		<ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>The following is from the Center for Youth Ministry Training. It is notable that the current environment of the institutional church is to try to convince us that sex training is necessary. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>“You can tell a three-year-old not to touch an electrical outlet and, usually, he or she will do what you say. As the child grows older, there may be curiosity as to why the outlet shouldn’t be touched. The same is true for sexuality. The church has been content to simply tell students to stay away from sex, but, as teens become older and more experienced, they begin to wonder why. Churches have a tremendous opportunity to share the glorious topic of sexuality with students. God created sex after all, and God wants us to enjoy it to the fullest. Why should the church tackle this topic? Why not just let students learn it at home or at school? There are several reasons:...”</li> <li>Center for Youth Ministries Training: “Mentioning the Unmentionable: Sex Ed in the Church (Part 1)</li> <li>www.cymt.org/articles/mentioning-the-unmentionable-sex-ed-in-the-church-1/</li> <li>Or go to cymt.org; and search for the article with the full title.</li> </ol> </li> <li>All Needs Met is currently developing a training for parents to prepare them to train their children about sex. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Go to AllNeedsMet.us, click on the “Training Pages” and scroll down “8.17 Sex” for the beginning(s) drafts of this training.</li> </ol> </li> </ol>
