TIPS FOR USING TENANT COVID-19 NOTICE FOR POSTPONEMENT OF EVICTION ENFORCEMENT

DURING EVICTION PROCESS

- Use the Tenant COVID-19 Notice to give to your landlord/property manager if any of the following circumstances apply to you:
 1. You have been diagnosed with COVID-19 and must be quarantined;
 2. You have been ordered to self-quarantine by a medical professional because of your symptoms as defined by the Centers for Disease Control;
 3. Someone in your household has been diagnosed with COVID-19 and you must be quarantined;
 4. You have a health condition, as defined by the Centers for Disease Control, that makes you more at risk for COVID-19 than the average person;
 5. You have suffered a substantial loss of income as a result of COVID-19, such as job loss, reduced pay or compensation, your work place closed, an obligation to miss work to care for a home-bound school-age child, or other circumstances.

- When you give or mail the Tenant COVID-19 Notice to your landlord/property manager, attach any supporting documents available for one or more of the above listed situations.

- You are just required to provide the landlord/property manager supporting documents available to you. If you have one or more of situations 1-4 listed above and you do not already have a document stating your situation, you should ask your medical professional for such a document. If you suffered substantial loss of income as a result of COVID-19, you may want to include notices from your employer or pay stubs. If you do not have any documents available to you, just write in detail about your circumstances.

- Before giving the Tenant COVID-19 Notice to your landlord/property manager, make sure you fill out the Notice and sign it. You can mail it,

305 S. 2nd Ave., Phoenix, AZ 85003
Phone 602-258-3434 Fax 602-682-3437

hand-deliver it, text or email it to your landlord/property manager. Keep a record of the date you gave or sent it to your landlord/property manager.

- You should make and keep several copies of the form and documents you gave your landlord/property manager.
- You should provide the Tenant COVID-19 Notice and supporting documentation to the landlord/property manager when you first receive any notice of termination or eviction, including notices for nonpayment of rent, or when you are served with eviction papers.
- Courts in Arizona are handling hearings differently. If you receive a summons, you should call the court to confirm your court date and find out if the court has a special manner (like by telephone) it wants to hear your case. This information may also be on the court's website.

AFTER EVICTION JUDGMENTS

- The landlord can still go to court and get a judgment against you, but providing these documents to your landlord/manager will keep the constable or sheriff from locking you out of your rental unit.
- After getting a judgment against you, the landlord can go back to the court after five days to get a writ of restitution. If the eviction action was filed based on an immediate and irreparable breach, the landlord can obtain the writ of restitution the day after the landlord gets a judgment. Writs of restitution are executed (served on a tenant or the rental unit) by a constable or sheriff. You should give your landlord/property manager the Tenant COVID-19 Notice and supporting documents as soon as possible in the eviction process and before the constable arrives at your home to lock you out.
- If you gave the Tenant COVID-19 Notice to your landlord/property manager and the constable still comes to your unit, give the Tenant COVID-19 Notice and documentation to the constable. If the constable still intends to lock you out of the unit, you may want to call an attorney immediately like Community Legal Services.
- You should not disclose confidential medical information related to a COVID-19 diagnosis unless the landlord states and signs in writing not to disclose or use the confidential medical information except to support your Tenant COVID-19 Notice. If you must provide confidential medical information to the constable, you should also ask them to sign a statement that they will keep your information confidential. Keep a copy of this written agreement.

YOUR ON-GOING REQUIREMENTS AS A TENANT

- You are still responsible for all monthly payments of rent. If rent is refused by your landlord/property manager, save it for future payment for as long as you remain in the unit. Document the dates you tried to pay your rent.
- You are still obligated to comply with the Arizona Residential Landlord & Tenant Act or Residential Mobile Home Act for as long as you and your family reside in the unit.
- The judgment amount is not waived and late fees and other charges may continue to accrue while you and your family reside in the unit.

The Tenant COVID-19 Notice should only be used for evictions where the tenant has a right to remain in their unit due to the circumstances related to the COVID-19 public health crisis.
