair shores because of the ones who took on the challenge. So, this year, the Aloha Festivals celebrates the brave, the daring, the challenge seekers. We celebrate our kumu hula, our hula teachers and hula masters. By their tutelage do our hands and feet continue to tell the beautiful stories of our land and people."

Lastly, don't forget to pick up those classic Aloha Festivals ribbons. These ribbons serve as both a keepsake and a ticket to various festival events, and more importantly, the money raised from the sales of these ribbons help fund the Aloha Festivals for years to come.

More information about Aloha Festivals and all of the events held throughout the month, can be found on their socials (Instagram @alohafestivals) or their website at alohafestivals.com.

Chef's Corner

HFWF Chef Lenny Messina

Lenny Messina is the Executive Chef at Restaurant LOLA and Chef of Hudson Valley Foie Gras. He draws inspiration from the late Chef Michael Ginor, whose mentorship shaped his approach to contemporary cuisine, and who he accompanied to Hawaii for seven HFWFs and the taping of the Emmy-nominated Kalo episode of "Taste Our Love For Hawaii." Before joining LOLA, he won the American Culinary Federation's national championship. This will be his first appearance at HFWF under his own name and he plans to honor Michael's memory while forging his own path forward.

What is your first childhood food memory?

My father is a pastry chef. For as long as I can remember, I was surrounded by food and always felt at home in the kitchen. My first food memory is traveling into Manhattan with my dad for his employee Christmas party. When we arrived, he went straight into the kitchen to prep and sat me on a stool in the middle of all the action. I was mesmerized by the high energy of the workers orchestrating a busy morning breakfast service, but what captivated me the most was the pride that each chef took in their creations. It was that day, surrounded by the hustle and bustle of the kitchen and the passion of the chefs, that drew me into the world of food.

What was your first job in the industry?

My first real kitchen job came in my junior year of high school. I landed a part-time position in the kitchen at the local community college. It was my first time being a cook, and while the dishes we made were nothing fancy, I was excited by the opportunity. On weekends, I worked the omelet station, creating custom omelets for the students. This gave me a fun, creative outlet that I enjoyed. It was a rewarding experience that solidified my passion for cooking and serving others.

Why didn't you become a pastry chef?

I intended to follow in my father's footsteps and become a pastry chef, however, as I began developing my own cooking style, I realized my passion for savory over sweet. I appreciated the looser restrictions and additional creative flexibility that cooking offered compared to pastry. While I still love pastry arts, my heart led me to the culinary side, and I never looked back.

Name the meal you remember most and why?

One of my most memorable meals was in Oahu at Tori Ton. I remember sitting down to an array of freshly grilled skewers, and being captivated by the yakitori experience. It was the first time I gained a newfound respect for the art of grilling, and an appreciation for high-quality charcoal. I was also grateful for the respect and treatment given to all the different parts of the chicken. Tori Ton has become a must-visit every time I'm on island, sometimes multiple visits.

How did you start working at LOLA?

I met Michael Ginor at an event in Philadelphia. We quickly hit it off, and the fact that we lived about 20 minutes from each other was a fortunate coincidence. He invited me to his restaurant, LOLA. A week later, I went there. The next day he offered me a job to start working garde manger. With the natural progression more opportunities became available, and I worked hard to climb the ladder until ultimately becoming chef and partner of LOLA. This was ten years ago now, time flies.

Tell us about your relationship with Michael.

After my start at LOLA, Michael and I developed an incredible working relationship. In the kitchen, we could finish each other's sentences, picking up where the other left off in a dish or spring-boarding ideas to create wonderful things. Michael was the driving force behind my career, always pushing me to be a better version of myself. Over time our friendship deepened. I was fortunate to share so many amazing experiences with him. I'm beyond grateful for his friendship and will forever be devastated by his loss.

Are you involved with Hudson Valley Foie Gras?

LOLA has always been somewhat intertwined with Hudson Valley, as we are a farm-to-table restaurant that highlights many of our farm's products. I would often represent Hudson Valley at events. Michael always worked to provide me with any growth opportunities he saw for me, and over time, I began to develop a role at Hudson Valley Foie Gras. Today, I serve as the corporate chef and head of R&D, working closely with chefs, developing new products, and strengthening our relationships with restaurants and distributors.

What has happened since we lost Michael?

I'm fortunate to have an amazing relationship with Michael's family. Their trust in me has allowed me to continue and even deepen my roots at LOLA, while simultaneously providing opportunities for growth on the Hudson Valley side. We've all been working closely to build something special.

How many HFWFs have you been too?

This will be my eighth HFWF. I have so many memories, but my favorite was the first night of my first visit. Michael took me to Side Street Inn, where we sat and enjoyed a beer, "the works" fried rice, and a few other bites. This memory highlights how grateful I was for that part of my life, doing what I love, surrounded by people who inspired and motivated me, and traveling to one of the most beautiful places in the world.

How does it feel being a headliner at HFWF?

It's bittersweet. I'm honored to be a featured chef and I will be putting all my energy into continuing Michael's legacy and making him proud.

What can we expect from you going forward?

I'm as motivated as ever to push forward and develop growth opportunities for my colleagues at the farm and restaurant. I aspire to someday be the same mentor to an aspiring chef that Michael was to me.

What's on your must-do list while here?

Besides hitting all my favorite restaurants, I intend to carve out some time to spend on the beach with my wife. I want to unwind and take a moment to appreciate life.

Dim Sum Style Kalo Puffs

Salt Cod & Kalo Brandade Filling | Saffron - Preserved Lemon Aioli

In 2022, the Hawaii Food & Wine Festival presented its chefs with a challenge to elevate kalo as a vital food source in dishes that would appeal to audiences across the country as part of the initiative to get more chefs to educate more people about kalo. Five recipes were selected from over 30 submissions, and those chefs were invited to the islands to immerse themselves in Hawaii's rich kalo culture. Their experiences were televised as part of the award-winning series "Taste Our Love For Hawai'i Episode 4: Kalo Journey," which was nominated for an Emmy. This is the winning recipe that brought the late Chef Michael Ginor and Lenny Messina along for that experience. You can find that episode online if you're interested.

For the Taro Wrapper

1 lb 7 oz Taro
4 oz Wheat Starch

$\frac{3}{4}$ Cup Boiling Water
 $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp Kosher Salt
1 tsp Granulated Sugar

4 oz Rendered Duck Fat
1 tsp Baking Soda

To Assemble the Dough:

Chop Peeled & Steamed Kalo into 1" to 2" square piece and rice through ricer to create a smooth, glutenous paste. Place wheat starch in a bowl. Gradually add the hot water, stirring with a spoon. Stop adding water when the mixture resembles frosting. Place Steamed Kalo Paste in a clean bowl. Place about 1/2 pound (1 cup) of the kalo in the bowl with the wheat starch mixture, along with salt and sugar. Mix with your fingers until blended. Then work in duck fat, kneading for a couple of minutes until the dough is the texture of mashed potatoes. Gather dough into a ball, wrap in plastic wrap and refrigerate for at least 2 hours.

For the Filling

10 ozs Taro (Small Dice or Brunoise)
6 oz Kalo (riced to a paste)
10 oz Salt Cod
4 Cups Whole Milk
4 Cloves Garlic (peeled & smashed)

2 oz Preserved Lemon (finely minced)

2 Tbs Black Pepper
2 Tbs Kosher Salt

10 ozs Taro (Small Dice or Brunoise)

3 Thyme Stems

(picked & finely chopped)

2 oz Fresh Chives (finely chopped)

2 Tbs Olive Oil

Water (as needed)

To Prepare the Filling:

Soak salt cod in cold water for 48 hours – changing water every 12 hours. Drain the salt cod and transfer to a large saucepan. Add the milk, thyme, and smashed garlic. Should be enough milk to cover the fish by 2 inches. Simmer over low heat for 20 minutes, until the fish flakes with a fork. Using a slotted spoon, transfer the fish to a plate and let cool. Flake the fish. Remove pan with milk mixture from heat. Add Brunoise Kalo in cubes of pre-steamed Kalo into liquid and allow to soften in milk for 5 minutes. Strain and reserve poached Kalo and poaching milk liquid. Chill in refrigerator for 30 minutes until cool and firm.

To Assemble the Filling:

Combine Riced Kalo, 1/2 Cup Poaching Milk, Black Pepper, Kosher Salt, Olive Oil, Preserved Lemon, and Chives and stir to combine. Fold in Poached Kalo and Flaked Cod and combine gently until combined. Taste for seasoning and adjust if needed. Refrigerate for 15 minutes to firm up slightly.

Assemble Puffs:

Line a baking sheet with parchment paper. On an un-floured work surface, roll dough out to a 12-inch log and cut into 12 equal pieces, then roll each into a ball. Chill dough for 15 minutes. Remove dough balls from refrigerator one at a time. With your hands, flatten ball into an oblong circle, then make a "bowl." Add a teaspoonful of filling to the center of the dough, flattening with your fingers. Bring up the sides of the dough over the filling, forming a dumpling shape. Pinch the dough sides together, ensuring no holes or tears. Place dumpling on the lined baking sheet and form the remainder. Refrigerate until ready to fry.

To Fry:

Set 2 inches of Canola Oil in a small saucepan with deep sides, and heat to 360° to 370° over medium-high heat. Fry dumplings in small batches (2-3 at a time). As soon as the dumplings begin to float, turn the heat down to medium-low 350°. If they stick together, separate gently with a spoon. When dumplings are browned (approximately 2-3 minutes) remove with a slotted spoon or strainer and transfer to a cooling rack placed over paper towels. Serve immediately for best results.

For the Saffron Aioli

$\frac{1}{8}$ oz saffron threads
4 egg yolks

2 small garlic cloves

2 tbsp Dijon mustard

4 tbs lemon juice

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup olive oil

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup canola oil

To Prepare the Aioli:

Place saffron in a small bowl with 1 tbsp boiling water. Leave to steep for 10-15 mins until cool and deep yellow/orange color. Place the egg yolks, garlic, mustard and lemon juice in a small Vitamix and blend on 65% speed until smooth. Slowly add the oils, a small drizzle at a time, keeping the blender on, until you get a thick, glossy mayonnaise. Season with black pepper, then stir in the saffron water to loosen the aioli and turn it a golden hue. Cover the surface and chill until ready to serve.

To Serve:

Sprinkle Puffs with a good Hawaiian Salt. Place chilled saffron aioli into serving container or on a plate. Place Hot Puffs on a plate (1-2 per person). Garnish with pickled Fresno chilies or pickled Maui onions.
